SUMMARY.

A Paris communique states that the general situation is stationary.

On the left wing the action is still progressing.

The Allies have repulsed day and night attacks in the Argonne and on the heights of the Meuse.

The capture of the trenches in one of the districts was due to the British.

A violent battle continues on the left, north of the Oise, but there is no decisive result.

The Allies have been forced to yield ground at certain points, but there is no change elsewhere.

The German casualties in the Augustowo and Suwalki region are supposed to be 70,000.

The pursuit by the Russians continues. The Germans are trying to make another stand.

Two Russian armies are proceeding towards Allenstein, in East Prussia, from the east and south.

A telegram from Rome states that the French fleet destroyed Lustica, the outer fortress of Cattaro.

During the naval bombardment of Tsing-tao three German batteries at Fort Bismarck were put out of action.

The outer defences were occupied by the Allies.

A German force made a night attack on the Japanese at Tsing-tao, but failed.

Several raids were made by Germans in British territory in East Africa, and attempts were made to cut the Uganda railway.

The raiding parties were defeated, and forced to retire to the garrison in East Africa.

Uganda has been strengthened by a strong body of Indian troops, and mounted volunteer forces raised locally.

China has consented to the Japanese controlling the Tsinan to Wei-haiwei railway.

Mr. Walter Marks made an offer to the Admiralty to secure 100 expert yachtsmen for the Royal Naval Reserve.

The Admiralty said the opportunity did not arise at present to utilise their services.

NOVELTIES IN SHIRTS
—DIRECT FROM LONDON.
We have just introduced something entirely New in Ready-to-wear Shirts.
The new style is one of the most distinctive produced in London for the Summer season.
The Shirt bodies are of Cream shade, quite plain, whilst the cuffs, centre pleats, and detachable stiff collars are of hair-line French Cambric, in colourings of Blue, Grey, or Helio.
This makes a neat contrast, and introduces a new note that is sure to be popular.
These designs cannot be widely imitated, because the particular materials are now higher in price, and somewhat scarce, on account of the war.
Men who order these Shirts will have something quite apart from the ordinary.
Each Shirt has one detachable stiff, low, double collar.
PRICE, 8/6 EACH.
Please state linen collar size.
Our new catalogue of men's wear, illustrated in colours, will be published in a few days' time. We will be glad to have addresses from all who would like a copy forwarded.

AN OIL PAINTING.
BY THE NEW PROCESS.
A CHARMING LIFE-LIKE PORTRAIT.
FREE. FREE. FREE.
AS AN ADVERTISEMENT.
READ, MARK, LEARN, AND GET A PRIZE.

In introducing the new and wonderful life-like Oil Colour Portraits to Sydney, we are, for the purpose of a speedy advertisement, offering a beautiful Oil Painting Portrait, size 20 x 16 inches, artistically and massively framed, together with Six Cabinet Portraits, for Twenty-five Shillings, either taken from life or copied from a good photo. The Cabinets and frame are 25/, the Oil Colour Portrait with this offer is given free without any charge whatever, and it is of wonderful value. No man in Sydney twelve months ago could have produced it for Fifty Guineas, but we are now giving it for nothing, just as an introduction, after which the price will be £2/2/ and no less (20 x 16 for head and shoulder is full three-quarter life size).
A column, a page, or a whole paper of talk, could not convey the charm, the true life-like effect, the masterly blending of tones, and the wonderful colour scheme of these speaking and ever-valued art treasures; each one must become a precious family heirloom, to be handed down from generation to generation, and the frame is worthy of the picture.
Twenty-five Shillings, fancy? Twenty-five Shillings and twelve months ago £25 would not have bought it. So get it while you may.

MACHINERY.

FURTHER PROOF OF DICK'S BELTS, MADE IN SCOTLAND.
Dear Sir,—In response to your question as to what I think of Dick's Belts, after years of experience with all kinds of belts, including other Balatas, I can safely say there is no other belt yet on the market to equal Dick's Belts, for woodworking machines; the high speeds and small pulleys on this class of machinery require the utmost strength, combined with pliability. I find Dick's require so little attention they are practically troubleproof, and last such a long time; they are the most economical belts I can use, both as regards cost and efficiency. I cannot too strongly recommend anyone giving them a trial on any drive where great grip or speed are desired. Yours faithfully, F. J. FRANKLIN, per A. and E. ELLIS.
Dick's Belts are the most economical where efficiency and durability are taken into consideration. For modern high speeds Dick's Belts remain unrivalled. Beware of the numerous cheap imitations. Any length delivered promptly. 'Phone, 6239 City. J. HARDIE and CO., Sole Importers, C. Quay West. Newcastle Stocks, PAUL and GRAY, Ltd.

HAVE YOU EVER USED PHILIPS' LAMPS?
THEY SOLVE ELECTRIC LIGHTING PROBLEMS.
If you use electric light in your home, office, or factory you should be interested in this:—
The Philips' Metal Filament Lamp gives a four times more useful light effect than a carbon filament lamp, but does not need more current.
The light is so evenly diffused that none of it is wasted.
We would be glad to send you, on request, a diagram showing the difference in projection and diffusion in the Philips' Lamps as compared with the ordinary type.
The Philips Filament is durable—the lamps give good service.

THE HIGHEST HOME IDEALS

ROSEBERY,
ROSEBERY,

"Sydney's Model Suburb."

At Rosebery the Sydney city worker can live with his wife and family under the most improved conditions of suburban development. Here he elevates himself to a plane hitherto almost unattainable.

The combination of a home and investment is perhaps one of the most succinct reasons why so many of our citizens prefer the advantage of home ownership to rent-paying.

You must have paid sufficient rent by now to know what freedom from it would mean; how it would brighten up your prospects, give you that feeling of independence which is the basis of success.

To consider the problem seriously, Rosebery must claim your consideration. Proximity to the city, healthy surroundings, modern cottage homes, all conjoin in forming the most desired advantages of our homeseekers, and to impress you with the popularity Rosebery is fast gaining in public favour.

The standard of architecture, the size of the dwellings, the interior decorations, the comforts supplied, the general air of prosperity surrounding Rosebery homes, must appeal to the ideal of every Australian. The variety in cottage designs adds greatly to the general scheme to beautification.

HOUSES AND LAND FOR SALE.

HABERFIELD,

THE GARDEN SUBURB.

We would point out that, if it were not profitable to own houses, there would be no landlord. No one is too poor to be interested in a cottage-buying proposition if the property offered can be bought on easy terms, such as we offer at

HABERFIELD.

Why not buy a Home as you buy sugar—a little at a time? If families had to purchase a year's supply of sugar at once, and pay cash for it, most of us would drink our tea and coffee unsweetened. So with one's home—the home that lasts, not a year, but a lifetime.

Few can afford to pay the whole amount required in cash. The Haberfield Proprietary, which lends the money, is in a certain sense like the grocer who buys sugar by the ton and sells it by the pound.

THE ADVANTAGES OF BUYING RATHER THAN RENTING ARE THAT—

First: It makes you take an interest in the home, and improve it and keep it neat. It makes a home.

Second: It helps you to save, and enables you to do it regularly.

Third: It gives you the value of the property at the end of a number of years, and stops all rent for ever after that time.

In other words, it gives you a home while you are getting it, and all the time afterwards.

Do you know any reason why you should go on renting a place—DO YOU?

Has your commonsense shown you the folly of paying rent all the time? Write, or call and see us, and we will advise you what to do.

Where can you find a pleasanter locality than Haberfield? Thirty minutes by tram from the heart of the city, amidst charming surroundings.

Electric light, gas, water, and sewerage, and every possible comfort.

There is a vast difference between wishing and having. Many a good man has failed because he has had his wishbone where his backbone ought to have been. Do you realise how much money you squander in rent? Can you afford it? Our terms are not like other methods, and have been proved successful by over 1000 buyers.

The new homes that we are building at

are the kind that many people are looking for—4, 5, 6 rooms, big rooms, linen press, storeroom, pantry, bathroom, laundry, wide verandahs for sleeping out, stencilled friezes throughout, artistic mantels, designs most complete. Our experience in that direction is admittedly good. In all cases larger allotments.

Our Haberfield Office is open all day Saturday, and if you wish to take a walk on Sunday afternoon you will find much to interest you in looking over the completed cottages.

We aim to produce at Haberfield a Suburban Ideal in the way of a Garden Suburb. No development of such magnitude has ever before been projected in this State. Why not become a part owner in this successful venture?

HABERFIELD GARDEN SUBURB.

The first Suburban Town-Planning proposition in Australia.

HOMES, £790, £890, £910, to £1350.

Repayments, 25/, 27/6, 30/, to 35/ weekly, including interest, 5 per cent.

THE TURF.

VICTORIAN TRAINING NOTES.

CAULFIELD.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The weather was very bright and crisp this morning, and everything was in favour of making fast time. The grass was open for special work, but, as they were galloping on the hard ground, very few trainers made use of it, the sand being more to their liking. The first to use the grass was Captain Oates, who ran four furlongs in 52¼s; Apiarist went in his best style for seven furlongs, doing the last six in 1m 16¼s. De Gama had the assistance of Pioll over the initial six furlongs of seven in 1m 23s. Avonwort (J. Kelly) was going easily alongside of Eltham (W. Redfern) for a mile and three furlongs in 2m 31s, and Yeneda started off slowly for seven furlongs, in 1m 35s. Sylvanmore (Kelly) made his way over nine furlongs in 1m 59¼s. Francis Foy spurted four furlongs in 53s. Guncap moved nicely for a mile and a quarter in 2m 16s. Kirtle and Linass were together at the finish of a mile in 1m 46s, a performance just equalled by The Sap and Wallachia. Euretta beat Capelletti over four furlongs in 51s, and Harleston served Bernisdale in like manner in 52s; while Benville and Bob Sprightly were 50½s on the sand. Sir Prim was even time going a mile and a quarter; Anna Carlovna (G. Eaton) was sent a mile and a quarter in 2m 19s, but the pace was only on for the last four furlongs, which occupied 52¼s, and her race has done her good. Gundaline beat Singonia over four furlongs in 52¼s; Klinger and Raymont left six furlongs behind in 1m 23¼s, and Ptah went smartly for four furlongs in 51¼s. Malt Guard was not extended for five furlongs in 1m 11s; Greek Fire got over a mile in 1m 50s, and Clontaft covered the same ground in even time. Wyadra was not out to make time for six furlongs in 1m 22s. Tadanga and Tringa cut out seven furlongs in 1m 36¼s without any effort. Recaller did stout exercise. Meritus was all out at the end of seven furlongs in 1m 34s. Gladwyn was kept well in hand for a mile in 1m 52s. River Prince and Leucops spurted five furlongs in 1m 7¼s. Big Bob and Kyarra put in an even-time mile and a quarter. Allansford hit out for a mile in 1m 52¼s. Lady Headley (Baird) jumped three hurdles indifferently; Comeawa beat Twist about four furlongs in 54s, and Nyan had no trouble in running nine furlongs in 2m 7¼s. Mutoscope and Wedderburn were companions for a mile in 1m 52s. Dewberry slipped over six furlongs in 1m 22¼s. Money Order (D. Williamson) after jumping three fences badly, improved considerably over three more. Mountain Heather and Statistician did useful work. Minato (Connolly) popped over fences in good style. Wimmera ran a mile in 1m 52¼s. William of Orange, Sherriff Muir, Defence, Delcasse, Beverstock, and Jolly Beggar were let off with easy tasks, and Singlestick was just inside even time for a mile.

FLEMINGTON.

The weather conditions were fine and pleasant this morning, when the tracks were in good order, but there was not very much to interest in the work, for only a limited number of the many horses present were extended. Uncle Sam and The Lintie did a working gallop of a mile in 1m 56s, but it had been intended that they should have gone considerably faster, and the former took a considerable amount of checking and seemed in great heart. Duverney and Dame Quickly did well in spurting three furlongs on the tan in 37¼s. Stone beat Tisno a long way in a gallop over a mile in 1m 48s, and they were travelling very smartly in the early stages. Newberry was going much better than Savannah over the same distance in 1m 52s, and looked very nice after his race last Saturday. Firebrick, who is a good mover, and Phylactery spurted half a mile in 52¼s. Ipoh strode over a short distance, Gun Girl ran five furlongs on the tan in 1m 6s, and Dowie was 40s going two furlongs less. Liquidation spurted three furlongs in 39¼s, and Nemonic did a furlong less on the tan in 26¼s. Dhuldhul ran six furlongs in 1m 21s. Aristaeus was outside of even time for a mile on the tan, and Craganour went strongly over the same ground, which was covered by Pearl King in 1m 55¼s. Boyne Water, Sea Pink, and Stolen Love were outside of even time for half a mile. Grand Charm (W. Evans) ran six furlongs on the tan in 1m 20s, and Zinti did a furlong less in 1m 6¼s. Linkum Doddy was in front of Toleration for half a mile, in 54¼s, and Rameses ran six furlongs in 1m 20¼s. John McCormack was extended for a mile in 1m 53s. Brevier did half that distance in 52¼s, and Winthorpe spurted three furlongs on the tan in 38¼s. Iowait (E. Barker) galloped a mile on the tan in 1m 45¼s, and went well throughout it, while Great Shot went along for half the distance in 57s, a performance repeated by Colonel Light. Uncle Matt and Golden Goblet went six furlongs in 1m 27¼s. Three and Lesbos were outside of even time for three furlongs, but Two and Ciel only went steadily.

JIM CLEEVE WINS CLUB HANDICAP.

The New South Wales Trotting Club held a meeting at Epping yesterday; there was a very large attendance, and the racing throughout was keen. A mishap occurred in the Flying Handicap, which detracted considerably from the interest in the race. The Nut fell at the first turn, and brought down Heri; the latter was the outsider in the betting, but The Nut was second favourite and well supported at 2 to 1. Jim Cleeve won the Club Handicap.

GOLF.

THE CLOSING SEASON.

CLUB COMPETITIONS.

Signs are not wanting that the season for competitive golf is drawing to a close. There is but one round of the interclub competitions to be played, but apart from that there appears to be a certain lassitude among the players, which heralds the approach of summer. Maybe the war, also, has something to do with the slackness which is generally apparent. It may well be so, for the war is doubtless severely affecting many of our players.

The University Club decided its annual championship during last week. The club, not having a course of its own, played, by courtesy of the Royal Sydney Golf Club, at Rose Bay. The championship was a 36 holes stroke event, the best round in the morning being easily scored by W. A. Windeyer, who, playing in fine style, was round in 78, P. S. Jones being second with 81, while J. H. Brown and H. H. Merewether each had 83. Windeyer did not compete in the afternoon round, and after very indifferent play Jones won with 81+88=169, Brown and Merewether tying for second place with 170 each. Merewether won the stroke competition in the morning with 83—6=77, just beating Windeyer, whose 78 was from scratch, a success which was well merited. The form shown in the afternoon was not by any means good, as the championship scores show. The bogey handicap was won by T. W. V. Read (9), with a card of 4 down, and a veil may well be drawn over the other results.

R. B. Godbolt, the Concord champion, though not particularly successful at stroke competitions, has a penchant for bogey competitions, in which he always shows well, and wins the majority of them. On Saturday, with a handicap of plus 1, he finished 1 up on bogey, his long game being particularly good. Though this did not win outright, it earned a winning bracket with C. M. Garrard, locally known as the "Iron King," owing to his avoidance of wooden clubs, who, from the handicap of 2, returned a similar card. J. T. Hyde (14) was 1 down.

Good cards were the order of the day at Bonnie Doon, and for once in a way the scratch men were not in the hunt. A. W. Jenkins and P. Rudd, each handicapped at 11, divided the honours with splendid cards of 3 up, and well earned a reduction of handicap. The popular H. A. Richardson was a good runner-up with an excellent card of 2 up from the 7 mark—a fine performance.

The Hunter's Hill Club championship has long been looked upon as a "good thing" for C. L. Mackenzie, who has won it with almost monotonous regularity. This year, however, with J. Kell, W. A Windeyer, and N. F. Christoe all in good form he will have to be at the top of his form to win. On Saturday the qualifying round of the 27 holes stroke was played, J. Kell and W. A. Windeyer tying for first place with 119, while C. L. Mackenzie was third with 122, and N. F. Christoe fourth with 123. These four qualified for the match stages, which must be decided during the next three weeks. Kell's scores for the three rounds of the nine-hole course were 38, 41, and 40, while Windeyer twice had 38 and once 42. Mackenzie required 42 on two occasions, and also had a 38, while Christoe was a stroke worse with 42, 38, and 43. On form, and in the light of recent performances, Windeyer appears to have the best chance of success.

SAILING.

OPEN BOAT NOTES.

ENID'S VICTORY.

The handicap boats carried off the major portion of the prize money in the Sydney Club's race on Saturday, just as the back-markers did in the opening race of the season a week earlier. The breeze in both instances was from the same quarter, but on Saturday it was steady, and this made all the difference to the long-markers. A handicap of 7¼m was a big start, for a boat of Enid's calibre, and with Taylor Bay omitted from the course; but the Donnelly-built boat has had liberal starts before and has not achieved much success. Jim Firth, however, gave none of the others a chance on Saturday, and would have won with more in hand had the big spinnaker been carried instead of the mast-head one on the first run from Shark Island to Clark Island, and had the for'ard hands been smarter with the extras. In this department Mona distinguished herself, and in a large measure her second was due to being pressed hard with her extras.

With one win and a third to her credit out of two races, Australian has made a good start this season. She simply romped away from her scratch rivals and sailed through the fleet in the opening race, but she could not do this with Nimrod on Saturday. The latter held Australian safe up to the time she went over at Clark Island, and when she looked like finishing second. There was no excuse for capsizing on such a day as Saturday, and it was only bad management that put Nimrod and Pastime in. Pastime's for'ard hands were certainly in trouble with their spinnaker when she went over, but in the case of Nimrod it looked as if each of the crew left it to others to put their weight on the gunwale, which they did not do, with the result that they failed to hold her up in the jibe.

A.J.C. SPRING MEETING.

THIRD (CRAVEN PLATE) DAY.

ANTICIPATIONS.

The A.J.C. Spring Meeting will be advanced another stage this afternoon at Randwick, and the bill of fare to be discussed gives promise of a continuance of high-class sport witnessed on Derby and Metropolitan days, inasmuch as it includes a race over the battens, the Craven Plate, in which the best w.f.a. talent is engaged, and the Gimcrack Stakes, a classic contest for two-year-olds, besides the regular handicaps on the flat. The track should be excellent going, and large fields seems assured. The transit arrangements will be similar to those in vogue on the preceding days, and the customary provision has been made for the requirements of visitors in the catering departments.

Proceedings commence at 1 p.m. with the Second Hurdle Race, in which the pride of place has been given to the well-performed Victorian Capintesta, who has been sent up 20lb for his success over the sticks on Saturday, while there is half a mile further to go. He will, however, be suited by the length of the journey, and, despite his impost, he must be very hard to beat. Briarberry, Jack Rice, and Demand seem to be the best of the others, and the places may go to Capintesta, Briarberry, and Jace Rice.

A large field may be expected at the post for the well-endowed Craven Plate, and the most likely to figure prominently in the contest are Gigandra, St. Carwyne, Ventura, St. Spasa, Woorak, and Mountain Knight, and the judge may declare for Woorak, Mountain Knight, and St. Spasa.

With over half a score engaged in the Suburban Handicap a big muster at the post may be expected, and the race wears a very open appearance. The issue may be fought out among Portrush, Willow Green, Royal Laddie, Wirrilla, and Laggard, and the situations may be occupied by Royal Laddie, Laggard, and Willow Green.

Giru, Carlita, Van Biene, and Secret Service, and Sir Reginald should have the settlement of the Members' Handicap among them, and the honours may be divided by Van Biene, Giru, and Carlita.

The Gimcrack Stakes should attract a large field, and an interesting contest among the youngsters may be anticipated. Del Monte has incurred 14lb penalty for her success in the Breeders' Plate, and that should steady her. Of the others, Three Star, Cetigne, Starland, and Chantry should run well, and Cetigne, Starland, and Chantry may pass the post in that order.

Lochano, Ulva's Isle, Moonbria, Kingsburgh, and Pongo read as well as anything in the Sydney Handicap, and Ulva's Isle, Moonbria, and Kingsburgh may command the attention of the judge.

The programme is as under:—

CRICKET.

SEASON OPENS WELL.

FIRST ROUND CONCLUDED.

The opening of the cricket season, as far as the competition matches are concerned, was quite a success. Once again the Eight-hour Holiday was utilised, and the first round thus brought to a conclusion without delay. Form generally was decidedly good. The majority of the pitches on the opening day (Saturday) were more or less damaged by rain, and although in some instances, notably at the Cricket Ground, they played surprisingly well, most of the honours easily fell to bowlers. It is usually expected, of course, with the wickets not in their best trim and the majority of the batsmen short of practice, and by no means sure of their form, that bowlers may reap a rich harvest in wickets. In several instances such was the case on Saturday; indeed, in the case of four bowlers at least the results were somewhat sensational—R. C. Cogan five for 14, J. D. Scott five for 15, P. W. Dive five for 23.

SENSATIONAL BOWLING.

A. J. Hopkins leads the list with the rather startling analysis of twelve for 37, made up of seven for 25, first innings, and five for 14 second innings—six wickets down). The old international thus captured twelve of the sixteen wickets that fell in the course of 16 overs. These figures tell the story of the batsmen's perplexity. Hopkins hit the sticks on only three occasions; it was in the puzzling way he made the ball rise off the pitch that he deceived the majority of the batsmen. Thus no fewer than four were trapped into the well-known c and b indiscretion. One batsman, Clark, was twice dismissed in the same manner. Hopkins could not have been seen to better advantage in his palmiest days.

MIXED MASTERY.

That bowlers did not have matters all their own way on Saturday, however, is shown by the fact that six batsmen exceeded the half century, and one of them, Victor Trumper, ran his total into three figures. It was eminently appropriate for the long-established champion to be the first centurion of the season, especially as the task was one calling for superior skill and tremendous resource. Those characteristics, of course, have always been prominent in Trumper's displays, many of the best of which have been achieved in the face of considerable difficulties. Trumper scored 123 out of the total of 269 (seven of which were not made off the bat)—nearly 50 per cent. Hardly less notworthy in this connection was the 79 made by H. Cranney for Central Cumberland. It fell short of the century distinction, and on that account, perhaps, might easily be overlooked, as regards its special merit, amongst a number of other similar scores. The merit of that score is best seen, however, when a comparison is made with the results of other batsmen in the same match. Cranney's 79 represents one run more then the whole Redfern team had made off the bat on precisely the same wicket, and, lest it might be put down to some special improvement in the pitch, one only needs to mention that it represents also 31 runs more than all his comrades could muster. Twenty-two batsmen were dismissed on the day, and only four besides Cranney reached double figures, with 18 as the highest amongst them. All this makes out Cranney's performance to be a very fine one.

THE BEST WIN.

It placed his side in a winning position, thereby enabling Central Cumberland to register the best victory in the first round. The match eventually resulted in a ten wickets victory, Redfern being well beaten from start to finish. L. W. Pye and his team are to be congratulated on the performance, more especially as it was achieved without the assistance of both Rev. E. F. Waddy and E. L. Waddy. In many quarters there is a disposition always to underestimate the Central Cumberland team, and so it often happens that their best performances engender surprise. On paper, the bowling looks decidedly weak, despite the promise and success of Coogan, but it is always well handled and well backed up by willing fieldsmen, so that the majority of teams do not find run-getting the picnic that is anticipated. The batting looks very uneven, but it certainly contains more than one match-winning element. The team travels long distances, but it does so cheerfully, and enthusiasm counts for much in a club's success.

THE OUTSTANDING CONTEST.

The best match of the round, perhaps, was that between North Sydney and Petersham. Hopkins won the toss for North Sydney, and sent Petersham in to bat first, with the result that when each side had completed an innings Petersham led by 34 runs—quite a substantial lead under the existing conditions. The second essay of Petersham, undertaken in a failing light, began disastrously, six wickets falling for 22 runs (three in the last over of the day), so that at the close of play the first innings' advantage had been nullified in view of the highly probable altered conditions of the second day. The game was resumed under conditions more favourable to batting, and, therefore, to North Sydney, but despite this handicap, Petersham made an excellent fight, and only relinquished the two points gained on the first day in the last quarter of an hour of the second day. North Sydney won the match outright by three wickets (a very narrow margin in the circumstances), with only 15 minutes left for play. The luck of the match certainly favoured the winners, as, in addition to the disadvantages accruing from losing the toss, Petersham had the added misfortune to lose the services of their principal bowler (J. D. Scott), who was unable, through an injury sustained while batting, to bowl more than two overs in the North Sydney second innings. There was nothing specially noteworthy as regards the results of the other matches, in which University, Gordon, and Western Suburbs scored easy first inning's wins; excepting, perhaps, the cessation of play at Wentworth Park, when each side had completed an innings. This does not look like playing the game with the desired enthusiasm, especially at the commencement of the season, even if it is not in direct opposition to the competition rules.

WINNING THE TOSS—AND AFTER.

It is on rain-damaged pitches as a rule in our competition matches that winning the toss carries most advantage. Usually it means sending opponents in to bat first, but not always. There are times when the decision of this point is a very difficult one for a captain, and only after events can really determine whether any particular course adopted was the right one or not. The decision, of course, rests on many existing circumstances. No rules can definitely be laid down regarding the matter. Generally it occasions most comment, however, when the captain winning the toss sends his opponents in, and is beaten in the end. This is often put down to an error of judgment, whereas, as a mater of fact, the side, though beaten, certainly enjoyed some advantage from the conditions. There is always, of course, not only the actual playing conditions to consider, but the important question as to how the various bowlers and batsmen of both sides are likely to be suited by the conditions. It is interesting to note some of the occurrences bearing on this point in the cricket of the week-end. Warren Bardsley won the toss, and sent Gordon in to bat first. Gordon occupied the creases practically all the afternoon, scoring 269 runs. Glebe eventually lost the match. M. A. Noble won the toss, and elected to bat first. Paddington made 82, and dismissed five opponents for 68 during the afternoon. Eventually Paddington easily lost the match on the first innings. Of the two, it would appear that Glebe did enjoy the better playing conditions for its innings, but, no doubt, Warren Bardsley's expectations were frustrated by the ability of Victor Trumper, just as in a lesser degree, perhaps, those of M. A. Noble did not properly materialise, owing to the extra stubborn defence of H. G. Pratten. As events turned out, it might appear that the Paddington captain erred. Then, again, A. J. Hopkins won the toss and sent Petersham in to bat. North Sydney certainly had the better of the playing conditions, but the victory was only a narrow one. As events turned out, Hopkins did the right thing, but had it not been for that sensational last over on the first day the match might well have resulted in a first innings win for Petersham. In all three matches, as events transpired, much depended after all on the second day, for Glebe certainly gained nothing on the first day by sending their opponents in; Paddington lost ground by batting first, and North Sydney actually lost points. This all goes to emphasise that it is not unalloyed joy for even experienced captains to always win the toss, and also how slow we should be to criticise.

OLD FRIENDS IN OLD PLACES.

One of the most pleasing personal features about the play in the first round has been form and the success of well established players. It augurs well for the representative teams for the "old hands" to be in good form so early. Thus we find Victor Trumper showing splendid form. He batted brightly and most entertainingly for two hours on Saturday, hitting sixteen 4's and two 6's, and, though several of his strokes were not entirely free from risk, evidence of his wonted artistry was abundant, as the wicket was in favour of the bowlers. This innings in itself should be a reassuring answer to the oft unspoken query: "What will Trumper's form be this year?"

E. P. Barbour scored the greatest runs in the round—59 and 76 not out—and in doing so batted in capital form. His defence was splendid, watchful and patient in the early stages, and the timing of his scoring strokes very good in the later stages. University comrade, Roy Minnett, also played a very good first innings (74), and together the pair added 110 for the third wicket. In the second innings Barbour, with the assistance of Farrar, put on another century partnership—127 unfinished. W. E. Pite played an excellent second innings of 72 not out for Waverley, including 11 boundary strokes. Always a good club performer, Pite's form in this innings presages a successful season; between wickets there are few smarter runners in grade cricket than Pite. The Waverley match also marked the welcome return to active participation in the game of Hanson Carter, and his form behind the sticks was as convincing as ever. The international wicket-keeper's return to the field is another important adjunct to the State's representative resources.

With the ball, the form and success of A. J. Hopkins, already referred to, are both in keeping with the text of this paragraph. Deserving of special mention in this connection is the success of L. W. Pye in the Redfern second innings (five for 32), to which might also be added two for 21 in the first innings. Pye's record in grade cricket is a long one, of exceptional all-round utility and occasional brilliance far beyond the average.

BUDDING REPUTATIONS.

Amongst the younger men, from the cricket reputation point of view, the early success of T. J. E. Andrews (61 not out), H. G. Pratten (89), H. F. Dupain (60), W. L. Trenerry (65 not out), R. O. Fusedale (82), H. Cranney (79, already referred to), and A. Ratcliffe 64) deserves special mention; whilst to these, of course, should be added the successful debut of L. Gordon (78) for Balmain against Sydney. In several of these instances, the degree of skill shown was particularly pleasing, and of such a quality to mark them out for particular attention during the season. With the ball in this category should be included R. C. Coogan (seven for 50), P. W. Dive (five for 23), and F. C. Winning (six wickets for 68). There is in this list much diversity in the kind of skill displayed, and that variety is not the least interesting feature about it. The last-mentioned, a left-hander, is one of newest recruits to the ranks of first grade prominence.

ROWING.

HEAVY-BOAT CHAMPIONSHIP.

THE AMATEUR SEASON.

Although the inducements held out to scullers to definitely establish a heavy-boat championship of New South Wales were good, the response in the shape of entries is disappointing. The Sculling League has adopted the correct course for the initial event in making it a sweepstake, open to all, and selecting the boats to be used. As long as scullers in subsequent events elect to row races under the League's auspices, the contests are likely to be held under equal conditions. In fact, one condition under which the Percy Marks' trophy is offered, is that the League shall control these races, and any champion or aspirant failing to comply with the conditions shall forfeit any claim on the trophy. One difficulty likely to crop up, however, is the equality of the boats to be used. Under the new rules the League's officials are to be sole judges, and this provision may overcome a lot of the trouble that has generally been experienced in the past where the competitors have agreed to row in equal boats.

Ben Thoroughgood is coming to Sydney from Stockton at his own expense, to compete, but Sid. Pearce, Arthur Pearce, and H. Pickering belong to Sydney. Harry Pearce has retired from the event. No provision is made in the conditions for a visiting sculler in future receiving expenses, but as in the world's and Australian championship races, this is a matter that is mutually agreed upon by the rival scullers.

A. D. Felton and R. Ford are not expected to meet for another week to discuss their proposed match for £200 a side on the Richmond River. Felton may have some difficulty in securing the necessary backing to row in the north, and the same applies to Ford if Felton insists on the race being decided at Sydney. Meanwhile no other matches are even being spoken of.

Writing from London to a friend in Sydney just previous to the Barry-Paddon race on the Thames, Mr Harry Floyd, the well-known Sydney sculling enthusiast, says:—"From what I can see of Paddon's rowing I think he has altered his rigging since he was sculling so well on the Parramatta River. He certainly appears to be sitting lower in his boat. This is what I thought was likely to happen. He does not seem to be able to get his power on to the sculls properly, and has dropped back into some of his old faults. He is not rowing as well as when he defeated Arnst at Sydney. I also saw him at work on the Thames when there was some traffic on the river, and he did not shape at all well, and this under conditions in which the race will probably be rowed. In fact, Syd. Kemp appeared to hold him for two miles. His form would assuredly not have satisfied me. I saw Barry on very fair water, but he does not impress me as far as his pace goes, and he would have to make up a lot as a great stayer to beat a good sculler."

The outlook for the remainder of the amateur rowing season is not nearly as bright as it was when the regatta fixtures were allotted some time ago. The first three fixtures of the season have been abandoned, and the clubs are beginning to feel the strain. In view of the existing circumstances, it is a question whether it would not be advisable to abandon the competitions for the championships—State and Commonwealth. In some quarters the idea finds strong advocates, and it is quite possible that a move in this direction will be made to test the feeling of the association at its monthly meeting, to be held next week.

With regard to interstate rowing, it is known that a number of prominent oarsmen have offered their services for sterner purposes in their respective States, and the rowing strength for interstate representation has been greatly affected. Queensland will have charge of the next interstate contests, and, although it is rather early to move in the matter, it would be just as well to have an understanding as to whether the contests will be adhered to or not. Western Australia has already signified her intention of abandoning the State competitions for the season, and will not be a competitor in the Commonwealth championships, which will be held in Queensland in May next. Apart from the difficulty the States will have in organising strong representative crews, the financial strain will be more than some of the States will be able to stand. These reasons, in themselves, would, in ordinary circumstances, justify the abandonment of the fixtures for this year.

The five crews in training for the Champion Fours, which will take place on the Parramatta River on Saturday week, took advantage of the week-end holiday to indulge in useful practice rows. All seem satisfied with long, steady rows, and are fairly evenly matched, but no doubt the next ten days will be devoted to faster work.

LAWN TENNIS.

ENGLISH TOURNAMENTS.

An indication of the calm manner in which Englishmen are acting, notwithstanding the war, is afforded by the latest files to hand, which show that many tournaments were in progress during the early weeks of August, and, although some had been immediately cancelled when the war broke out, the general impression was that their abandonment had been made too hastily.

On the matter of continuing sport during the European conflict, the "Field" was emphatic that no general cessation should take place. "Those who are not in the fighting line," it says "(and they will grow fewer every week), have to keep the ordinary life of the nation in steady continuance. It will be not only legitimate and natural, but it will be right, that they should keep in sound health of mind and body by reasonable recreation of every ordinary kind. Sport has made many of our best sailors and soldiers better in their warlike trade. Sport can also keep fit and ready those who may in the end be either called in to the last desperate stand or ordained to supervise incessantly those wheels of life and industry which no community can afford to let run down." It was considerations such as these that determined those in charge of lawn tennis affairs in Australia to proceed with the usual competitions, although the first impulse was to suspend them.

The winner of the open singles at Kidderminster (Eng.) was H. G. Bache, who is reputed to have cultivated a two-handed backhand stroke to a high degree of efficiency. It is to be hoped that his success will not induce any others to endeavour to acquire this stroke.

W. A. Larned, the many times representative of the United States, was appointed foot-fault judge. This, according to "American Lawn Tennis," led one spectator to inquire: "Why does that man walk up and down the court?" To which the reply was: "Oh, that is Larned, the old champion. He is so excited that he cannot sit still."

The right to hold the Australasian championships having been allotted to the Lawn Tennis Association of Victoria this year, it has been arranged that the events shall begin in Melbourne on November 23.

BOWLING.

NEW ZEALAND V AUSTRALIA.

Mr. George Munro, secretary of the A.B.C., sends official intimation that a rubber between New Zealand and Australia has been arranged to take place immediately after the carnival at Easter. Nominations will be called for later on, and the team to represent Australia will be chosen by the council when it meets in Sydney. Should European events so shape themselves as to permit of the carnival, and New Zealand be worthily represented, this rubber will probably provide the highest class of play seen in Sydney for many years.

Mr. W. E. Clapin has been prominently identified with the Marrickville club since its inception. He has represented it without interval as delegate to the association, and from both a playing and social standpoint has been a tower of strength. Therefore, his departure from the district to take up residence in Burwood causes considerable regret to his old comrades, and on Saturday evening the club entertained him at a farewell dinner in the pavilion. Mr. James Wall, president, Dr. Bruce, vice-president, and Messrs. A. McCoy and Brown, gave expression to the general esteem in which Mr. Clapin was held. A handsome silver salver, appropriately inscribed, was handed to Mr. Clapin by the president on behalf of the members. Throughout the evening the utmost enthusiasm prevailed, and quite naturally took a patriotic turn. One member sent along a collie dog for auction sale in aid of the Marrickville club's contribution to the war fund. It realised £8, the guest of the evening acting as auctioneer. President Wall then took the rostrum with a charming little piece of handicraft in the shape of a bowl-carrier. It was very much admired, the poetic design rivalling in the estimation of bidders the delicate intricacy of its execution. It was secured cheaply at £18. The occasion, therefore, was of national utility, as well as of complimentary significance, and will long remain a bright spot in the history of this harmonious club. In passing, it may be mentioned that Mr. Clapin is one of few delegates who have served under every president from John Young to John Spence.

A meeting of the State Association will be held to-morrow evening, when the method of play and number of rinks in the pennant "B" and "C" competitions will be decided upon. The pennant and selection committees for the coming season will also be appointed.

The Mudgee club, one of the State's fledgelings, has forwarded an invitation to President Spence to visit them with a team. Probably three rinks will play a match there on either October 17 or 24, leaving town on Friday night at 10 o'clock and returning on Sunday morning early.

Mr. R. A. Bell, vice-president of the New South Wales Association, and Mr. Leslie Arnott, of Newcastle fame, are passengers from England by the Osterley, which is expected to reach Sydney to-morrow. Bowlers will accord them both a hearty welcome after their sensational travels abroad.

The Hill trophy at Marrickville was won by Woolford after a splendid match with Whitelaw, in which the fortune of play vacillated in exciting fashion. Give-and-take play was the order in the early stages, but the scores were level at 20. Whitelaw then ran to 27—20, but his opponent hung on doggedly, netting a "full hand" in the final end, and winning meritoriously by 33—30.

Kennon figures prominently in the annual tournaments of the City club, and on Saturday he and President Sutton (5 on) defeated Charles Thorpe and W. Alderson (scr.) in the final of the Vice-presidents' Trophy by 21 to 16. In the semi-final of the President's prize Kennon (2 behind) defeated Bromwich (8 behind) 33—19. Kennon will meet Hector Ross, who, bowlers generally will regret to hear, has been seriously ill.

A keen and capable player in Glacken had his reward on Saturday, when he captured the president's trophy in the North Sydney club after two hard concluding contests. Wiseheart fell to him in the semi-final by 21-16, and Rogers in the final by 21-17.

The final of the City Club Championship had been long postponed on account of the illness of the popular Peter Anderson. It was necessary to settle it forthwith, as the green was scarified yesterday preparatory to the annual top-dressing. On Monday afternoon, therefore, the finalists met, and the result was an easy win for Widerstrom. The scores by no means reflect the relative merits of the two players, as the loser is still unfit from a health standpoint, but Widerstrom's victory is additional evidence, if such were needed, of his remarkable capacity as a four-bowl player. No bowler in Sydney has won so many championships during the past eight years as this exponent of the delicate art of drawing the shot.

MOTOR CYCLING.

GRAND PRIX CARNIVAL.

The official result of Monday's Grand Prix race of 140 miles over the Sunny Corner-Meadow Lee-Yetholme course, announced yesterday by the Motor Cycle Club of New South Wales, makes some alteration in the placing of the riders as originally announced. Norman Sinden (3½ h.p. Zenith) moves into third position, with J. Meller (6 h.p. Matchless) fourth, D. Cullen (5 h.p. Matchless) fifth, and J. A. Fair (6 h.p. Zenith) sixth.

Of the 23 starters only nine finished, the majority being put out of the running by punctures. E. Meller, the winner, established a non-stop run. Norman Sinden found it necessary in the fourth lap to remove his back wheel, but the delay only amounted to a few minutes. A broken belt robbed D. Cullen of high honours in the last lap, the repair being made more irksome owing to the beltfastener becoming disconnected and lost in the dust. Otherwise the race was without incident.

The course, which, despite a number of sharp turns, was in excellent order, measured, approximately, 15½ miles, making a total of nine laps for the 140 miles. The starting and finishing point was at "Kirkconnell," a road junction 2½ miles from Yetholme. The turn to the left was taken. The road rose gradually to Sunny Corner (6 miles), followed the dividing range, and then, at the eight-mile peg, fell towards Meadow Lee. There was a bad right-handed turn in the village which brought the riders into the third side of the course, a fast stretch of 4½ miles. The weather conditions were perfect, and the authorities of the district so taken with the sport and the appearance of 200 motor-cyclists in their midst, that the club is assured of a hearty welcome next year. In fact, assurances were given of an improved road surface, the dangers of the racing being largely contributed from this cause.

The following was the result:—

E. Meller (2¾ h.p. Douglas), handicap 15m 30s riding time 3h 21m 48s	1
D. McFarland (5 h.p. Matchless), handicap 15m 15s, riding time 3h 32m 55s	2
Norman Sinden (3½ h.p. Zenith), handicap 18m, riding time 3h 48m 30s	3
J. Meller (6 h.p. Matchless), handicap 11m 30s, riding time 3h 45m 42s	4
D. Cullen (5 h.p. Matchless), handicap 11m 45s, riding time 3h 48m 15s	5
J. A. Fair (6 h.p. Zenith), handicap 14m 30s, riding time 3h 51m 30s	6
A. Robinson (3½ h.p. Rover), handicap 15m, riding time 4h	7

The fastest laps were established by the following:—

T. W. Green (lap 1)	20m 8s
J. F. Howarth (lap 2)	20m 10s
J. F. Howarth (lap 3)	20m 21s

The first prize was the Dunlop Plate, valued at £10 10s, with a £3 3s open order, presented by the club, while the second and third men received £7 7s and £5 5s open orders respectively. There were also a large number of special prizes.

CYCLING.

EIGHT-HOUR CARNIVAL.

INTERESTING EVENTS.

Monday's cycle racing at the Agricultural Ground was admittedly the best day's sport ever witnessed in connection with the annual Eight-hour Day carnival. The finishes were close, the track was good, and there was a general absence of collusion and teaming among the riders, which, in the past, have done so much to injure the sport. Both the amateur and professional bodies took the meeting as a suitable opportunity for officially opening their track-racing seasons, and the roll up of cycling enthusiasts was more than satisfactory, and augurs well for the summer prospects of both codes.

In the amateur events, it was J. M. Keen's "day out." He won the 1½m event from the 90yds mark in 3m 21s; finished second in the ½m event; and was placed third in the mile scratch race, being only six inches behind Stanley Burtinshaw, the winner, in one of the most desperate finishes seen for some time. Of late Keen has proved himself to be a first-class "all-rounder." He started the road season by securing third place in the open Picton-to-Ashfield race; he was a member of the speedy Enfield-Burwood team which won the annual interclub premiership competition, and the honours of the annual Speedwell "Fifty"—the race of the year—were his by establishing fastest time and securing third place against a very strong combination.

H. Buden (70yds), of the City Club, who won the ½m event in 1m 1s, has also been riding consistently, and was shaping well in the 1½m event when he became entangled with M'Mahon, of Manly. Both riders fell heavily, and were badly shaken. It was, indeed, the only untoward incident during the day.

The mile scratch race, as has been intimated, provided the most sensational finish of the day, and the fine efforts of Halpin, Keen, and Patrick to overhaul Burtinshaw were greatly appreciated by the crowd. In the last lap (there were four) Patrick led out at the bell, with Burtinshaw on his wheel. The champion got busy in the back straight, and took the lead, but Patrick and the other pair, who were close up, challenged him again, and they came down the straight in a bunch; Burtinshaw, perhaps, half a wheel to the good. When they crossed the line only the judges could separate them.

The Eight-Hour Wheel Race, for prizes amounting to £50, was, of course, the "star" event on the League's programme. This year it was divided among the long-markers, and distributed well over the State: T. Cannon, the winner, coming from Ashfield, R. G. Honeyman from Bathurst, R. G. Gray, Casino, and F. Kennedy, the fourth man, from Parramatta. The new administration of the League, therefore, has had good effect, and the more country riders are seen competing and winning at these big metropolitan meetings, the better it will be for the sport.

There was a large field for the five-miles scratch race, and at times a spill looked imminent, but League riders are nothing if not skilful when riding in a bunch, and the pace, stimulated no doubt by the generous lap prizes, was at times a "cracker." Unfortunately, the timekeeper overlooked the start, an oversight almost as bad as that credited to the winner of the boys' race, who left the ground before the judges could ascertain his name. W. F. Roebuck, another Ashfield clubman, was the winner of the mile handicap, and it was quite evident that both the Ashfield and South Sydney riders had profited immensely by their recent carnivals at Pratten Park.

THE LEAGUE DISQUALIFICATIONS.

The secretary of the South Sydney Club (Mr. M. Edwards) states that the fines imposed by the League have been paid under protest. The club considers that its members were duly registered at the Pratten Park meeting, as the necessary fees were collected from them before they were allowed on the track, although it is admitted that certificates had not been endorsed by the League secretary.

ATHLETICS.

SOUTH SYDNEY BAND CARNIVAL.

EIGHT-HOUR DAY SPORTS.

The members of the South Sydney Band held their carnival at the Sports Ground on Saturday afternoon. A percentage of the takings will be presented to the Patriotic Fund. The programme was a long and interesting one. Members of the N.S.W. Athletic League and of the amateur clubs, South Sydney, Redfern, Botany, and Mozart Juvenile Harriers, were catered for, and the Pioneer Ladies' Association decided two handicaps. In the professionals' final A. E. Glanville (9yds) won a splendid race from A. L. Pinch (4½yds) and E. E. Muldoon (8yds), in the fast time of 9 3-5s for 100yds. The South Sydney Harriers' event was a 120yds handicap, and H. D. Hinchy won by inches from J. F. Bradley (scr) and M. J. M'Carthy (4yds), in 12s. Four timekeepers were at the finish, and some of them made the time 11 4-5s. The other events were keenly contested.

The official opening of the track and field season took place on Monday, at the Eight-hour Day sports. Comparisons cannot be made with last year's racing in events run on the circular track, as it was apparently short. The amateur events were not well supported. G. E. Hansel (East Sydney), with a handicap of 6yds, experienced no difficulty in winning the 120yds handicap in 12s. The 440yds handicap final proved a good race although shorn of a great deal of interest by reason of J. F. Bradley's absence, owing to a strained knee. R. P. Warner (East Sydney) displayed great judgment in winning from F. C. Madeley (5yds) and J. H. Wicks (20yds). The time was given as 50 1-5s. W. J. Potter (Redfern Harriers), with an allowance of 1½in, won the running high jump handicap, registering 5ft 9½in. The winner, made an attempt upon the New South Wales record of 6ft, but just failed, after having the bar placed at 6ft 0½in. The 120yds hurdles handicap proved a good race, C. W. Jackson (East Sydney) winning from the limit mark in 18 1-5s. C. E. Griffiths (owes 4yds), and J. W. Frazer (owes 20yds), filled the places. A great race was witnessed in the one mile walk handicap, S. Sheaves (South Sydney Harriers, 25s), H. Winters (35s), and H. T. Dent (7s) filling the places. The lastnamed made a great effort over the concluding stages. J. M. Abel (45yds) won the mile handicap from T. Frazer (55yds) and W. H. Lodge (40yds). The time given in this race was 4m 26¼s.

Nominations are due next Saturday for all New South Wales Athletic League events to be decided at Daunt's carnival at the Sydney Sports Ground on the 19th and 20th inst.

FOOTBALL.

THE ASSOCIATION GAME.

GRANVILLE'S SUCCESS.

Granville added another victory to their already long series on Saturday, when they defeated a metropolitan eleven. The season has been rather protracted, but the enthusiasm of the players is all the more evident by their turning out in full force so late in the year. Of the 12 players who have represented Granville this season, half are native-born, and three of them have played at different times for New South Wales. Moore and Hilder are the veterans of the team, although their displays have been so uniformly satisfactory that they should be seen on the football field for some years to come. Moore is one of three players who have represented New South Wales in the matches—the greatest number in which any one footballer has taken part. The other two are Carroll and A. Jones.

SOME BRIEF BIOGRAPHIES.

The following particulars regarding the players in the Granville team will no doubt be read with interest:—

GRANVILLE.

E. Mobbs (goalkeeper), 22 years of age; weight, 12.3; height, 5ft 11in; born at Carlingford, N.S.W.; has played with Granville since 1910, and was formerly a junior in the Eastwood Merry Farmers.

L. Gill (back), 21 years of age; weight, 11.0; height, 5ft 11½in; born at Granville, N.S.W., has been two years with Granville; previously played with Helroyd and Auburn District; has represented the State against Victoria.

E. Doherty (back), 27 years of age; weight, 11.5; height, 5ft 8in; born in County Donegal, Ireland; has only been a few months in this State; played with Subiaco in Western Australia; and trained in Scotland with Partick Thistle Reserves.

R. H. SWIMMING.

ANNUAL MEETINGS.

The Sydney Club has instructed its committee to place events partaking of a life-saving nature on the syllabus for the season. Only members who have gained the Royal Life Saving Society's certificate will be permitted to compete in such events. This practically ensures that those members of the club who have not already done so will qualify for the award within the next few months. The club, jealous of its prestige in all branches of the sport, was displeased because very few certificates were gained last year, and, even allowing for the number who had already been enrolled by the society, more attention should have been paid to this very useful department. The example set by the Sydney Club might well be followed by the other clubs, as there are well-known and capable swimmers who would fail in the simplest of rescues, and there are even more who would not be able to resuscitate an apparently drowned person after a rescue.

Probably no club has made greater strides in recent years than Manly, and the report to be submitted to the annual meeting to-morrow evening shows that last year was easily a record. The club not only secured second position in the premiership, but the winning of the diving honours, and also securing places in sprint and distance championships, were achievements entirely new to it. The membership (163) is the highest of any metropolitan club, and the fact that in one race alone 116 entries were received shows clearly that the majority of the members are active.

The Queensland Swimming Association has not been in its present sound position for some time. As a result of the success attending the Australian championship meeting last season £135 7s 8d was carried into the general funds as profit on that fixture. However, the most pleasing feature of the year was the fact that the general funds were not depleted to any extent, and altogether £145 3s 4d is carried forward to commence the new year. The Q.A.S.A. is inviting applications from all its country centres for visits from Kahanamoku during his tour of the northern State.

The New Zealand association has confirmed its cable to Mr. Hill regarding the visit of D. P. Kahanamoku. Although a large number of Dominion swimmers have enlisted, unless something untoward happens, it is expected that the public will heartily support the tour of the Hawaiian.

The 23rd annual meeting of the New South Wales Swimming Association will be held to-morrow evening at the Sports Club. The annual report shows a loss on the year's working. Still, the balance to the credit of the association stands at £108 6s 10d, but it is clear that a saving must be effected in the expenditure during the forthcoming season. The membership in the city has increased by two clubs and forty-seven swimmers, and there has also been an increase in school clubs. However, country affiliations have dropped from nine to six. Encouragement was given to country and distance swimming; and an Olympic carnival, which was held at Parramatta, with the co-operation of the citizens' committee, resulted in £100 being voted to the Olympic Games Representation Fund.

"CUPBOARDS!"

"Cupboards" is a title, and is worn with pride as a badge of honourable office. At the Town Hall Sewing Room, where the busy machines are whirring all day long, the cry "Cupboards!" is frequent, and in answer it brings an energetic person whose duty it is to look over the finished garment, snip off a thread here, a loose end there, tug at a button to test its resisting capabilities, then, finally, to fold and smooth the shirt with sundry little pats as if to convey the sympathy of the workers along with the garment, and place it neatly in its place in the cupboard. Sometimes it needs a strong shove to squeeze it in among the other shirts and pyjamas, for the machines whir very fast, and the shelf does not take long to be filled. But it is periodically emptied, and the goods are sent away down to the basement, and the cupboard yawns widely for more.

"Will you please come and interview a cupboard?" came a request over the telephone from Mrs. Ashton, who, with the Lady Mayoress and Mrs. Hughes, is in charge at the Town Hall every day. The request was enticing, and was at once granted.

It was a piece of furniture, not the official, which was examined by the interviewer, and the result was something in the nature of a revelation of what our women can do when they really "get busy" at anything that they put their whole soul into, as they do into this.

A grey flannel shirt is shown. The work is quite professional. "Look at that gusset," says the exhibitor proudly. "It is perfectly tailored, isn't it?" The lady who made that has never missed a day since the rooms were opened, but gives some of her time each day to machining these grey flannel shirts.

At this sewing circle they are making up quantities of pyjamas in the grey flannel the same as for the shirts. They make these sleeping suits most carefully, and put in gussets for extra strength, though in ordinary slop-made pyjamas these gussets are seldom seen. But at the Town Hall the motto is "What is worth doing is worth doing well," even to sewing on the lettered tag, without which no garment is considered complete.

"Cupboards" in her rounds swoops up many dozens of cholera belts fashioned in this workroom, of flannel, with a lining of dowlas, which, although Sir John Falstaff did not like it, is, one finds, a most useful material for present-day needs, and composes a stiff "innards" for the belt, preventing it from rucking uncomfortably; these belts are scammed very close indeed to the edge of the flannel, as they do not bind them with tape here.

A busy woman just now is Miss Forbes, of Singer's, whose name is fast becoming a household word wherever any women are gathered together to sew for the troops. Miss Forbes attends to the machines, goes from one to the other if anything goes wrong, if the bobbin holder sticks fast, or if the tension gets too loose. Some women can sew till further orders, but let the slightest thing go wrong with the machine itself, they show all the proverbial inexpertness of their sex where machinery is concerned. Hence the usefulness of Miss Forbes. But, one hastens to add, there are women who use a sewing machine for months without putting the slightest part out of gear, without even breaking a needle; and if any oiling or screw driving be necessary they perform these feats themselves, even to replacing a broken tension-catch with an ingenious arrangement of wire from the neck of a porter bottle. All these "little ways" of machines and machinists are discussed at the sewing circles. Because you do not suppose that all these cheery women sit at their work in perfect silence, do you? Oh, dear no. The family parties go to the Town Hall to sew. A mother and two daughters are constant, and untiring workers. Then two sisters will attend, and so on. Variety is the spice of life even in wartime. Many women are so keen on working that they go to the Town Hall one day, the Belgian depot another, and so do the rounds. They are welcome at all, and the work all goes the same way in the long run. Whatever a woman does in this way now, she is doing for her country. The mere phrase is so heart-stirring that it ennobles the task. The woman who attends to the machines, the woman who packs away in the cupboards, they both are taking their share as truly as the rich donor who can subscribe thousands to the funds without feeling the loss in the slightest.

MELBOURNE NOTES.

Lady Helen Munro Ferguson, Sir Arthur Stanley, and Lady Stanley attended the annual meeting of the Victoria League. Mrs. Henry Cave, acting hon. secretary, detailed the work of the sectional committees throughout the year. The art committee has sent out pictures for the exchange system to various country schools, and has arranged for exhibiting the collection of Medici prints in five different cities. The literature committee sent out 24 libraries to State schools in isolated parts, and four bush libraries, as well as 10 supplementary parcels of books to bush librarians; also a quantity of reading matter to lighthousemen and seamen. The newspaper and magazine committee have not lagged behind in the good work of collecting and distributing.

The first Bush Nursing Association Conference was recently held in the Town Hall. Forty-two delegates were present. The centres in which bush nurses are installed are controlled by local committees. Though nurses have been installed at twenty centres, it is admitted that the bush-nursing movement is yet in its infancy. Mr. T. Livingstone, Minister of Education, and Mr. F. Tate, Director of Education, when speaking at the conference, expressed the view that this scheme will probably become an important factor in decentralisation. The first subject discussed at the conference was possible means of raising money to appoint a second relieving nurse, so that bush nurses could be given their three weeks' holiday.

Members of the Young Women's Christian Association celebrated "Association Evening" last week in an interesting fashion. Girls in charge of the various clubs and departments gave an outline of their work by means of three-minute speeches. Thus, an opportunity was afforded to all girls to become acquainted with each other's work and play in the association. After the formalities the chair-woman of each committee entered the main hall surrounded by her workers decorated with distinguishing colours. Fourteen girls spoke on behalf of departmental work, and seven recreation clubs were represented. Lady Helen Munro Ferguson witnessed the demonstration; girls dressed in white, with ribbon favours, formed a guard of honour on her arrival.

VERONICA.

FASHION AS SHE IS.

DRESS AT THE RACES.

The dress question, where the toilettes for the races is concerned is always a most important one. We cannot escape from the influence of the spring meetings, even if we would, for the fashions worn are always significant of what we shall see during the next few months. Many of the dresses seen on Saturday and Monday were very beautiful. In most instances they were free from eccentricity, and every detail was studied. Taffeta silks and beautiful muslins and voiles are decidedly the modes of the year. I must not omit the dainty flowered and figured Pompadours material. It is some time since the fabric, quite reminiscent of the days of hoops and patches, came back to favour. Once having been revived, not even the vagaries of Madame la Mode will suffice to drum it out of our dress schemes altogether, so attached have we become to the pretty and rather frivolous patterns of the eighteenth century. In some instances the flowered fabric is veiled with some other material in a strong tint, which not only gives it a charming effect, but redeems the scheme from any danger of its developing into a species of what is known as a "bonbon" box toilette. In fact, the effect of richness and luxury in many of our present-day toilettes is one not to be forgotten. But on the whole the effect is sober in colouring and soft in line.

Among the many delightful gowns the taffeta frock takes first rank. A charming example was fashioned of navy taffeta. The skirt was decorated with three tiers; each tier was scalloped at the base, and made with a pivot edge. The bodice was simplicity itself. It was carried out in navy ninon, veiling the taffeta; the outlines of the low shoulder seams formed a sort of yoke at the back, while folds of the soft ninon outlined the open front. A dainty little wired collar of soft creamy lace stood out on either side at the back. The soft lace helped to soften the scooped out front of the bodice. A touch of colour was given to the frock by a wide sash of a becoming crushed strawberry moire silk. It was tied in a large flat bow in front. The sleeves were long to the wrist, and were finished with ruches of the lace. One of the new capes was worn with this toilette. It was also carried out in the navy taffeta, being much longer behind than in the front. Two or three narrow frills helped to trim the cape.

Another fascinating garment was in a soft mohair silk crepe. The skirt was made with an overdress, cut across it in a kind of bias line; it was buttoned to the skirt with buttons to match the colour of the gown. The coat was rather short in front, and was cut out in an oblong shape over a crossed waistcoat of a Roman striped silk. The same striped silk formed a wide turnover collar. A rather quaint touch was given to the basque of the coat; it was cut away at the back and front, and only seen on the sides.

A novel example for race wear was carried out in the new striped skirt; these striped skirts have rather an air of quaintness about them. In this instance, a navy blue taffeta coat relieved the skirt; the coat was trimmed with lapels of the striped material, and was opened over a crossed waistcoat of white pique, tiny kiltings of the navy taffeta edging the waistcoat. The basque was cut up to suggest a panel effect, the kilting of taffeta trimming the edge. The cuffs of the coat were finished with folded cuffs of the white pique. The effect of the whole was simple and up to date.

A black and white scheme is always a noticeable feature at the race meetings. In fact, in many instances, they look their best among the many coloured gowns. A charming idea was seen in one of the fashionable plaid silks in grey, black, and white. A long black taffeta tunic, rather closely kilted, was fastened with white porcelain buttons half way down the front. The basque on the coat was cut in a frill behind. A dainty white muslin sailor collar, folding over a black taffeta one, helped to trim the coat. The cuffs were carried out in the same way. The cape worn with this costume was gathered at the back, under a kind of yoke, the seam of the yoke was seen running down one side of the sleeves, and wide crossed ends were in the front of the cape. The collar was up-standing and turned back.

Many of the capes worn with the dainty frocks are charming. They are in different colours. In most instances, they match the costume. They are certainly ideal wear when worn with a frock of to-day. Among the many gowns for race wear, soft voiles and muslins are noticed. A touch of colour is given to the gown, by the waist swathing. A fascinating sash is one carried out in three shades of green in a taffeta silk, chartreuse, almond, and cypress green.

The net toilette is a pretty change. Anything lighter and cooler is hard to find. In one instance, the skirt was trimmed with flounces of lace, the frock was conspicuous for its long tunic, which was gauged and hemstitched at the top. The neck was V shape. The bodice had a little frill of net and lace cascading down the front, while into the folds was tucked a dainty bunch of flowers.

Tailor-mades are always a necessity for race meetings, especially on dull days. This season the tailor suit has achieved quite a popularity. I noticed some charming examples in the new bolero effect. The Magyar coat with turned-back revers, and supplemented with a Napoleon collar opened over a very smart little vest of coloured silk. The back of the coat was cut to a smart point, and at the waistline a belt of the same material was finished with a pearl button. Other suits, plainer in style and smartly cut, also had a place among the many kinds of toilettes. Originality played a decided part among the tailor suits. There were two very important features in the millinery. One of these was the bright "Belgian" straw hat, with its fine plait and glossy surface. The other was the new make of waxed of "glisere" satin ribbon that looks so much like macintosh. It is rather odd-looking ribbon for trimming purposes. This waxed ribbon decorates many of the bright straws. I certainly cannot see anything pretty in it, for thin people it seems fatal wear. Moire ribbon is infinitely preferable. On the other hand, this waxed ribbon has the power of lighting up the hat, especially when it is the only trimming it gives the hat a certain air of smartness.

There were many whims and fancies in the millinery world. The flat cockade was seen on some of the new models. It was popular for trimming the little high-crowned hat, one or two narrow bands of moire or the new shiny waxed ribbon also helping to trim the hat. The cockade was set out from the hat in an abandoned manner. Small wings were also a feature for hat decoration. They were set at any angle. The dead white hat ran the gauntlet; in most instances it was in the sailor shape, and simply trimmed with either wings, white leaves, flowers, or ribbon. As an alternative to this hat was the headgear in the "Dolly Varden" shape. In other instances the hat was made of one platter of fine straw, doubled flat on the top; a trimming of dainty flowers and ribbon was in the space between the two plate edges. Another plateau shape was bent to resemble a small mushroom shape. A wreath of becoming moss roses and leaves trimmed this special hat. Ribbon trimming was another feature among the millinery.

Among the many dress items for race wear is the parasol. In most instances these adjuncts to the modern gown are very charming. They are seen in different shapes—some look somewhat like a Japanese parasol, only smaller; in other instances they seem almost square in shape. Then, again, they are very much drooped out. A dainty touch was given to a black chiffon, edged with the new waxed ribbon. A becoming coloured rose was daintily worked on the chiffon. Kilted ruchings are seen trimming many. Bows to match the parasol help to decorate the handle. A novel idea is to trim the handle with a pretty bunch of artificial flowers. They give a dainty finish to the parasol.

MARCELLE.

MUSIC OF THE MOMENT.

At some suburban picture shows the words of the now celebrated "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" are nightly thrown on the screen and the audience, led by the tiny orchestra, sing with vigour the enticing lilt. It gives a "vent" to the feelings, just as the "Marseillaise" gave a vent to the almost inexpressible feelings of a nation at war. Of all the patriotic songs now heard on all sides, the "Marseillaise," be it said, is by far the most popular. One gets an almost comic sense of the incongruous when a small Sydney boy clad in a navy sweater and short knickers comes briskly along the street whistling the strain (as he invariably is whistling it) through his juvenile lips. It is a livelier air than "God Save the King," and perhaps appeals more on that score. "Tipperary" is in another class, but it now takes its stand among the immortal songs, like "Lilliburlero" or "Yankee Doodle" or the "Shan Van Vocht." These songs have hardly any meaning except what is put into them from outside. Their associations make them historical.

"What music is most in demand just now?" the librarian at the Pianola lending library was asked, and his reply showed the unmistakable swing of popular taste.

"We have not enough patriotic airs to supply the demand," he said; "our subscribers seem to want any and every air that bears on the present situation, except German airs. We have one hundred requests for the 'Marseillaise' and 'Rule Britannia' now where either would only have been asked for once a few months ago. There are dozens of 'collections' of national airs, with 'The Watch on the Rhine' included in them, but our subscribers do not want them. Besides patriotic airs, the public taste runs in ragtime and two-steps. The craze for 'rags' is just as keen as ever. Comic operas and musical comedies have their day, and as each comes into notice the demand for it is great. Naturally, the lighter and less worthy music is the most sought after, but I notice that the more music the subscribers play, the better is the quality. The taste improves. The public is really fond of music. For the moment, however, patriotism sweeps all before it, and the noble airs which express it in musical form are in strong demand."

NEAR AND FAR.

On Thursday there was placed in the chapel of Moore College, and dedicated by the Archbishop, a beautiful piece of work in the shape of an altar table in carved oak. The table is 6ft long, carrying a design of grapes and leaves, the centre panel bearing the letters "I.H.S." The design is by Miss Kathleen Willes, of Pymble, and the carving, also by Miss K. Willes and Miss Ettie Richie, of Bexley. Both are students at the Sydney Technical College, where they commenced their studies under Miss Ruth Bannister, and are now studying under Miss Young.

To meet the growing distress among educated women workers now out of employment in England, the Women's Emergency Corps has established an industrial branch. The classes reached include typists, actresses, and educated shop girls. The corps owes its origin to Miss Eva Moore, Miss Decima Moore, Miss Lena Ashwell, and some other well-known members of the theatrical profession.

A pathetic account is given by Frances Keyzer in the "Westminster Gazette" of the "Cantines Maternelles," where food is dispensed twice a day to prospective mothers without question. In these cantines wealthy Parisiennes are spending their days, not only serving the women who wearily push open the door and wearily drop into the nearest seat on the bench before the long wooden table, but helping to prepare the hundreds of meals consumed, encouraging and consoling the future mothers. The coming generation must be saved at any cost. It is no longer solely a question of humanity. The male population left in France now only consists of boys under 17, men over 50, and others of all ages physically unsound.

A RED CROSS DIRECTOR.

At the head of the Red Cross movement in the United States of America is a modest and unassuming woman, who, by means of her amazing ability, untiring industry, and wonderful executive work, virtually lays a healing hand on every suffering body, broken or afflicted by sudden disaster in any part of her country. In a little shabby, curtainless room in the War Department at Washington Miss Mabel Boardman works from dawn till dark, receiving not a penny of salary, for she is herself a very wealthy woman, and is much sought after socially. Day and night she devotes her time and means to keeping the great machinery of her organisation in perfect working order.

The President of the United States is, ex officio, the president of this society, and the names of many men well known in the commercial and political world, figure on its list of officers; but Miss Boardman is the mainspring and the driving wheel of this, the greatest relief association in the United States.

Before she took it in hand its main work was to send nurses and aid to soldiers wounded in battle, but she has marvellously widened this field; and during the awful floods which ravaged the States of Ohio and Indiana, she took personal charge of the Red Cross efforts to neutralise the effects of the destroying waters.

Like a spider in her web, she sits in her little room day by day, avoiding and disliking all personal advertisement, but well known and well loved.

She is distinguished not only by her wonderful executive work, but by the marvellous manner in which she raises money whenever the funds of the society need it, perhaps on short notice, for some specific purpose.

Not for her the hard task of writing begging letters or seeking difficult interviews with elusive millionaires. She is personally acquainted with the great politicians and prominent financiers of her country, and she merely asks them to call on her at her hotel; and the proof of her efficiency lies in the facts that they always come, and with unfailing regularity raise for her the fund which she demonstrates as necessary for the Red Cross Society's work.

A FLYLESS CITY.

Dr. Jean Dawson, of Cleveland, U.S.A., was determined to rid her town of flies (for well she knew how they spread disease), so she offered 10 cents per hundred for dead flies. The astonishing number of 500,000 flies were brought in by the children in a very short time. One boy killed from cellar to garret 800 flies, received his 80 cents, and prepared himself again for the fray. Dr. Jean Dawson first organised the children into groups, battalions, and brigades, and called them the "junior sanitary police." These divisions had their different districts to work in. They visited houses, shops, backyards, where lumber, filth, and stagnant water encouraged the flies, and either cleaned them or appealed to the owners to do so. They began to feel that flies and dirt were a disgrace to their homes and lanes. Their parents encouraged by the children, soon began to dislike dirt and flies, too, and so fell under the spell of cleanliness.

The girls, too, had streets assigned to them, and in pairs entered the stores, markets, butchers' shops, and restaurants, and made a note on a report slip of the number of flies counted in three minutes' time. If more than three flies were counted in three minutes the manager was requested to allow the employees to stop work and kill the flies. Those not having traps were asked to provide them. If these places refused to help they were noted and tabooed.

Traps, poison dishes, and the clearing up of refuse became so thorough that there were no places for the flies to breed. The really wonderful results accomplished by Dr. Jean Dawson's "clean-up campaign," which made Cleveland practically a flyless city last year, are ably supported by merchants, business people, and citizens generally, for all have caught the fever of fly destroying.

What has been done in Cleveland (the first flyless city), can, and should, be done here, particularly in our country districts.

THE MOTHER AS A CITIZEN.

The Countess of Selborne has a very instructive, yet not at all dry, article in the August number of the "National Review" on "Imperialism and Motherhood," in which the British Dominions come in for high praise as the result of what was disclosed about our vital statistics at the recent conference in London, organised by the Victoria League, and which had for its object the discussion of the causes and prevention of infant mortality. Dr. Mary Booth was present at the conference, but since her return here she has been so busy in preparing baby clothes for the Belgian infants that the theoretical side of baby rearing has quite been swallowed up in the practical, as demonstrated in one of its most essential elements, viz., warm clothing. This conference has been swept on one side by the rush of subsequent events.

Lady Selborne evidently holds a brief for our Commonwealth as a place wherein to bring up children, and quotes Lord Chelmsford in his panegyric on school life here as compared with that of the English working class child. He, in effect, said the lives of the Australian child were cast in very pleasant places. Child life in Australia is now known as among the most elevating conditions of any country. That, at least, is the opinion which Lady Selborne's words convey, and the opinion held by experts on the subject.

On the figures given in the article, we compare very favourably with all the other countries in the printed table, though the percentage could be obtained for no later year than 1909. Since then the infant's chance of life has become greater in both Australia and New Zealand, for death rates are falling. Germany and Austria both have enormous figures against their names, the rate being for Germany 170 per thousand, and for Austria 205 per thousand. (The latest returns for New South Wales show 95 per 1000.) Canada (Ontario) has a very high rate, but New Zealand only 52 per 1000. German mothers are not able to keep their babies alive, even with all the resources of medical science and perfect organisation in sanitary matters of which that country boasts. Great Britain is midway between us and the Continental countries named. France is, as everybody knows, making heroic efforts of late to lower her infantile death-rate.

Sir Chas. Mackellar is quoted by Lady Selborne as saying that improved conditions here have been the result of awakening the public spirit in the women of the Commonwealth; since women have had the vote, he contends, their sense of citizenship has come into even greater strength, and with it has been born a responsibility that recognises the importance of the individual's actions, as part of the whole State. The writer of the article is evidently impressed with the idea that citizenship makes for better motherhood and happier child life, for in Germany and Austria, as she points out, women are put in the background, and made of small account; consequently, although they have many children, they are apathetic about keeping them alive, but meet each preventable death with what is supposed to be Christian resignation.

Lady Selborne's words, though written before the war, ring true to-day, and read quite fresh. On the other hand, most articles on social topics, only two months old, have been rendered quite valueless by the march of events. A very clever essay from the pen of Florence Kiper in the August "Forum," on "The New Motherhood," lays down positions which are already at this moment quite untenable. Her main point, that women who are the best citizens make the best mothers, may be considered as practically the same as Lady Selborne's, but it is the working out of details that even a superficial thinker can see that many old ideas will go by the board when things settle themselves after the war. We shall probably become much more simple and primitive in our working philosophy. One statement of Miss Kiper's has already been proved to be a glaringly inaccurate estimate of character. She says:—"We live in a softer age. Our men no longer show bravery in the battlefields nor our women heroic courage in the hour of childbirth." But with one contention, viz., that it is enervating for a woman to expect to be supported just because she is a woman, few will be inclined to quarrel.

WILD FLOWERS.

A timely appearance has been made in the publication of the second volume of "Wild Flowers of New South Wales," by Miss Florence Sulman (Angus and Robertson). The first volume of this popular guide to nature study was published to meet the demand for a student's handbook containing descriptions and illustrations of the best-known species. The present volume, which, like the first, is complete in itself, includes the wattles and orchids with illustrations, which are by Miss Eirene Mort. Except that the plates are not coloured, which the cost of production precluded, they are everything that could be wished. Miss Mort has added another achievement to her already long list, for her drawings are not only accurate, but show that tender sympathy for nature, which is a heritage with many of our young women. Our sex must naturally feel proud at having done so much earnest and unaffectedly loving work in the direction of opening up the wonderful world of leaf and flower lying all around us. Sydney and the State generally may be said to take the lead in the purely esthetic side of botanical study, though Victoria is not behindhand in her own sphere.

The name of Von Mueller is, of course, preeminent, but taking only women students, Miss Martin, of Brighton, Victoria, holds high rank as an authority on plant diseases.

A book like Miss Sulman's is a real help to many a holiday-maker who would like to "know the names of the pretty flowers" so much admired by the younger as well as the older members of the rambling party. With shame most adults confess that they are absolutely ignorant of the names of all the floral beauties decking bush and scrub, except they are like Mr. J. S. T. McGowen, who has, it may be said, popularised "geebungs" and "five corners" by telling in several speeches how he used to go looking for them as a boy. "Geebung" and "Five Corners" are not esthetic names, but they are much easier than and a decided improvement on, the truly awful appellations which bristle through the pages of Miss Sulman's book. What a pity it is that all the last generation of Australians were taught that there was "nothing good in Nazareth." It is only since we natives have grown up, and come into our own, that the true value of the characteristically Australian bush-flower has been borne in upon us. So we have not yet had time to make up many easy names, and must perforce stumble over "Hardenbergia" and "Calochilus paludosus" when we see the first signs of spring and wish to acclaim them.

Not the least useful guide of Miss Sulman's book is the short names which are put beside the long botanical designations. But except Christmas bush and Christmas bell, flannel daisy, native rose, and boronia, they are not yet known to the man in the street, or to the child in the bush; and "boronia" is not a short "snappy" name either. But the dear, familiar names will increase, and coming generations will know them just as intimately as English children know blue bell and cowslip—at least, they will, if there are any wild flowers left. Judging by the signs of depredations, one sees on all sides, the world-famed flora of Port Jackson district will soon be a thing of the past. It looks now as if Christmas bush will be a "scarce line" in its proper season, such masses of the foliage are brought in now for the fruit shops.

It is to nature-lovers like Miss Sulman and Miss Eirene Mort—among others—that we look with hopefulness, for this book is just exactly the sort of publication to help the public to love and appreciate the "wildings of nature," which Thomas Campbell admired as much as he did the mariners of England, as he has left on record in his pretty poem on "Field Flowers," and to follow in the steps of the pioneer naturalists, who taught this generation that beauty lay in the unconventional colourings and designs of Australian wild flowers.

GRATEFUL BLUEJACKETS.

A Sydney woman writes from England under date August 27: "While I was waiting at Canterbury railway station last week, a long train full of bluejackets drew up on their way from Sheerness to Dover, and then Belgium, they said. It was a broiling hot day, and the men were packed like sardines in trucks, horse boxes, etc. They were all begging for a drink, of water, or anything. But the station master said there was no time. I had previously bought 3lb of lovely grapes, so I handed them to a very hot and nice-looking sailor. The effect was tremendous. I shall never forget it. The whole of that huge crowd cheered and called out, 'Well done, lady.' You can't imagine what it was like; as the train moved out the cheering shook the station. I felt quite abashed and wished I had had three tons of grapes for them. My boys went to a picture theatre last night. They said on coming home, 'We saw the N.S.W. Lancers in the Pathe Gazette. You bet we clapped.'"

A SCARE.

There are a few sober-sides in our company, but on the whole we are a care-free, laughter-loving lot. Actors, singers, dancers, writers, pugilists, and a sprinkling of university scholars make up a somewhat Bohemian party, which takes all that comes with a careless philosophy.

But yesterday we were all startled into seriousness. Ever since we left Melbourne we have had war scares, which have been treated more or less lightly by most of us, as there was seldom any solid ground for the rumours. Yesterday, however, the news came from official quarters, and was received with respect.

It was one of the comedians who brought it to us, as we were all gazing over the side at the second of "The Brothers," the two rocky islands that lie near the Gulf of Aden, in the Arabian Sea. "If you are going to dress to-night you had better go now," he said, "for there will be no lights at all after sunset."

"No lights at all?" We were quite used to badly lighted decks and drawn shutters, but no lights at all was quite a new order, and we all wanted to know why.

"There's a German cruiser after us," said the comedian. We knew his ways, and had heard him joke before; but a glance at his face showed that this was no joke, and immediately everyone began to ask questions at once. In a few minutes the report was right round the ship. A Dutch boat had been waylaid by a German cruiser, but being neutral, had been allowed to go. She had communicated the news to a British merchantman, who, in her turn, had passed the word on to us. The cruiser had been seen earlier in the day in the vicinity of "The Brothers," the very islands we were then passing. As a rule we passed on the southern side, but we had gone 50 miles north of our usual course to avoid her; our boilers were all ready so that we could go full speed ahead if she showed signs of chasing us; and so on and so forth, until the whole ship was simmering with excitement. The two islands, standing sheer from the sea, took on a new interest. Who knew what danger lurked behind them? There was something thrilling in the thought that behind those rocky sentinels the enemy might be lying in ambush, while we steamed by in safety on the other side. "The Brothers" suddenly seemed even more appropriately named than they had been before, and we liked the idea that they were brothers towards us; for these islands belong to the bigger island of Socotra, which is under the protection of Britain.

Gradually the islands faded from sight in the haze of the monsoon, and we all hurried below to dress for dinner. The passage at the foot of the stairs was lighted by a single lantern, and we had to perform our toilets by the fading daylight, for there was no electric light available. From the different cabins and passages came little shrieks of laughter as people fumbled amongst their belongings, or bumped into each other in the gloom. The big swell which rocked the ship from side to side added to the confusion, but not a word of complaint was heard. Then we groped our way to the saloon, and surely never did passengers in a Royal mail steamer sit down under such conditions. Fans and electric lights were all switched off; each long table was lighted by two candles stuck in water bottles, and over every port-hole was hung a grey blanket, so that not a glimmer of that faint light could escape. With the closed ports and motionless fans the air was almost unbearably heavy, but no one grumbled; and when someone proposed three ironic cheers for the Kaiser, they were given with the customary derision and vim. No one lingered below, but we all hurried back to the deck, eager, and yet fearing, to see something fresh. A young moon shed a soft light over the white-capped sea, and the stars shone through the faint haze of salt spray; but otherwise darkness. Even the masthead light was out, and the men went indoors to light their pipes and cigars, so that there should not be even the tell-tale flash of a match. It was all very strange and mysterious, through the gloom shone the white clothes of the officers off duty standing about in little groups, and talking in undertones; and throughout the ship there was a sense of waiting for something to happen.

Then a group of men began to sing; light-hearted songs they sang; ragtimes and tunes from musical comedies. Others joined in, and soon all the men on deck were singing heartily.

"I don't think they need be so lighthearted," said one of the sobersides. "Surely they realise the danger we are in?" "They realise it all right," said another. "Can't you catch the undercurrent of seriousness beneath all their nonsense?"

Even as she spoke the songs changed to a graver key. The comedian, he who had kept the whole ship in a simmer of good-tempered laughter all the voyage, began to sing of two bright eyes watching for him. We all knew that his home and his lodestar were in London, and voices were hushed sympathetically, while the tenor sang of "her." Then another chorus about "the Old Folks at Home," and "It's a long, long way to Tipperary," with an undercurrent of feeling beneath the simple, hackneyed words. Then once again the comedian surprised us. In the silence that had hung on the end of the last chorus, he suddenly began to sing in serious tones, "Rock of Ages Cleft for Me." There was a little stir of surprise amongst his listeners, for he was a gay and giddy comedian, and "psalm singing" was not considered one of his accomplishments. But, heedless of the surprise, the tenor voice went on with the old familiar air. Then, a little shyly, the others joined in, and before the first verse was ended all those men were singing lustily the hymn which most of them had not sung since childhood. Many of them had forgotten the words, but the tenor led them through to the end. Then, before there was time for acclamation or criticisms, he began: "Eternal Father Strong to Save."

This time there was no hesitation. At the first line every man was singing, and singing with all his heart, the words swelled out through the darkness, and people along the deck caught them and joined in, and soon the whole ship was ringing with the strains of that hymn, which, of all hymns, appeals to the hearts of those who travel by sea.

It was deeply touching to hear those men, actors, comedians, pugilists, dancers, hardened men of the world all of them, spontaneously finding vent for their feelings in the singing of those old hymns of their childhood. And somehow the very singing seemed to lessen the strain which had been over all since sunset. The darkness seemed less ominous; the danger less imminent; and soon the voices were ringing out in patriotic songs, and asking the question: "Are we downhearted?" to be met by a thundering "No."

We groped our way in darkness to bed, and lay sweltering in our fanless cabins till daylight, when we were well within the waters of the Gulf of Aden, and, for the time being, out of danger.

AMY E. MACK.

A CAMPAIGN AGAINST FLIES.

The Citizens' Association, discussing, among other things, at its monthly meeting, the fly pest and how to meet it, finally decided that covered garbage tins are about the only practical defence against the enemy. A letter from a business man in the city to the women of the association, was read, congratulating them on their public spirit, and explaining that he himself did his "little best" to help civic tidiness by never neglecting to destroy his tram tickets, and so forth. In this campaign against dirt and its attendant evils, the words of that splendid old campaigner, Florence Nightingale, should never be forgotten. One of her last utterances to her nurses was: "Cleanliness is the best disinfectant." Absolute cleanliness is the best fly preventive. In this page to-day is an account of what Dr. Jean Dawson has been able to accomplish in her own city in ridding it of flies. No doubt there is a touch of exaggeration in saying that flies are entirely abolished, but that Americans really top the score as pest destroyers is an acknowledged fact. They hold the record in sanitary science by exterminating the yellow fever breeding mosquito in the canal zone.

Sydney shopkeepers are not altogether behindhand in fighting flies. In many suburban shops lately sheets of brown paper are placed on eatables displayed in the window; and this is a very altruistic deed, because, as the old Jewish watchmaker put it, "the goods cannot see the peoples." But the disgusting sight of a crowd of flies crawling and buzzing over sweets, fruit, bacon, cheese, and cakes may have, to fastidious eyes, a still more repellant aspect, than a blank sheet of paper covering the goods.

RED CROSS.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA'S MESSAGE.

Her Excellency Lady Helen Munro Ferguson has received the following cable from the High Commissioner, London:—

"Queen Alexandra wishes me to convey to you in her Majesty's name, and that of the council of the British Red Cross Society, most sincere and grateful thanks for the splendid gifts which the Australian branch has made to the resources of the society. Her Majesty says such generosity shows how the heart of Australia goes out to those who are fighting for the honour of the Empire."

VISIT BY HER EXCELLENCY.

GEORGE-STREET DEPOT.

The best of workers work all the better for appreciation and encouragement. In this sense if in no other, the devoted band of Red Cross women who toil from early morning till dusk at the task—a labour of love—of sending away requirements for wounded, must have felt cheered by the visits paid yesterday by Lady Helen Munro Ferguson to the various centres of the work. First of all, the George-street depot was inspected. It was in its usual state of active industry, and all workers (who will never consent to have their names made public, as they serve from a much nobler motive than mere self-glorification) were at their posts, selling wool, flannel, and patterns, describing Balaclava caps, explaining knotty points to sundry customers, book-keeping, and doing the usual secretary's work, and all with calmness and utter lack of fuss or flurry. They have been at it two months now, these women of the Red Cross committee, and are familiar with the business from A to Z.

Her Excellency was received by Mr. Hanbury Davies and other officials, and spent about 40 minutes, asking questions and getting information. She took the minutest care in ascertaining details, and declared that the result of her visit of inspection was even more satisfactory than she had hoped. There was no dress-parade, be it understood. While the inspection was going on the ordinary daily business was proceeding likewise, and most of the customers who came in had no idea that an important visit of inspection was afoot. Some of the A.M.C. who were present were used as mannequins to display Balaclava caps, etc. Lady Helen was specially pleased with the warm blanket overcoats or dressing gowns, each of which is made from a blanket, and utilises the fancy border as a gay edging to the garment. The news that produce had been successfully got aboard homeward bound ships was heard with much pleasure by Lady Helen. Carcases of sheep to the number of 1000 have already been shipped, and yesterday the purchase of 500 tons of butter was most advantageously made, the price given being nearly £20 per ton lower than that ruling at present in London for Danish butter.

CHALLIS HOUSE WINDOW.

The display of Red Cross articles in Challis House window was then visited by Lady Helen, who noted with approval that the special splints and bandages shown were of the latest design, and found the collection of articles of the most useful. We are working here on exactly the lines laid down by the authorities of the Red Cross Society in England. The request of Lord Kitchener to Queen Mary for socks and pyjamas has been followed here as closely as if the Minister for War had told our local committee what he required.

TOWN HALL.

The Town Hall, where the Lady Mayoress was waiting to receive Lady Helen, was the final centre to undergo an inspection. Here, again, there was nothing but praise, as everything in both sewing room and basement was in good working order. The Lady Mayoress then entertained her Excellency at afternoon tea, when Lady Helen expressed her gratification and her feeling of security in the capacity of Red Cross officials here, who were doing everything on the most approved lines.

Penrith ladies of the Red Cross League have despatched the third consignment to Sydney depot, containing:—Ten soldiers' bags, miscellaneous parcels, containing milk covers, washers, shoulder pads, and Balaclavas; two large parcels of clothes for Belgians, one parcel hospital linen, five parcels books. A patriotic and Red Cross concert was held in Penrith, organised by Miss E. Thornecroft, Mrs. Cecil Fulton, hon. secretary, and a splendid working committee of gentlemen. Over £[illegible] will be realised.

For the concert which Mdme. Charvin (Mdlle. Yvonne Leverrier) is organising for October 17, in aid of the French Red Cross Fund, a meeting was held last week at Paling's, when first-class artistic support was promised, including the names of Mr. John Lemmone, Mr. W. J. Coad, Mrs. Alexander Gordon, Miss Mabel Batchelor, Mr. Truman, Miss Georgina Temperey, Mr. Bryce Carter, the State military band, directed by Captain Bentley and Mdme. Charvin herself. Mr. Cooper has been secured as accompanist. Patronage has been accorded by the Lady Edeline Strickland, Sir William and Lady Cullen, the Premier and Mrs. W. A. Holman, the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, and the Consuls for France, Belgium, Russia, and Japan.

The hon. treasurers (Mrs. Spencer Brunton and Mr. Wilfrid Docker), Norwich-chambers, Hunter-street, announce the receipt of the following subscriptions:—

LAW REPORT.

IN EQUITY.

(Before the Chief Judge, Mr. Justice Simpson.)

AUTOMOBILE TOURING COMPANY OF AUSTRALIA, LTD.

PETITION FOR WINDING-UP ORDER.

Mr. J. A. Browne, instructed by Mr. F. E. Wood, appeared on behalf of the Continental C. and G. Rubber Company Proprietary, Ltd., of Victoria, carrying on business in Sydney, and petitioned for a winding-up order against the Automobile Touring Company of Australia, Limited, on the ground that it was unable to pay its debts.

The petitioning company stated that its registered office in New South Wales was at 225 Clarence-street, Sydney. The respondent company was registered in August, 1909, the registered offices being at Katoomba. The nominal capital of the respondent company was £5000, divided into 5000 shares of £1 each, of which 2257 had been issued, and were either full paid or credited as fully paid. The objects of the establishment of the company were to carry on the business of motor car proprietors and carriers of passengers, tourists, etc., in motor cars and other vehicles, and to carry on the business of tourists' agents and contractors, etc. Part of the petitioning company's business consisted of supplying motor goods and requisites, some of which it supplied to the respondent company. On September 1 last the petitioning company recovered judgment against the respondent company in a total sum of £153 0s 3d, and on the following day it issued a writ of execution, which had been returned by the Sheriff wholly unsatisfied. The petitioning company submitted that the respondent company should be wound up on the ground that it was unable to pay its debts.

His Honor made the usual winding-up order, and appointed Mr. W. H. Palmer official liquidator.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Docker and juries.)

FOUR MEN CHARGED.

Mr. R. Browning, Crown Prosecutor.

William Henry Jacobson, Joseph Seale, Thomas Walsh, and Frederick Victor Mander, four young men, were charged with breaking and entering the warehouse of Messrs. Rankin and Co., 199 Sussex-street, on August 22, and stealing 140lb of butter, seven sides of bacon, and eight hams. Mr. Forbes appeared for the defence.

The defence was one of wrong identification. The jury found all four guilty, and they were remanded for sentence.

ASSAULT AT PICTURE SHOW.

William Dovey, aged 27, was charged with assaulting Francis Jones, an usher at the Crown Star Picture Theatre, at Surry Hills, on August 22, and occasioning actual bodily harm. A second count of common assault was added to the indictment. Mr. McMahon appeared for Dovey, who pleaded not guilty.

The Crown case was that an altercation occurred between the usher and several young men over a dispute about the value of seats paid for, and that accused, sometime after threatening Jones, violently assaulted him, causing a compound fracture of the nose.

The defence did not deny the altercation, but denied that any blows were struck by accused, Dovey.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty on the second count of common assault. They added a strong recommendation to mercy, on account of Dovey's previous good character, and expressed the wish that the first offenders' provisions of the Crimes Act should be extended to the prisoner.

His Honor liberated Dovey as a first offender upon £20 compensation being paid to Jones for the injury, and recognisances being entered into to be of good behaviour for a period of 12 months.

His Honor said he could not understand why the jury had found Dovey not guilty of occasioning actual bodily harm. "I wonder," he said, "how any one of the jury would feel about it if it were his nose which had been broken. He would probably realise then that it was actual bodily harm."

THREE PEOPLE SHOT

AFFRAY IN THE WESTERN SUBURBS.

An extraordinary affray, which resulted in the shooting of Violet Lilian Warner, a married woman, aged 30, at Marrickville, and Leslie Tansley, aged 28, and Isaac Martin, aged 56, at the White Bay deviation works, Abattoir-road, Rozelle, was reported to the police yesterday.

Early in the afternoon Thomas Carrington Tansley, aged 24, Mrs. Warner's and Leslie Tansley's brother, was arrested in connection with the matter.

The first intimation of the trouble was conveyed to the Marrickville police shortly before half-past 10 yesterday morning. They were then informed that Mrs. Warner who resides in 57 Meek-road, had been shot. Several constables were hurried to the spot, and they found Mrs. Warner in an unconscious condition, bleeding from a wound over the right eye, and from another wound in the back. She was taken at once to the Marrickville Cottage Hospital, where her wounds were treated and she was afterwards admitted to the Prince Alfred Hospital. In the meantime the police commenced a diligent search of the neighbourhood to discover Mrs. Warner's assailant.

About 12.30 word came through from Balmain that two men had been shot at the White Bay deviation works at Rozelle, and that a man named Tansley had been arrested. Having heard that Tansley was Mrs. Warner's maiden name, Sub-inspector Brown, of Marrickville who was directing the search for her assailant, immediately connected him with the trouble at Meek-road, and later on a charge of shooting with intent to murder Violet Lilian Warner was added to the charges already preferred against him.

The affray at White Bay was of a highly-exciting character. The men employed on the works were lounging around having lunch. A man was noticed going from group to group, apparently searching for someone. Coming opposite to Leslie Tansley, he fired a shot. Then flourishing a revolver he threatened several other men who made a movement towards him. Isaac Martin, one of the patrolmen employed on the works, was in no way nonplussed by Tansley's threats. He hurled himself at him, and in a second or two both men were struggling on the ground. In the fight the revolver went off accidentally, and Martin received a bullet wound in the neck. Other men rushed to his assistance, and Tansley was overpowered and secured. He was subsequently arrested, and during the afternoon he was charged at the Balmain Police Court with wounding, with intent to murder, Violet Lilian Warner, Leslie Tansley, and Isaac Martin.

Mrs. Warner is in the Prince Alfred Hospital. Her injuries are not regarded as serious. Leslie Tansley, however, is not expected to recover. In his case the bullet penetrated beneath the heart, and inflicted very serious injuries. Isaac Martin's injuries are slight, being confined to flesh wounds in the neck. Both he and Tansley are at present in the Balmain Hospital.

NEW FINE ARTS GALLERY.

TECHNICAL COLLEGE EXHIBITS.

Messrs. Anthony Hordern and Sons' new Fine Arts Gallery was officially opened by the Lord Mayor of Sydney (Ald. R. W. Richards) yesterday afternoon. It has been designed in the modern Renaissance style, and occupies half of the fourth floor of "R" block, with a top light, and is both beautiful and spacious. The gallery consists of three arcades, the central 18 feet wide, those on either side 33 feet wide, and all three 116 feet long. The ceilings to each arcade are domed, and formed with steel principals springing from plaster cornice at a height of 20 feet from the floor, and are divided into bays, the ceiling being formed with patent sacked board and asbestos plaster. The lighting is on the semi-direct principle used in modern galleries, the exterior sashes being glazed with rolled plate, and the internal steel sashes, which are curved to radius to suit domed ceilings, with ground glass. The fine oak fittings, and the handsomely carved oak staircase, the work of the firm at their factory, complete a scheme which is entirely artistic.

Importance was given to the opening by the fact that for the first time in the history of the Technological Museum, Technical College, and Trade Schools of the Technical Education Branch, Department of Public Instruction, New South Wales, examples of the applied arts and trade-handicrafts were all shown at once, and to complete advantage. The exhibition, which will now remain open until October 24, practically epitomises the research work of the museum staff and the work of the students, and includes some beautiful models—notably, the enlarged models of Australian flowers, trichromatic printing, architectural drawings, and the like—and cannot fail deeply to interest intelligent visitors.

The Lord Mayor, who was accompanied by Mr. Peter Board (Director of Education), Judge Backhouse, and Mr. Sam Hordern, declared his satisfaction in opening a gallery built for the encouragement of art by a firm which had in that way brought Sydney more into line with the older art centres of Europe. That firm, and he wished to pay an especial tribute in that connection to that merchant prince, the late Samuel Hordern, had always fostered a love of art in their midst, and the facilities now afforded for illustrating the progress of the Technical Colleges were such as had not previously existed. The work of that afternoon symbolised progress and a building-up, as contrasted with the present era of vile destruction on the part of an ambitious ruler engaged in the ruin of priceless works of art, and the reduction to dust of buildings world-renowned for their beauty. They must all unite in deploring such a state of affairs, and in gratitude for the happier conditions which enabled him to declare that fine arts gallery open to the public. (Applause.)

Mr. Board, who also addressed the assemblage, dwelt upon the valuable services of Mr. R. S. G. Gillett (a director of Horderns', Ltd.), not only in connection with that art gallery, but also in connection with the advisory committee recently created in order to keep every trade, class, and division of the Technical College in close contact with the actual and practical requirements of the daily business of the State. The models and exhibits illustrated the work of students who were now required to go through three, four, or even five years of evening instruction to gain proficiency in their trades. When he stated that nearly 5000 did so, he thought he had effectually demonstrated the oft-disputed capacity of Australians for the persevering pursuit of serious aims in life. The idea that skill of hand and truth of eye could be casually and carelessly picked up had been happily dissipated, and young tradesmen were now learning their business on a basis of sound and well-directed application. (Applause.)

Mr Hordern called for three cheers for the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, which were heartily given, after which the company took tea and coffee in an adjoining annexe.

TRADE MARK CASE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The High Court yesterday gave judgment in an appeal in reference to a trade mark.

Oden L. Remington and Joseph A. Newton, carrying on business under the style of Newton's Electrical Stores, were defendants (appellants); and the Welsbach Light Company of Australasia (the plaintiffs, respondents), in the original action. The Welsbach Company claimed that Remington and Newton had infringed plaintiffs' registered trade mark by selling certain metallic filament lamps bearing the name of "Austerlite" and a device, a steering wheel, resembling plaintiffs' trade mark. Mr. Justice Hood, on October 29, last year, granted an order restraining defendants from passing their goods as plaintiffs' goods, and awarded plaintiffs £77 damages. Defendants now appealed against this judgment. The High Court held that there was no question of law involved in the appeal.

Their Honors were of opinion that plaintiffs were entitled to retain the injunction, but were not entitled to damages. The judgment appealed against would, therefore, be varied by omitting the award of damages. It was ordered that the appeal be dismissed, appellants to pay costs of appeal.

AN OLD-FASHIONED COUGH SYRUP.

HOW OUR GRANDMOTHERS USED TO PREVENT COUGHS AND COLDS.

Not long ago a writer on the editorial staff of one of our leading publications was looking through an old book in which his grandmother had written out a number of recipes for home-made remedies, etc. Among other recipes he happened to notice one for a cough syrup, which greatly interested him, as he had for some time been suffering from a very annoying and persistent cough which nothing seemed to relieve. Under this particular recipe his grandmother had written a note stating that she had never known it to fail. His own cough was so bad that he decided to give it a trial, and, as directed in the recipe, he first obtained from his chemist 2oz of Mistol (triple extract), which he mixed with a simple syrup prepared by dissolving 1½ of granulated sugar in ½ pint of hot water. This made nearly a pint of cough syrup, of which he took a teaspoonful every two or three hours, and in two days his cough had entirely disappeared. He was so delighted that he persuaded his editor to publish the recipe in his next issue. Other papers when copying this formula are requested to mention that the triple extract of Mistol should always be used.—Advt.

POULTRY.

Questions relating to fancy or commercial poultry-keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to "Ancona," "Herald" Office.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A.E.S., Balmain.—Sometimes, through accident, an egg becomes broken in the nest, and when an any hen broody or otherwise will at once eat it. If your hen is eating the eggs she is hatching, to save them you will have to put another hen on them.

Chicken.—The breeds you mention are advertised extensively in each Saturday's "Herald." If you pay a reasonable price, you may expect what you term a square deal. The advertisers can only guarantee to give you fertile eggs—they can take no hatching risks.

Mamma.—You have two good strains of fowls, and should confine yourself to them. It will not improve the strain by bringing in any more fresh blood. Mate those you have, as suggested, in your note.

Newcomer.—If you have decided to engage in poultry-farming, it will be best to purchase some small going concern. By doing this you will be getting in a return at once, while to begin in a new place you will be paying out for stock, implements, housing, etc., for months. There are many cheap places now on the market within 15 miles of Sydney, which is really the only market. See farms and land for sale in Saturday's issues of the "Herald."

Incubator.—Your note was delayed. If the temperatures on fourth day of hatching dropped to 78, and remained at that for a few hours, it is probable the eggs would not hatch. If a drop like this takes place during the last week it has no injurious effect to the batch.

In addition to the £72 previously realised for the Patriotic Fund by donations from the poultry-farmers, another £150 was secured at the combined sale on Wednesday last. The above applies to the Municipal Markets only. Messrs. Mossman and Ellis, the Coastal Farmers, and other Sussex-street houses having had several sales for a like purpose. Altogether, it is considered that the respective funds will benefit by about £500 by contributions from poultry-farmers, city poulterers, and others.

A fortnight ago, when 4s 2d per bushel was the proclaimed price for milling wheat, poultry-farmers and others who keep fowls were delighted at the prospect of securing at least one load of feed at a reasonable rate. They people now realise their mistake, 5s 6d, 5s 9d, and 6s being ruling rates in some of the Sydney suburbs. The latter figure was what one suburban produce house was selling at on Saturday last, and this within a twopenny tram section of the city. At the above rate poultrykeepers were in a better position for this period prior to the much-discussed proclamation.

In Monday's "Herald" of last week there was recorded the death of Mr. John Primrose, of Flemington. For nearly half a century Mr. Primrose was a noted breeder of Australian Game fowls, an occasional exhibitor, and a frequent judge at the leading shows of this State.

Within the past 12 or 18 months turkey breeding had so increased as to be quite beyond the State's consumption, and prices so low that outside markets had to be requisitioned. The Mataroa at the beginning of last week took 163 cases to Liverpool, the Mataram 139 cases to Singapore, and the Moolan 150 cases to London, the Changsha shipment being 22 cases to Manila. As the cases average 60lb each, the week's shipment of these goods weighed over 20 tons, which should considerably relieve the local market.

The first six months of the current egg-laying competition at Hawkesbury College concluded on Wednesday evening last, the results in the various sections being better than the past two years, but not reaching some of the preceding ones. In hens for the first year, S. Champion's Leghorns lead with 750. L. L. Ramsay's black Orpingtons 728, C. Simmons' Langshans 677, Mrs. Greenan's Leghorns 648, A. W. Warne's black Orpingtons 640, D. Kenway's black Orpingtons 628, Fairfield Farm, Brown Leghorns, 625. Mrs. Jobling's black Orpingtons 614, W. Newell's white Leghorns 611, Hillcrest Farm's white Leghorns 610. The figures gradually decline to 493, the lowest of the 70 pens. In the section for hens competing the second year, J. D. Nicholson leads for the eighteen months with 1895, D. Salter 1740, Glen Farm 1650, J. Lowe 1643, G. Speed 1638, all Leghorns, G. Judd Langshans, 1625.

Throughout the past two or three years there has been a good deal of discussion as to the merits of keeping fowls shut up in houses, as against the orthodox way of open yards and roosting quarters at night. The advocates of the intensive system claim a better egg yield, with the additional merit of considerably less labour in attending to the fowls. To assist in determining these claims, the College authorities for the current test provided a competition of 20 pens; 10 in open yards and 10 in confinement. The results of the six months are conclusively in favour of keeping the birds in the ordinary way, the figures being 523 per pen for the open yards, against 438 for the enclosed.

COMING SHOWS.

Hound and Gun Dog Club	October 10
Illawarra Fox Terrier Club	October 10
Victorian Fox and Irish T.C.	October 10

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

E.J. (Randwick).—The popular colour for the breed is blue, although the red speckles have also proved themselves to be good workers.

Gundog (Belmore).—The chest of a 24-inch foxhound should girth at least 30 inches. A deep brisket is of great importance to this breed. The back and loin should be very muscular, and the hindquarters very strong.

R.J. (Hobart).—Thanks for the catalogue.

The Illawarra District Fox Terrier Club will hold a show on Saturday afternoon at Kogarah. Mr. A. L. Doyle will make the awards.

Mr. H. Moses, junr., has transferred his successful stud and show dog, Valex (imp.), to Mr. R. Comley, of the Avarna fox terrier kennels, North Sydney.

Dewclaws up a terrier's feet are only a nuisance to the dog. They should be removed when about a week old. Snip them off with a pair of sharp scissors, cutting closely. The cut will soon heal.

Mrs. Cameron, of Waverley, has transferred to Mr. M'Crea two Scottish terrier puppies, by Kirribilli Crae, ex Lochiel Nancy.

Mr. G. Newman has disposed of the following young fawn pugs, Silver King, of Lucendale, to Mr. W. R. Robey, of Roseville; three puppies, by champion Seneca Grand, ex Princess Veva, of Lucendale, went to Mr. Perrin, Mr. Roberts, and Mr. C. Wiles.

Being dissatisfied with a decision in the toy French Poodle class at the Melbourne Royal Show, Mr. J. R. Nicholls, the owner of Commonwealth Champion, Baldown Bonnie, has challenged the winner (or any other of the breed in Australia), for a stake up to £25—"Australasian."

Mrs. Hope hon. secretary of the Hound and Gun Dog Club, writes:—A splendid entry of sporting dogs has been received for the club's parade next Saturday. Fox hounds and pointers are the strongest classes, and setters and the other breeds catered for have also good entries. This is the club's first show, and it should be attractive to Ottilia might be dead; she might have gone sporting men. A special tram will leave the Bridge-street yards at 1.30 p.m., calling at Foveaux-street 10 minutes later. The return tram will leave the Show Ground at 5.30 p.m. Judging will start at 2.30 p.m.

Mr. J. Stewart, of Marrickville, has transferred to Mr. H. K. J. Barnsley, of the Glebe, two black pug puppies, by Master Speedwell, ex Topsy.

Mr. W. D. M'Crea's imported Scottish terriers will be released from quarantine in about 10 days. Their first appearance in Sydney ring will probably be at the annual show of the Scottish Terrier Club, on New Year's Day. This club will meet to-morrow night at Mr. Moffatt's office, Castlereagh-street.

Mr. Robert Kalecki, an old breeder of cattle dogs, is of opinion that these dogs would prove of great value as an adjunct to a fighting force. Some time ago, a representative of the Japanese Government secured from Mr. Kalecki several purebred cattle dogs, which have given every satisfaction. The value of these dogs was placed under Senator Millen's notice about a year ago, but he took no steps to secure any of them. Mr. Kalecki contends that there is no breed of dog more intelligent than the cattle dogs. Their "heeling" qualities are undeniable, and a batch of them, attached to an Australian contingent, would soon transfer the enemy's best trained chargers into runaways.

THE KENNEL CLUB

A committee meeting of the Kennel Club of New South Wales was held on the 30th ultimo. The president and 13 other members attended. The secretary stated that he had lodged six objections against exhibits at the Pug Dog Club of New South Wales show, for non-registration. The explanations received relative to four cases were accepted, and the objections ordered to be withdrawn; in one case warning that more care be exercised in future, was issued with the withdrawal of the objection, and in the sixth case the objection stands.

It was reported that the catalogue of the Pug Dog Club of New South Wales show had been issued without containing the rules of the K.C. of N.S.W., and without any intimation that the exhibition was held under such rules. The secretary was instructed to advise the hon. secretary to be more careful in future.

The support accorded to an unrecognised show by officials of an associated club was reported, and the secretary was instructed to communicate with the associated club on the matter.

THE KING v. WARGRAVE.

BY J. S. FLETCHER.

(ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.)

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

Graye felt a new sense of relief. Fifteen years!—then she would, she must, remember events of six years previously.

"I am here to make some inquiries into a matter of six years ago," he said. "The reasons for making these inquiries are of the utmost seriousness, and I will go straight to the point. Do you remember a patient of this hospital, an inmate of about six years ago, who bore the name of Ottilia Morro?"

The sister's eyes suddenly sparkled. She nodded her head.

"Quite well. She was suffering from a curious form of general debility, but she left here perfectly cured—quite restored, Dr. Graye."

"You do not know where she went when she left?"

"I, personally, don't. Some of the sisters, or the superior, may know."

"It is Ottilia Morro that I am seeking. Do you remember that she was ever visited by any English friends?"

"Yes. There was an Englishman. I will think of his name in a minute. Yes, Sir Robert Wargrave, a middle-aged man, and his young wife came to see Ottilia Morro several times. But the wife, Lady Wargrave, was an Italian."

"Yes. Now I must take you into my confidence, sister. Sir Robert Wargrave is dead some time ago. And Lady Wargrave is at this moment being tried for murder."

The sister lifted her hands.

"Not—his murder!"

"No; but for the murder of her grandfather, an old Italian gentleman, with whom, as a girl, she lived in London. It is, of course, a wicked and absurd charge," continued Graye, indignantly. "But, most unfortunately, there is some ground for it. And this Ottilia will be a valuable witness, if she can be found. You know nothing of her since she left the hospital?"

"Nothing; but I will make inquiries. Come again in an hour."

Graye left the hospital and wandered about the heights of St. Elmo, wondering what was to be done if he got no news of Ottilia. He had no idea where to turn or what to do. Ottilia might be dead; she might have gone far away; it was a strange thing, considering how close a bond there had been between Gemma and himself that she had never corresponded with her old friend. He began to feel despondent, and his despondency increased when on rejoining the sister in the waiting-room she shook her head as a preliminary.

"I have not been able to hear anything of Ottilia Morro," she said. "No one knows anything about her. Many of the sisters remember her, but none of them have any recollection that she ever said anything as to where she was going. All that the superior knows is that when Ottilia left she made a handsome gift to the funds of the hospital. She was, therefore, apparently well off as regards money. That is all we can tell you, Dr. Graye. But we will make further inquiries, and we can see if we may be able to come across some little news that will help."

Graye thanked her and went away, puzzled and almost despairing, in spite of the fact that he was at the very outset of his task, and that he had known it would be one of great difficulty. He went down to the heart of the city, wondering what to do next. Then, remembering that there might be letters awaiting him at the post-office, he went there and presented his card, and while he exercised his patience in waiting the pleasure of the clerk who took it, continued to ponder on his next step. Surely there must be some means of tracing Ottilia Morro? The police—the hotels—the lodging-houses—the press! The press! He suddenly remembered the remark of Mr. Baggs as to the advisability of advertising in the "Times." It had seemed fatuous enough, heard there in the prim and chilly atmosphere of the Bedford Row office; but was it as fatuous as it appeared? Certainly, it would do no good to advertise in the "Times," but it might do much good to advertise in the principal Italian papers.

"I'll do that to-day," mused Graye, cheering up at the thought of doing something definite and active. "I'll draft the advertisement at once, and get hold of a press list, if there is such a thing. And—"

"A letter for the signor."

Graye turned to the little wicket at which he had lingered, and took the missive which the clerk of the poste-restante handed to him. It was a packet of some size, containing something stiff and square, and was addressed in a handwriting obviously acquired under the tuition of some County Council instructor of cockney youth. And on the back, in a lozenge-shaped shield, was the endorsed stamp of Kenrick, Baggs, Baggs, and Kenrick. Graye went aside to a quiet corner of the hall in which he stood, and cut the stout envelope open to draw out a typewritten letter and a photograph. He looked first at the photograph, which, he was quick to observe, had been taken in Genoa, and was a little faded. It showed a girl's face—a typical Italian face with beautiful features, large, lustrous eyes, a wealth of dark hair coiled beneath a twisted kerchief, in which small coins and beads were intertwined. On the strip of blank cardboard beneath it was written in a delicate Italian hand the words Gemma from Ottilia.

Holding the letter in his hand, Graye looked at the photographed face long and earnestly. This, of course, was Ottilia Morro's portrait. Well, she was very beautiful—as beautiful, quite, as Gemma herself. But why was the expression so full of a haunting sadness, a strange wistfulness? He felt, as he looked, that had he come suddenly across this photograph anywhere, he would have said, "This is the portrait of a woman who has had a great sorrow, and who rarely, if ever, smiles." And he began to speculate on the reason why there was so much indication of sorrow about the mouth and the great eyes which, he knew, would long haunt him.

Putting the photograph back in the envelope, Graye turned his attention to the letter. Glancing at the signature, he saw it to be that of Mr. Kcarick.

"Dear Sir," wrote the solicitor, "since you left for Naples I have seen my client, Lady Wargrave, and have informed her of your mission. Lady Wargrave desires me to express her deep gratitude to you, and trusts to eventually be able to extend her personal thanks to you under more propitious conditions than those in which she is at present unfortunately placed.

"Before learning of your departure for Italy, Lady Wargrave at once caused to be procured from here residence in Park-lane and conveyed to my office the enclosed photograph of her friend, Ottilia Morro, which was taken at Genoa very soon after Miss Morro and Lady Wargrave left England. She thinks it may be of considerable use to you in prosecuting the search which you have so generously undertaken.

"Having duly considered all the information which I possess in respect to Miss Morro, namely, that she had followed the profession of a vocalist upon the public stage of places of amusement, corresponding, as I understand the matter, to our music halls, I beg to suggest to you that you may obtain news of her from the managers or directors of such places, it being, in my opinion, exceedingly probable that she returned to the practice of her profession upon leaving the hospital to which Lady Wargrave referred us.

"With my best wishes for the success of your endeavours.

I am, dear sir,

"Yours truly,

"MATTHIAS P. KENRICK."

Graye put the letter into company with the photograph, and strode out into the sunshine, feeling much heartened.

"In spite of his primness and his circumlocutionary powers, Kenrick isn't by any means a fool," he said. "That's a good notion about the music-halls. Now, what is an Italian music-hall? Anyhow, they'll know at the hotel."

As a result of his inquiries at the office of his hotel Graye set out into the city again, furnished with the names of the managers of half a dozen principal places of amusement. And at the very first he came to be struck a clue. He was, moreover, fortunate, in that the manager into whose presence he was introduced spoke a smattering of English. This gentleman exclaimed loudly and spread his arms around when Graye laid the photograph before him.

"You know that, signor?" asked Graye.

"Know it! But quite well—yes! See, there, signor," and he pulled out a drawer and showed Graye half a dozen photographs of Ottilia, a dozen great and small, but every one of them possessing the same sense of wistful sorrow. "Ah, yes, here she is again, and again, and again—many times. She signs herself on your picture Ottilia, signor—her stage name for the one short season she was here with me was Adelina di Bramante—what her real name is, was, who knows or cares? But see, there, what a quietly sad face this is, signor—always was so in private life. Yet on the stage what life, vivacity, fire! It was as if she were transformed. Yes, one short season of a great triumph, and then—ah, she is gone like this puff of smoke from my cigar."

IMPROVING CREAM.

We referred yesterday to the experiments conducted by the Department of Agriculture, to test the value of neutralisation and pasteurisation of cream as a means of improving the quality of butter. The experiments undoubtedly showed that neutralisation improved the butter to a marked extent, and an important question as to whether the use of neutralising agents, such as bi-carbonate of soda or carbonate of lime, should be permitted by the Health authorities, now arises. The experiments also proved, as could only be expected, that pasteurisation of the cream improved the keeping quality of the butter. But pasteurisation is no new thing in this State. It happens, however, that the report in favour of pasteurisation, made by the co-operative delegation that visited New Zealand, has directed fresh attention to that means of improving the quality of butter. It is interesting to note that a glance at back history shows that it was strongly opposed by certain sections that now appear to look to it for the salvation of the dairying industry. As in other directions, experience is beginning to teach. The Government Dairy Expert, Mr. M. A. O'Callaghan, on the other hand, for many years—in fact, from the time of his arrival in this State—advocated pasteurisation as being more beneficial to Australia than to any other country, because it had further to send its butter to the principal markets of the world. Hence he argued the necessity for a butter of good keeping quality, and pasteurisation unquestionably improves the keeping quality in the same way that boiling milk (as pointed out by Mr. O'Callaghan on Friday) used for household purposes increases its keeping quality, as every economical housewife knows. The reason is that the germs that cause decomposition are destroyed by heating, and it takes some time before they get into the milk again. This is a simple illustration of the principle of pasteurisation.

The introduction of the private separator, and, to a large extent, the consequent delivery of a good deal of stale cream to butter factories, meant a great check to pasteurisation in this State. Fifteen years ago the Fresh Food and Ice Company's factories, as well as all the factories at the time conducted by the then New South Wales Creamery Company, of which Mr. Lance was general manager, pasteurised the cream or milk of which the butter was eventually made. In addition, all the cream made into butter at the Berry Central Factory, which was then probably the largest manufacturing centre in the State, was pasteurised before being ripened for churning purposes. It is safe to say that all who had experience of the system favoured it, and for some time as much as a half-penny per pound was paid for pasteurised butter in the Sydney market in excess of the ordinary prices. Then the pasteurisation of sour cream was tried at the request of many, and, as was anticipated, it was not a success. This will be understood by anyone who has ever heated milk which had gone slightly sour. The connection of heat and acids coagulates the milk, and makes it into curds and whey. In the same way when sour cream is pasteurised the curdy portion simply becomes curds and whey; the acid is coagulated, and the effect is an injurious one from the butter makers' point of view. It has been found that when the acidity exceeds 0.3 per cent., or three-tenths of a pound of lactic acid in 100lb of cream, that the heating action of pasteurisation affects the curd. As already stated, therefore, it is inadvisable to pasteurise cream when the acidity is greater than 0.3 per cent.

While pasteurisation has everything to recommend it, and neutralisation may be advisable to permit, the latter can only be tolerated to meet an existing evil. Neither neutralisation nor pasteurisation is going to remedy the troubles in the dairying industry, or improve the general quality of our butter to the desirable point. The work of the future is to eradicate the evil that makes neutralisation necessary. We have to remember that, quite apart from the matter of distance and inaccessibility, dirty and slovenly practices exist that are responsible for the production of tainted cream. Care must be taken that pasteurisation, or neutralisation of cream, if allowed, is not made an excuse for bad dairying methods. All effort on the part of the State Departments and the managers and directors of the different butter factories must be in the direction of increasing the supply of first-class milk fit to pasteurise, if so desired, without any use of neutralising agents.

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

GROWER SUPPORTS GOVERNMENT.

Mr. T. J. A. Fitzpatrick, Warre Warral, writes:—The very good advice of extending the wheat crop areas for next season is coming in from all sides, but the advice is often discounted by an attack on the Government in fixing the price of wheat at 4s 2d per bushel. Probably, many out of the multitude of counsellors have only a hazy idea of the terrible ravages of the drought in Australia; if they were on the scene it would make them realise that the Government in fixing a reasonable price is doing more to extend the areas than it gets credit for. It is confidently predicted that there will be sufficient wheat garnered for all local requirements, and a small surplus will be left for export. This is problematic. At this period we generally get a roseate forecast of the wheat prospects—from a statistical standpoint. It is somewhat early yet to put any trust in statistics or predictions, and a safer policy would be, while hoping for the best, to be prepared for the worst. Under these circumstances it is altogther premature to talk about London parities in wheat values. The speculator hoped more from a "local" market than from London, and is decidedly wise that the Government upset his plans. And the so-called protests from country farmers are, I am afraid, more prompted by reasons politic than economic.

Practical farmers throughout the drought-stricken areas know only too well that the area of wheat sown next season will be ruled by the price of seed-wheat—the higher the price the smaller the area sown. There are tens of thousands of acres which will not yield even a bushel of wheat in the aggregate, and in order to save their horses farmers have turned them on to the dying crops. All this land will be really fallow, and can, in a normal season, be expected to give enhanced returns. Surely these farmers are as deserving of consideration at the hands of the Government as those who, in more favoured districts, will lose merely a few pence per bushel on their wheat?

Another matter which should have the urgent consideration of the Government is the regulation of the price of hay, chaff, and other fodder. For the past two years there has been a diminution of hay stocks, and it is beyond a doubt that there will be a great shortage this season. This is enabling holders to derive enormous profits from what is absolutely a necessary commodity, and we have not reached the limit by any means. If chaff is not procurable at reasonable rates, the losses of horses in the interior will reach enormous figures, thus entailing a great shrinkage in the areas sown, and bringing hundreds of settlers to inevitable ruin.

Further, the fixing of the price of wheat at 4/2 per bushel is giving the hay-grower a decided "pull" over the wheat-grower. For instance, a twelve-bushel crop in Riverina can be reasonably expected to give a return of one ton of hay per acre; taking wheat at 3/8 per bushel in the paddock, this returns £2/5/ per acre, deducting 2/6 for bags this leaves £2/1/6 per acre. On present prices of chaff in Sydney the return of one ton of hay in the stack is £4 per acre, and allowing 5/6 per ton for stacking, this works out at a profit of £3/14/6 per acre—an advantage of £1/13/ per acre in favour of the hay-grower. And I know instances of where as much as £4/5/ per ton has been given for hay in the stack, and refusals even to sell under £4/10/.

By fixing the price of wheat at the fair rate of 4/2 per bushel, the Government has conferred on hundreds of farmers a great benefit, but to make this benefit effective the price of fodder must be brought down also to a reasonable price—and that quickly.

ANOTHER POINT OF VIEW.

Mr. J. E. A. Florance, Baan Baa, writes:—In an article in the "On the Land" column you urge farmers to extend the wheat area, and the Government authorities make the same appeal for more wheat-growing. That means to employ more labour and spend more money in seed, feed, manure, and machinery. This year the farmers' wheat return will certainly not exceed one-half of last year's return per acre, and under ordinary circumstances it would be difficult to arrange for an extended area next year. Under ordinary circumstances we would get at least 5/2 for what little wheat we harvest, but the Government has asked us, in addition to our natural losses, to hand over 1/ a bushel to enable millers and bakers to make flour and bread for the people; that is, to make it at a profit to these same millers and bakers. Assuming that the farmer does not refuse to extend the wheat area as a protest against spoliation, and for fear that the price may be fixed at 3/2 next year, he has to the extent of 1/ a bushel been restricted from extending operations next year. Had the tax—for that is what it amounts to—been distributed evenly over the whole community, one penny a bushel would have been more than the farmers' share, and he would have had so much more money for farming operations next year.

The departmental officers and all sound wheat farmers know the necessity of good seed. Many of the best farmers hold back their choicest wheat and grade it to sell for seed. Five and six shillings a bushel for pure seed is good buying for the man up to date in wheat culture. Now that the price is fixed our best seed wheat growers are not going to keep back seed for sale, and stand out of their money for months to receive the same price eventually; neither will they grade their seed wheat. Therefore, thousands of farmers will be forced to sow any seed, which means inferior returns.

Another result of the distrust which this confiscation of part of the farmer's precarious income causes will be a tendency to put in less wheat and go in for other lines showing more frequent returns. Even this year there are thousands of acres being cut for hay, which would have been kept for grain but for this unfortunate attempt to deal off-hand with this matter.

COUNTRY MILLERS' PROFITS.

"L. K." writes:—The city millers, possibly, might not carry a stock of wheat to work on, but the country millers do. It is bought up at a low figure early in the year. If these men are to profit by the advanced price of flour why shouldn't they in all reason pay more than 4/2 for wheat now? The country miller, as a rule, is no friend of the farmers, and will beat down the price on the least possible excuse. As much of this produce from the mills is sold locally this fact should determine the country price per bushel at 4/2 also.

I should like to point out that if the Government at a minute's notice can determine the maximum price of wheat, why will it not give the matter some further consideration and establish a minimum price, working back from the 2d loaf and allowing each his fair profit; it would be found that the farmer should receive 3/9 per bushel at least. Some such step is necessary, for in this locality last season crops went two bags to the acre, which, to say the least of it, is not a payable proposition. This season is drier than last, and results should be no better; had the selling price of wheat been greater the loss would have been less.

FRUIT GROWING.

Mr. Harold Morley, a pioneer orchardist of Mount Irvine, on the western line, who is on a visit to Sydney, states that the prospects of the coming season are very bright. Good rains have fallen in his district, and the fruit trees have come on very well. The fruit on the apple, pear, and citrus trees has set nicely, and as Mr. Morley has strong faith in the efficacy of systematic spraying—he sprays six times a year—there is every likelihood of a more than usually good crop. In apples Mr. Morley obtains the best returns from Jonathans, Cleopatras, and Five Crowns, some of his Jonathans having last season realised up to 9s a case in the Sydney market.

Mr. Morley has hitherto exported largely to Hamburg, but as the German market is practicaly gone, he will confine his attention to the local markets. He recognises that with the opening of the Panama Canal the American market will become an objective of considerable interest to the Australian fruit-grower, while the South American markets afford a good opening for our fruitgrowers. The Victorian and New Zealand growers are turning their attention to South America, as an outlet for their fruit in view of the collapse of the Continental markets. Mr. Morley, however, has strong faith in the local markets, provided that the orchardist devotes his attention to producing fruit of first-class quality, and conforms to the commercial requirements of the market in the matter of grading, etc. Mr. Morley is a Hawkesbury College ex-student, and pins his faith to up-to-date methods of cultivation, and practises good tillage, combined with intelligent methods of pruning and spraying, so that, given a fair rainfall, and average seasons, he has every confidence in the local markets if fruit of the highest quality is produced.

EXPORT OF CHEESE.

"Subscriber" writes:—Already we read of anticipations of a glut in cheese in Australia, because the controlling powers of the trade do not provide an opening (as is provided in New Zealand) for the export of cheese to Great Britain. The prices at home to-day are from 70/ to 80/, or from 7½d to 8½d per pound. Soon we shall hear the wail of producers and alleged sympathetic agents, of the necessity to sacrifice cheese in Sussex-street at 5d or 5½d per pound. Why is cheese not put up in export 80lb sizes and exported?

THE PRICE OF POTATOES.

"Pomme-de-terre" writes:—As one interested in potato-growing, I would like to know if the Government proposes to deal with potatoes as it has done with wheat. There is yet time to refrain from planting. Potatoes this year have not been extra good property. A recovery might have been possible later; but if the authorities propose to step in and deprive the grower of his opportunity the owners of potato lands will know what to do.

WHEAT-GROWING.

EXPERIMENTS AT FORBES.

FORBES.—The Department of Agriculture's experimental wheat plots at Forbes, planted on fallowed land at Mr. Horace Green's Kiaora property, offer a striking contrast to other crops in this district at the present time. An inspector from the department visited the plots during the past few days, and says that on the whole they are looking very well. Federation and Yandilla King are standing the dry spell better than the other varieties. The plots of Bomen, Rymer, Purple Straw, and Marshall's are burnt off in patches, but the earlier varieties, Bunyip and Firbank, were apparently too far gone before the last rain, and these are only carrying a little grain.

POISONING RABBITS.

"Socrates" writes:—Certain P.P. boards have issued orders that all land-holders are to poison rabbits. In some parts of the country hundreds, or even thousands, of people are employed in the trapping industry. Enforcing this order indiscriminately will result in great injury. Just now rabbit skins are valueless, and since poisoned rabbits are not fit for food, absolute waste results. Briefly, the case is thus: Thousands of people earn a living, either directly or indirectly, through trapping. Land-holders recognise trapping is just as effective as poisoning, the carcases are likely to be needed as food, and as a matter of fact "rabbit" is quite a common article of diet now. Some exception should be made in localities where trappers have an opportunity of disposing of the carcases—i.e., where there are country freezing works. I have had some practical experience, and am convinced that consistent trapping acts as a great check, and that's the best any system in force can do.

AUSTRALIAN PRODUCE ABROAD

LONDON, Aug. 27.

Owing to the war most quotations must be taken as nominal, prices being liable to extensive and frequent fluctuations. Both at the New South Wales Agency General and the Commonwealth offices, inquiries are being received as to opportunities for business hitherto done with Germany.

TALLOW.

Business in Australasian tallow has been on a very limited scale, and all operations are reported as being done at last week's quotations. No auctions were held this week, and so far no decision has been arrived at regarding the resumption of the usual weekly sales. Australian quotations are:—Mutton, fair to fine, 34/ to 37/; beef, fair to fine, 31/ to 34/; mixed, dull to good, 27/6 to 31/6.

COPRA.

Copra is great. South Sea Islands is £23/15/ value.

WHEAT.

On the wheat cargo market for South Australian off coast, and New South Wales, July, and four ports, January-February, 45/ is asked, and 44/ for Western Australian, May. For Australian on the way, 43/, is now required.

DRIED FRUIT.

At Cardiff, Australian raisins have been selling at 44/6 to 46/6, and a few Australian sultanas are offering at 42/6 to 44/6.

CHEESE.

The cheese market is very much firmer; and, owing to the generous gift of the Canadian Government, of 50,000 cheeses to the British Government, the market has firmed by at least 2/ per cwt. on spot, and over the cables. Prices of best Canadian white and coloured are about 72/, and ordinary finest 70/. A large amount of business has been put through during the last few days on c.i.f. terms, from 66/6 to 71/ c.i.f., according to time of shipment and quality. English cheese, on the contrary, has been of very slow sale. New Zealand cheese shipments are finished for the season, and there is now very little on spot. Quotations are more or less nominal at 70/ to 74/.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

DUBBO.—At a meeting of the Dubbo branch of the Farmers and Settlers' Association Mr. Nicholas moved,—"That the Government be asked to expedite the completion of the Dubbo-Werris Creek line as far as the 25-mile peg, to permit of the farmers using the railway for next harvest." The motion was seconded by Mr. Craig, and carried.

KEMPSEY.—Showery weather has prevailed during the past four or five days, and the grass is now in abundance, and there is every prospect of a good season.

AGRICULTURAL SHOWS.

ADELONG.

ADELONG.—The 12th Adelong annual show was opened on Tuesday in fine weather, and the attendance for the opening day was satisfactory. The green condition of the ring was much admired by visitors from dry portions of the State. The horse sections were especially good, but cereals, etc., were affected by the dry season.

Awards:—

Thoroughbred horses: E. Jamieson, 1; Gordon, 2. Mare, and foal at foot: R. Horsley. Filly, 3yrs: T. O'Brien, 1; H. Pearce, 2. Mare, 3yrs: R. F. Horsley. Trotting horses—Stallion, 3yrs and over: M. Dennis, 1; J. Whitaker, 2. Mare, 3yrs and over: M. Dennis, 1; R. Horsley, 2. Colt or filly 2yrs and under 3yrs: M. Dennis, 1; A. Davis, 2. Fastest trotting pony 13-14 hds., saddle or harness: M. Dennis, 1; W. O'Brien, 2. Fastest ditto, under 13-hds.: D. Aiken, 1. Trotting gelding or mare: M. Dennis, 1. Trotting stallion: Dennis.

PERTH SHOW.

PERTH.—The Royal Agricultural Show was opened at the society's grounds, Claremont, on Tuesday. Owing to an adverse season, the society decided to omit practically one-half of the usual classes from its prize schedule, and to make a corresponding reduction in the amount of prize-money offered; at the same time reducing the duration of the show from five days to three. The entries consequently show a heavy falling off, compared with those of previous years.

FATAL FIGHT.

INQUIRY BY THE CORONER.

An inquiry was held yesterday, at the City Coroner's Court, into the cause of death of William Norman, 29, who died in the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital on the 25th ult. It was stated in evidence that Norman made certain remarks to Arthur Dale, which the latter did not like. Norman struck Dale, both men being very drunk. A fight started, and Norman fell heavily on his head, and Dale with him. The two had been great friends. Norman fell, and his legs appeared to be under him, and he was bent back. Dale then kicked him.

The City Coroner recorded a finding of manslaughter against Dale, who was committed for trial. Mr. J. W. Abigail appeared at the inquiry to watch Dale's interests.

A SHOOTING CASE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

At the conclusion of an inquiry held to-day the Coroner found that Patricia Angela Bickett, school teacher, 23, died from a gunshot wound in the head, wilfully and feloniously inflicted by Antonio Soro, at Royal Park, on September 14. He found Soro guilty of wilful murder, and committed him for trial.

FACE COVERED WITH DRY RASH.
Barker-street, Lower Randwick, N.S.W.—"My eldest girl had a most dreadful face; it was covered with a dry rash at first, and then it came out in pimples; and when she got warm she would almost tear the face off her. I tried a few different lotions and ointments, but it seemed to do her no good; it would go away for a time, but only to come back again. I was distracted; I did not know what to do, when one day my sister-in-law advised me to get a cake of Cuticura Soap, which I did. You would be surprised; it took all heat out of it, but the scales were still there, so I sent for a sample tin of Cuticura Ointment, and would you believe it, it has quite left her, and she has had no return of it; and not a mark of any kind left." (Signed) Mrs. Catley, April, 1912.
Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a sample of each, with 32-page Skin Book, will be mailed free on application to Towns and Co., Dept. T, Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

W.C.T.U.

ANNUAL CONVENTION.

The business session of the thirty-second annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the Enmore Tabernacle yesterday.

Mrs. Blow, president of the New South Wales Union, read the presidential address. She said that during the year five new unions had been opened. On November 9 they had an all-day pledge-signing campaign. Altogether 1140 books of pledges were sent out, and out of the number 186 were returned, containing 1860 pledges out of a possible 2192; that is, 85 per cent. of the forms returned were filled in. There were 954 books not returned. In addition to the above there were 717 pledges taken by the Temperance Union Sisters in the Sunday-schools on the same day, the school topic for the day being temperance.

During the no-license campaign the women of the society did excellent work, and although they did not carry no-license in any electorate they succeeded in carrying reduction in 15 electorates, and increased the temperance vote by 33,000 new supporters.

Miss E. Bowes, corresponding secretary, reading her report, said that the executive had subscribed by way of money, kits, and clothes to the various patriotic funds. There were now 54 unions in New South Wales, four new ones being organised during the year. The membership totalled 1078, and for the 12 months 2577 pledges had been signed.

Mrs. Blow said that on March 30 this year, Mrs. Mildenhall, the State superintendent for military camps, with her associate, Mrs. Southcott, also Mrs. Ardill and Miss Donaldson, had two tents at the military encampment at Liverpool. One was for the purpose of supplying the trainees with refreshments, and the other providing for them a tent in which they might write, read, or have a little music. On April 3, 10 days after the closing of the first encampment, they started again with their tent at the second encampment, and rendered good services. Mesdames Marsden, Stevens, Costello, and Morris also rendered valuable help.

THE LEAVING CERTIFICATE.

The Minister for Public Instruction announces that the intermediate certificate examination will be held during the week commencing Monday, November 23 next. The award of probationary student scholarships will be determined upon the results of this examination. The leaving certificate examination will also be held on Monday, November 23, and succeeding days, but the papers in Latin, Greek, and English, and geography (for engineering matriculation), will be taken on the days set for these subjects at the senior public examination.

LORD KITCHENER'S ADVICE TO BRITISH SOLDIERS.

The history of every nation shows the names of great generals famous in strategy and defence art against fierce invading attacks of foes upon their native land.

The war in Europe to-day is a fight for supremacy. The very foundations of the British Empire are being shaken, but being a nation of illimitable resources, she will no doubt triumph in war and in universal trade.

Some letters written by British officers are interesting, especially where they deal with ill-health of the men on active service. Lord Kitchener, in his advice to each member of the first expeditionary force sent to France, said, "You cannot do your duty unless you are healthy." And there is no doubt but that this great soldier is correct, for an unhealthy army would be only a prey to an opposing one. Therefore, it would be a good thing if it were possible for every Australian soldier going to the front if they could take along with them, to keep their nerves and appetite sound, a supply of Clements Tonic, which is recognised as the one great nerve medicine of the present time.

In times of war, and in times of peace, this medicine keeps the nerves free from severe nervous attacks and mental exhaustion. In cases of Insomnia and Nerve Breakdown it relieves rapidly. It acts as a balm upon the overwrought system, it soothes and induces restful sleep when the mind is harried with business and other troubles; it creates appetite and regulates and strengthens the digestive processes. It is the advance agent of health. All chemists and stores sell it everywhere.—Advt.

ECZEMA is relieved by the use of SULPHOLINE LOTION, which purifies and softens the skin, removing all skin trouble. Only real remedy for Eczema, with its ter. itching and burn. Spots, blackheads van. almost at once. Bottles 1s. All lead. stores.—Advt.

A NEED OF THE TIMES
—AND A SUGGESTION

RUMOR and false report and panic fear, weapons of calamity almost as keen-edged and deadly as the sword of war itself, are purely products of our mental state.

So, as we watch the tremendous forces of the Old World civilization rending its own structure apart—as we watch this civilization writhing in the throes of what we know is but the birth of a new and higher order—let us see to it carefully that, for our own good and for the good of all, we retain our mental poise and calm confidence in our own prosperity.

—And to this end let us bring into our lives and homes every influence that makes for happiness, harmony and peace—that clears our thoughts and helps us to calm vision

Of all such influences none are so potent as music. Music to which man has always turned for solace and inspiration—the one power able to lift thought above itself, out of the region of anxious doubt and fear.

If to you and yours, music is not always available, this is a time when you may well take serious thought as to how you may best make it so.

That it lies within your power to flood your life, your home and the lives of your family with the sunshine and inspiration of good music, is a patent fact.

The Pianola, the most modern pianoforte and greatest musical instrument of all times is waiting for installation in your home.

Exchange the silent or rarely used piano you now have for The Pianola—the piano which is better and which you and every member of your household can play with real ability.

Enjoy a little every-day period of recreation and mental refreshment, by playing, yourself, this wonderful pianoforte. Give your young folks wholesome entertainment in their own home. Help your children in their music-study by allowing them access to the masterpieces of the art.

Never before has the Pianola been so needed in the home.

Never before was it so fine, so perfect, so economical and so easy to buy. Come to Pianola Hall tomorrow and investigate. It will cost you nothing to know more about the Pianola, its moderate cost and easy terms of purchase.

The Pianola is on sale only at Pianola Hall. It is radically different from so-called "player-pianos" sold elsewhere, and is the only instrument of this type approved and endorsed by the great musicians and musical educators of the world.

BEARD, WATSON'S SPECIMEN
FURNISHED ROOMS.
One of the difficulties which a young married couple generally have to confront is that of furnishing the new home. They have little or no experience to guide them, their notions of what the complete equipment will cost are vague, and their knowledge, even of the essential requirements of the household, is more or less nebulous in character.
We have endeavoured, in our Specimen Fitted Rooms, to show what can be done in the way of simple effective, and artistic Furnishings, at all sorts of prices, from VERY LOW to high, the small cottage or the more pretentious mansion.
You are invited to walk through these rooms, even if at present you do not want to purchase, and see for yourself how, for a very small, but definite, outlay, you can furnish, and how the furniture will look when placed in its proper surroundings.
EVERY PIECE IS PRICED IN PLAIN FIGURES.

GERMANY'S COLONIES.

All told, Germany's colonial possessions do not cover much more than a million square miles—say a third of the area of Australia; and her white population abroad numbers about twenty-five thousand, of which a third only are Germans. This in a bald sentence was the extent of the German Empire outside of Europe before the Allies began to annex or attack it. It is well to recall the fact that the Allies are concerned in this phase of the war, except as regards Russia. The Czar's power upon the oceans is at present so limited that no Russian cruisers have helped British or Japanese land forces to take German colonies; but we must remember that France has been helping us in the Pacific, and that the French navy in the Mediterranean has been an important factor in keeping Australian lines of communication through the Suez Canal comfortably open. Broadly, however, British colonial activity has counted most in spoiling the Germans abroad. It is still engaged in Africa through an immense area blocking raids, destroying wireless stations, or hoisting the flag upon captured soil. The South African forces are dealing with the enemy in the south-west; Rhodesia is watching her side of East Africa; while Uganda and contingents of Indian troops are dealing with the other side. Togoland and the Cameroons on the west have been surrendered, and now fly the Union Jack or the Tricolour. In the Pacific there is little left for Australasia to do. Our letters from German New Guinea show how the recent fighting has gone, and Samoa today is settling down to the new order without a pang of regret. This is, indeed, the truth about an exchange of masters everywhere. The German policy towards some twelve millions of natives in Africa, Asia, and Polynesia has been one of absolute mastership, without a trace of regard for people dispossessed and derelict. It has been in effect a system of slavery under modern conditions. This is the natural outcome of a military autocracy; and while some discount may be demanded in the case of Samoa, where Dr. Schultz the late Governor, following Dr. Solf, a model administrator, has been doing good work within the limits of his powers, it is clear that he was always at the mercy of the bureaucracy in Berlin. Samoa was not being used for the benefit of anybody but German officials. They were sent out to the Governor largely in excess of his needs, and the natives had to toil to provide a revenue for their spending. Curiously enough, among all the German colonies Togoland, the smallest, seems to have stood alone as actually self-supporting. The others were still in need of help from home; and in this respect Kiao-Chao has represented the investment of millions of marks to make it a finger of the mailed fist as against China and Japan. Especially has the latter Power been watchful of this development in German colonial enterprise. Japan is smashing Germany in the China Seas, and is thus doing much more than attacking one of her colonies; but she is paying off old scores, and preparing the way for a new order in the world's trade with China. This is where Britain's opportunity will be found later on.

Commenting upon the seizure of the German steamer Wissmann on Lake Nyassa in August last, not long after Britain had declared war, the "Cologne Gazette" struck a pose which is strangely out of date in the light of Louvain, Reims, and the barbarities practised elsewhere in France and Belgium. It protested against the seizure of German colonies by Britons because the question of their possession "will be decided, not in the remoter continents, but on the battlefields of Europe and in the North Sea." It declared that by falling upon small military garrisons and destroying small steamers "the waging of war loses all chivalry and approaches Russian methods;" and it wound up with the following criticism of Britons at large: —"We think that in the end they have more to lose than we, if they continue to hold before the minor races the picture of the mutual destruction of the white race." This is, of course, good argument when the strength of the position is hopelessly against Germany. It is precisely what one would expect as between Powers concerned to observe the courtesies before watchful millions of dark people in the tropics. But unfortunately for Germany the sympathies of the dark races are against her, and with Great Britain. India has shown what races numbering three hundred and odd millions think of the latter country and her cause; and since German islands in the Pacific have been transferred to another flag the natives have been quite content with British rule. Thanks to Germany the picture of the mutual destruction of the white race is being painted in colours of earthquake and eclipse; but so far the effect of British fighting and of British unity has been inspiring as signifying growing strength in, and a mighty future for, the Empire upon which the sun never sets. For the rest it is good business for the Allies to cripple Germany wherever she holds a foot of ground. When the settling time comes there will be need for territory in possession, for power demonstrated, and for the assurance of fighting forces still in process of development, if Prussian militarism is to realise that it must surrender and disappear. From another point of view, should there be any call for bargaining, for a settlement by give and take, the Powers with most in hand will be able to dictate terms to the Powers bereft of their assets or of the best of them. In any event, Australia and New Zealand know that Germany must be beaten, even if the war takes three years; and with Germany beaten Samoa and the rest will remain where they should originally have been placed—in British hands.

GERMAN TRADE.

The "Berliner Tageblatt," which appears to enjoy a greater license in war than was usually allowed to any German newspaper in times of peace, has recently pointed out to the German people one of the inevitable consequences of the action of their rulers. The most casual observer could see that the war, whatever its results, must strike a heavy blow at German trade. We cannot assume that the "Tageblatt" has ventured to hint at the ultimate defeat of the Imperial armies, though it has certainly suggested that they are in a somewhat difficult position. But for the purposes of this warning it does not very much matter whether Germany conquers or is conquered. If she were victorious, she would have an indemnity with which to stimulate a temporary boom in manufactures. But the indemnity would not bring her back what the war has lost to her, the goodwill of other nations, and their faith in her credit. It is quite certain that Great Britain, her colonies, and the other belligerents will not buy from Germany what they can buy elsewhere. Since there are many articles which cannot be bought elsewhere, some part of the annual income of five hundred millions will still be collected by German merchants. But prejudice and enlightened self-interest will combine to prevent that part from being larger than is absolutely necessary. The war which has superseded the ingenious and long-suffering tradesman by an intolerable military caste, will give the appearance of a patriotic duty to the efforts of each nation to make itself self-contained. Since a successful war would have given Germany over to the military class for many generations, defeat will probably be less disastrous than victory to her trade. But, unfortunately, in one respect German merchants have employed the same tactics as their rulers, and are implicated as deeply as they. German credit will not for many years recover from the shock inflicted on it by the offer to pay the people of the north of England their debts in German stock, or not at all. The treatment of English creditors, both before and after the war began, will react in Germany on the guilty and innocent alike.

The reproach often directed against British moneylenders that they favour the outsider more than their own countrymen will hardly be needed after this revelation of dangers which cannot be appreciated in times of peace; in the future the German merchant will be able to hope for very little from British credit, the instrument which has served him so well in his attacks on foreign markets, especially on those of his enemy, the Japanese. We do not imagine that the latest device of the War Office at Berlin will restore the national reputation for fair dealing. A company is to be formed which will have an inconsiderable capital, but of which the solitary asset will be the raw material looted from the manufacturing towns of France, Belgium, and Russia. From one point of view the scheme has a great deal to recommend it. If successful it will help to keep the factories in working order, so that they will be able to absorb Australian wool as soon as the war is over. But from any other, it can only be described as typical of the German contempt for the rights of private property. Even if the property is paid for the seizure will be none the less unwarranted. The best that the owners can hope for is the same security as was offered to the Bradford merchants, a share in the war loan, which will depreciate as soon as it is issued. One fact which may have weighed with the "Tageblatt" is the unwonted energy of the Board of Trade in offering advice to British merchants. Great Britain will suffer severely from the impoverishment of one of her best customers, which has become the necessary result of her naval supremacy. British merchants will, therefore, be compelled to look for new markets, as much for the disposal of their surplus stocks as for the opening of new lines of activity. The war has taught us in Australia how much the world has owed to Teutonic perseverance and thoroughness, qualities which will remain when the military power has been defeated. But for Germany our mines would not have realised the full value of their ores, nor would our finest wools have ever reached their recent high prices. Germany has indeed filled a place in the industrial world from which she cannot be entirely superseded. As Mr. Hughes stated in an interview on Monday, there are certain manufactures for which we cannot provide the capital, even if we can find the skill. But the Government will do well to follow the example of the Board of Trade, and show in what way the isolation of the German Empire may be turned to account by manufacturers and engineers. Whatever information the Government may supply, our merchants may learn from the German example that something more is needed by a progressive nation than successive increases of tariff.

The "Sydney Mail."—The high standard of the "Mail's" war specials is fully maintained by the current issue—No. X. It contains a number of photographs direct from the front, and relating to the early fighting in Belgium, as well as several pictures illustrating the war enthusiasm in London. An interesting page deals with the German colonies in Africa; Nauru (Pleasant Island), one of Germany's East Pacific possessions, is illustrated and described, and there are several pictures of France's black troops. There is a group of German residents at Kiao-Chao; and a "War Miscellany" comprises a panoramic view of Antwerp, New South Wales infantrymen on the march, Naval Reserve men leaving London to join their ships, and British Red Cross nurses bound for the front. There is a fine page portrait of Major-General Bridges, who is in command of the Australian Expeditionary Force; and among many other excellent pictures are photographs of the Victorian, South Australian, and New South Wales volunteers, including a couple of striking scenes of the march of the troops through Adelaide, and an admirable double-page engraving of two typical members of the New South Wales Light Horse.

FEDERAL SESSION.

CAUCUS MEETS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Federal Parliament will not be officially opened until Thursday. The pre-sessional Labour caucus was held at Parliament House to-day, and, although it was continued until well towards midnight, nothing definite was decided on. A further meeting was called for to-morrow.

Nothing could be learned of the intentions of the party in connection with the work to be submitted to the new Parliament. There are many things on the programme which will give ample scope for the energies of members on both sides, but no hint has been dropped as to what particular subject will be first dealt with. In view of the fact that supply has only been granted up till the end of September, this will be the first matter brought forward. After that is disposed of Ministers have a varied programme to select from, which includes tariff alterations, legislation for the initiative, and referendum alterations in the Constitution, and proposals to meet the increased financial obligations of the Commonwealth brought about by the war.

SEIZED WHEAT.

FALLING PRICES.

Now that the prices of wheat in England have shown a marked tendency to become lower, it is unlikely that more wheat will be seized by the State Government at the proclaimed price of 4/2 per bushel.

The Attorney-General stated yesterday that the seizure of some 140,000 bags recently had had a wholesome effect in preventing the price of wheat, bread, and flour from mounting here.

Yesterday the Government sold small lots of wheat to millers, and the supply on hand is steadily diminishing.

Further evidence will be heard before the Necessary Commodities' Control Commission this morning regarding gas and wheat, and on the question of the country and city prices of wheat and other things.

This afternoon the members of the commission will discuss the result of the morning's proceedings with the Attorney-General.

PERSONAL.

The Minister for Agriculture and Acting Minister for Lands, Mr. Ashford, left Sydney last night to open the Adelong Show to-day.

Mr. L. E. Groom, ex-Minister for Customs, arrived from Brisbane yesterday, and left last evening for Melbourne.

The Rev. A. K. Chignall, of Wanigia, Papua, is on a visit to Sydney on furlough.

The Chief Justice of South Australia, Sir Samuel Way, took his seat on the Bench at Adelaide yesterday morning after an absence of three months, during which period he underwent an operation for the amputation of his left arm.

CAPTURE OF GERMAN NEW GUINEA

NEW REGIME.

HOISTING THE BRITISH FLAG

AT NEW BRITAIN.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL COMMISSIONER.)

RABAUL, Sept. 13.

Last evening four companies of infantry were landed at Rabaul under Colonel Paton, and this afternoon the ceremony of hoisting the flag was performed with all due solemnity. On our arrival last night we were greeted with the curious spectacle of a number of English ships, including ships of war, lying at anchor in the harbour, and on the other hand no fewer than three German flags flying over a surrendered town. They were promptly hauled down by the Provost-Marshal, Lieutenant Ravenscroft. At a quarter to 3 this afternoon the troops formed in hollow square on the parade ground, surrounding the flagstaff.

The population had been previously warned of the ceremony about to take place, and, whether reluctantly or not, everyone was present, from the Burgomeister and other notables in spotless ducks down to the natives, looking highly picturesque with their red loin cloths and rich black skins. Chinese smirked amiably in the crowd, urbane Japanese rubbed their hands with evident satisfaction, while not a few Japanese women were to be seen in full array of kimonos, bright obis, and butterfly-tinted paper parasols. Even a sprinkling of Malays, heavy-lipped and lustrous-eyed, watched with keen curiosity the progress of events.

SALUTING THE FLAG.

At 10 minutes to 3 a general salute announced the arrival of the Brigadier and staff. The A.D.C., Lieutenant Holmes, stepped forward to the flagstaff and laid his hand upon the halliards; then at a word from the Brigadier the little knot of bunting ran briskly up the staff and broke into a triumphant flood of colour, the red, white, and blue of the Union Jack, at the summit, amid a thunder of guns firing the royal salute. The singing of the National Anthem by the whole of the troops present, led by the Brigadier, followed. One has heard the old, familiar, hackneyed tune vulgarised by the reek of public dinners and rendered momentarily even petty in one's estimation by its obtrusion at petty affairs; but until one has heard it echoing from the lips of a body of men, unconquerable in death, as at the sinking of the Birkenhead, or triumphant upon an enemy's soil even in so comparatively small an instance as here at Rabaul, one may safely be said never truly to have heard it at all. It is indescribable; let that suffice.

MILITARY PROCLAMATION.

The proclamation, subjoined, was read by the Brigadier as the last cheers for the King died away.

G.R.
PROCLAMATION.

Proclamation on behalf of his Majesty George the Fifth, by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the Dominions Overseas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India,

By Colonel William Holmes, D.S.O., V.D., Brigadier Commanding his Majesty's Naval and Military Expeditionary Force.

Whereas the forces under my command have occupied the Island of New Britain; and whereas upon such occupation the authority of the German Government has ceased to exist therein; and whereas it has become essential to provide for proper government of the said colony, and for the protection of the lives and property of the peaceful inhabitants thereof,

Now, I, William Holmes, Companion of the Distinguished Service Order, Colonel in his Majesty's Forces, Brigadier Commanding the aforesaid Expeditionary Force, do hereby declare and proclaim as follows:—

1. From and after the date of these presents the island of New Britain and its dependencies are held by me in military occupation in the name of his Majesty the King.

2. War will be waged only against the armed forces of the German Empire and its allies in the present war.

3. The lives and private property of peaceful inhabitants will be protected, and the laws and customs of the colony will remain in force so far as is consistent with the military situation.

4. If the needs of the troops demand it, private property may be requisitioned. Such property will be paid for at its fair value.

5. Certain officials of the late Government may be retained, if they so desire, at their usual salaries.

6. In return for such protection it is the duty of all inhabitants to behave in an absolutely peaceful manner, to carry on their ordinary pursuits so far as is possible, to take no part directly or indirectly in any hostilities, to abstain from communication with his Majesty's enemies, and to render obedience to such orders as may be promulgated.

7. All male inhabitants of European origin are required to take the oath of neutrality prescribed, at the garrison headquarters, and all firearms, ammunition, and war material in the possession or control of inhabitants are to be surrendered forthwith, as is also all public property of the late Government.

8. Non-compliance with the terms of this proclamation, and disobedience of such orders as from time to time may be promulgated, will be dealt with according to military law.

9. It is hereby notified that this proclamation takes effect in the whole island of New Britain and its dependencies from this date.

Given at Government House, Rabaul, this twelfth day of September, 1914.

(Sgd.) WILLIAM HOLMES,
Brigadier Commanding.
Witness—(Sgd.) FRANCIS HERITAGE,
Major, Brigade Major.
GOD SAVE THE KING.

Afterwards a separate proclamation was read to the natives. This remarkable document is well worth recording in full, if only for the curious fact which it reveals that in a German colony pidgin English is the only medium of communication between the Germans and their subjects:—

"All Boys belongina all place, you savvy big fellow Master he come now; he new feller Master, he strong feller too much, you look him all ship stop place; he small feller ship belongina him; plenty more big feller he stop place belongina him, now he come here he take him all place; he look out good you feller, now he like you feller, look out good along him. Me been talk along with you now, now you give three feller cheers belongina new feller Master."

It may be added that the cheers were given with surprising vigour.

CONQUEST COMPLETE.

RABAUL, Sept. 17.

An eventful five days have passed since, and including Sunday last, but the conquest of the entire territory known as German New Guinea is now concluded, and nothing remains but a little shouting and a vast amount of administrative work on the part of everybody sufficiently unfortunate to hold a position of authority. With the signing this afternoon of the articles of surrender by the brigadier, Colonel Holmes, and his Excellency, Dr. Haber, Acting Governor, the work of the Australian Naval and Military Expedition in the German possessions in the Pacific is practically finished, from a drum and trumpet point of view.

There remains only the formal laying-down of arms on Monday next at Herbertshohe, the occupation of German New Guinea by a force, and a long round of weary, flat, and stale garrison duty, till the conclusion of the war.

The reported attack last Sunday upon Herbertshohe resolves itself, now that the facts are known, into an episode, which, beginning from an incident not devoid of humour in itself, developed eventually into one of the most brilliant feats in the course of the campaign.

The fact that the emptiness of the alarm was almost at once discovered came too late to prevent the sending of reinforcements from the Berrima. With astonishing rapidity G and H companies were placed on board one of the cruisers, and rushed down to Herbertshohe under the command of Colonel Watson. They were at once landed; and, though no signs of the enemy were apparent in the immediate neighbourhood, Colonel Watson was instructed by the Brigadier to seize the opportunity for striking a decisive blow.

THE BOMBARDMENT.

It was decided to march to Toma, whither the Acting Governor had shifted the seat of control previous to the expedition's arrival. Fortunately a map of the country inland from Herbertshohe had been discovered in the Government offices, and it was arranged that one of the warships should shell a series of positions ahead of the troops, so as to clear the way. The bombardment accordingly began at daylight, and there can be no doubt that the moral effect was tremendous. "They dropped their shells right into the back yards of the positions we marked out," said Colonel Watson, enthusiastically, afterwards, in describing the aim of the gunners on the cruiser.

At intervals along the line of march the advancing column came upon traces of the work done by the warship—great gashes torn in the ground, palms cut down and levelled as though a small tornado had passed over the place. Shell-fire to cover the advance of troops has a value entirely apart from and superior to the number of casualties inflicted.

The roar of the guns and the succeeding concussion, close at hand, deafening, heart-shaking, filling the air with destruction and terror, as the lyddite bursts close at hand, spreading its poisonous yellow fumes for thirty yards in all directions, has a demoralising effect which is quite immeasurable in terms of actual dead or wounded. In the present instance the enemy retreated without even attempting to offer resistance, destroying the mines that they had planted along the road.

THE NEW CAPITOL.

Toma, a little sanatorium, pleasantly situated among the hills, consisted of a couple of accommodation houses about nine and three-quarter miles inland from Herbertshohe. The troops left Herbertshohe early in the morning, while it was yet fairly cool, but as the day wore on the full rays of a tropical sun poured down upon the column, which was burdened with supplies for three days, together with 200 rounds of ammunition per man, with relentless ferocity.

Occasionally the route lay through a plantation, generally of cocoanuts, on one occasion of rubber trees, the shade of whose broad, dark green leaves afforded a welcome relief. The long, winding road, graded so gently that at times it was only possible to realise that an ascent was being made when one came out on to some point commanding a backward view of the valley below, where the troops had passed half an hour before, was covered, like every road in the island, nearly ankle-deep with heavy, white dust that rose in a blind, choking, cloud from the tramping feet, and soon emptied the water-bottles lifted continually to moisten the dry lips. On either side of the road gloomed the shadowy, green depths of bamboo and palm, and vine, cruelly fanged, forming an impenetrable screen from which at every moment a tempest of bullets might be hurled upon the wearied ranks.

Suddenly, about half way to Toma, the vanguard halted. A wave of excitement shuddered its way to calm down the snake-like length of the column. An envoy with a white flag had appeared in front of the advancing spray of scouts. He bore a message from the Acting Governor to Colonel Watson to the effect that his Excellency could not recognise the occupation of the capital in the fact that the flag had been hoisted at Rabaul, since the seat of government had been transferred a month previously to Toma. Colonel Watson replied, with the brevity of an epigram, that he intended to sleep at Toma that night.

The envoy shrugged his shoulders.

"What good will that do you?" he inquired. "We will move the Government to Bining," a place considerably further inland.

"Very good," retorted Colonel Watson, "we'll follow you to Bining."

"It is of no consequence," replied the envoy, looking nevertheless somewhat nonplussed, "We can go to Pondo." Pondo is on the opposite side of the island.

"Then we'll chase you to Pondo," answered the Colonel, who was growing tired of a discussion carried on under a blazing sun.

The envoy this time was obviously embarrassed. "But you cannot," he stammered, "you cannot do that. It is impossible. You have not supplies."

"Oh, yes, we have," replied the Colonel grimly, "we have plenty with us, and we can get lots more if necessary. Tell his Excellency that he had better meet me at once and surrender. It will save both time and trouble."

After some demur, the envoy, one at least of whose objects was, it would appear, to gain time, proposed that Colonel Watson should wait where he was while he conveyed the colonel's message to his master and returned with his reply. To this proposition, which would have entailed a four-hours' delay, the colonel returned an unhesitating refusal, and the envoy accordingly departed.

A TROPICAL DOWNPOUR.

Again the march was resumed, with parched throats and blistering feet. But the force had scarcely started, when the clouds, which had meantime been gathering quickly, suddenly poured down a perfect deluge of rain. The dusty, sunbaked men turned their faces to the sky and felt a new life course through their veins as the water poured in streams down their bodies.

In a few moments everyone was not wet, but literally soaked to the skin. Men filled their empty bottles in ten seconds; they caught the rain in helmets, or banana-leaves, and drank in great gulps. Their boots squelched water at every step, as though they had been fording a stream. So thick and heavy was the downpour that the entire horizon was blotted out as though by a curtain of steel. This truly tropical rain-storm continued for two hours, with practically unabated violence, and the rain was still falling in torrential masses when, about 3 o'clock, a vague blur through the mists on the summit of a low hill told the men that the object of the march was at length within their reach.

Up to this point, save for a few shots fired at some small parties of armed natives sighted on two occasions at some distance ahead, the march had been entirely unopposed. But now, as the column wound its way round the hill, and while Colonel Watson was already reassuring the alarmed proprietor of the sanatorium above, what appeared to be a fairly considerable body of troops showed itself indistinctly on an opposite ridge through the vertical masses of the rain.

DISCHARGING SHRAPNEL.

At the word of command the men who had hauled the 12-pounder field-gun up the long slope from Herbertshohe swung her smartly into position, and with a flash and a roar two charges of shrapnel were launched against the ridge. The enemy, if enemy they were, made no reply, disappearing as swiftly as they had come, and, after waiting till 4 o'clock on the chance of a message from the Governor, and to give the troops a much-needed rest, the force began its return to Herbertshohe. At about half-past 5 an envoy galloped up to the rearguard, with a message for Colonel Watson, to say that the Acting Governor would come into Herbertshohe at 11 on the following morning to confer with the Brigadier.

It was not until late in the evening that the column filed back into Herbertshohe, weary with their march of 19½ miles, but triumphing and jubilant at the success of their mission and the consciousness of work well done.

A conference of three and a half hours ended in a suspension of hostilities being agreed upon until noon on Thursday, pending a second consultation. At about half-past 11 a scout rode in on a bicycle and announced that the Acting Governor had reached the outposts. A swift order, and the guard of honour drawn up outside headquarters, once the Herbertshohe post-office, sprang to attention.

Down the dusty road, fringed with the lithe, feathery palms, through which gleamed panels of amethyst-coloured sea, appeared a little cloud of dust, a group of horses, a white flag.

"Steady there," hissed the sergeant, "eyes front! Don't lean forward!" as the guard turned instinctively, like everyone else, to catch a glimpse of the man who had opposed to us, unseen, the armed authority of the Emperor.

CAPITULATION SIGNED.

The long line of rifles leapt to the "present!" the officers flashed their swords from the scabbards, held them for a moment before their faces, and dropped the points to earth in the general salute, as, accompanied by the commandant, Captain Von Clewitz, a tall, soldierly officer with the blue and white shoulder-straps and gold "O" of Queen Olga's regiment, the Acting Governor, a short, close-knit figure, whose black moustache and gold-rimmed glasses scarcely veiled the somewhat wistful mouth and eyes of a thinker rather than a man of action, swung off his horse and disappeared among the little group of officers on the verandah. There was, I fancied, more than a hint of melancholy, half ironical, half bewildered, in the expression of those dark, introspective eyes, as he emerged at the end of an hour, the capitulation signed, and noted again the general salute that signalled his departure.

The principal terms of capitulation, briefly, were the permanent cessation of all resistance, the surrender of the administration, the handing over of all arms and ammunition, and the liberation of any English residents still under durance. In return the enemy's troops are to be allowed to surrender, with full military honours, and Dr. Haber himself to be sent to Sydney on his own parole.

Most of the combatants are planters, whose estates are already beginning to suffer from neglect combined with the inroads of irresponsible natives, stirred up particularly by the scarcity of food, which has been growing steadily more pressing. For days past the feeling among the inhabitants, both of Herbertshohe and Rabaul, has been strongly in favour of the Acting Governor's surrender. There are now scarcely any who have not taken the oath of neutrality, and it is highly probable that all those who formally lay down their arms on Monday will recognise the wisdom of following suit. The arrest and deportation of all the leading officials at Rabaul have furthermore produced a considerable effect upon the remainder.

Their attitude is now entirely changed since when, on the night of the troops landing at Rabaul, they confronted Colonel Paton with expressions of simulated ignorance, and a veiled determination to refuse, as far as possible, their assistance in the work of administration. It was in vain that Colonel Paton warned the Burgomaster that he would be held responsible for untoward acts on the part of the German residents. Our sentries were fired on, signalling was continued night and day from the hills surrounding the town.

A refusal to remove their hats by way of acknowledgment at the hoisting of the Union Jack on Sunday last completed the strain upon the Brigadier's endurance, and on their appearing at headquarters in response to a curt demand for their presence they found themselves promptly placed under arrest and transferred to the Berrima.

PRIVATE PROPERTY RESPECTED.

The realisation that the new regime means the respecting of private persons and private property, the serving of the best interests of the country, and the prompt punishment of any attempts at unlawful behaviour by any of the troops, has also helped enormously to gain the sympathetic assistance of all the German residents. At present the water supply is something of a thorn in the administrative flesh. The spring from which supplies are usually obtained has dried up, owing to a four-months' drought, and a second spring since discovered, is insufficient for the demands upon it. A condensing plant, however, is already about to be set up, and it is expected that, even before the arrival of the wet season, which is anticipated early next month, the water supply in Rabaul will be again amply provided for.

As for food supplies, messages have already been sent to Sydney and Hongkong to meet the increasing requirements as early as possible.

A GENERAL SURRENDER.

RABAUL, Sept. 21.

A group of officers, gathered around Commander Beresford and Brigade Major Heritage, consulted their watches from time to time, upon the verandah of headquarters at Herbertshohe. The guard of honour opposite, commanded by Major Martin, blinked their eyes in the glare, turning every now and then to cast an expectant glance down the road to Toma.

An orderly pedalled in on a bicycle, with a message for the garrison commander. The officer waiting patiently in the dust, gave a brief command, and the line of men behind him stiffened abruptly to attention. Down the road the head of a marching column swung into sight, rifle on shoulder, the red lava-lavas of the black troops gleaming through the white dust-clouds in picturesque contrast to the khaki of the 35 Germans who came first.

As they halted, turned and fell into two lines, directly opposite the guard of soldiers and naval reserves presenting arms on the other side of the road, it was hard, indeed, to realise that these men were now prisoners of war, and still harder to comprehend exactly why. One looked in vain for signs of defeat. Neat, well-armed, jaunty of bearing, they might, to all appearance, have just marched in as visitors, instead of for the purpose of giving themselves up. And the perfection of the drill displayed, not only by the whites, but by the black soldiery, 120 strong, was a thing to make seasoned soldiers open their eyes with admiration and amazement.

"Never saw anything to surpass it," murmured one officer to me, "and I've seen the Haussa troops, and the Somalilanders, and even native regiments in India." That the native troops, according to the statements of the Germans themselves, have no stomach for fighting, doubtless had a good deal to do with it, but still, why the defence put up at Kaba Kaul and on the road to Toma was not more strenuous, especially in view of the natural strength of both positions, is difficult in the extreme to understand. It is, of course, true that the opposing forces were enormously superior in numbers, but with reasonable supplies even a small force, such as this, which consisted of five officers, 35 white troops, 12 native constabulary, and about 120 armed natives, might have held out, one would think, for a very long time in such difficult country.

"CAPITAL IN THE FIELD."

The occupation of Rabaul, Herbertshohe, Toma, or Pondo, would not have been of any very grave significance, so long as the officials comprising the administration remained uncaptured. President Kruger, in South Africa, it will be remembered, for a while made a railway carriage his seat of Government, and, as a matter of fact, Dr. Haber's last communication was actually headed, "Capital in the field, No. 1."

Dr. Haber himself came into Herbertshohe about two hours after the surrender had taken place, and the rifles and ammunition removed and stored. He was again accompanied by Captain von Clewitz, his commandant, who had superintended the entry and subsequent operations in the morning, so far as the German troops were concerned. To-morrow morning he arrives in Rabaul, prior to his departure for Sydney. A number of officers and officials were taken to Rabaul this afternoon in charge of the brigade major.

By an ironic touch of fate a batch of 40 German reservists from Friedrich Wilhelmshafen, reinforcements for the ex-Acting Governor's troops, landed this morning on the opposite side of the island, almost precisely at the moment when the formal surrender was taking place. They advanced in the direction of Toma. A force was immediately despatched to meet them, under Lieutenant Sampson, bearing a white flag, to inform them of the situation. Probably they will surrender at discretion. Their feelings on receipt of the news may better be imagined than described.

An amusing incident occurred a few days ago at Rabaul. Prior to the signing of the conditions of surrender it was difficult and even dangerous to attempt to wander about the town after nightfall, sentries guarding every approach to the main pier, while the sudden "Halt, who goes there?" met one at every crossing. A visit, however, was expected from a naval officer, and instructions were accordingly given the sentries to pass him through. Unhappily the sentries, with a deplorable excess of zeal, understood the order in a too literal sense, and the indignant officer arrived at Rabaul garrison headquarters with a bayonet on either side.

"Apologies and explanations followed, and the incident ended in laughter, in which the august victim, a thorough sportsman, was not the last to join.

THE NEW CONDITIONS.

The following order has been issued both in English and in German by Colonel Holmes:—

THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT OF NEW BRITAIN.

Colonel W. HOLMES, D.S.O., V.D.,
Brigadier Commanding.
11th September, 1914.

2. Inhabitants are forbidden to be out of doors any night between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m., without special permits.

3. Inhabitants are forbidden to hold or attend meetings.

IN FRANCE.

GROUND YIELDED.

BATTLE UNDECIDED.

Russia's Good Work.

Violent fighting is still going on between the Allies' left wing and the German right in France.

The battle is undecided. The Allies have yielded ground at certain points.

Nearer the centre German attacks have been repulsed.

It is reported that the Germans have sustained heavy losses in Russia.

A decisive engagement is expected in the province of Kielce, South Poland, where the Germans are still masters.

Two Russian armies are marching towards Allenstein, East Prussia.

WAR BULLETIN.

SIR GEORGE REID'S MESSAGE

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Sir George Reid cables from London, under date of October 5, 4.15 p.m.:—

Official: The battle of Augustow ended on Saturday in a victory for the Russians. The German defeat was complete, and the enemy is now in a disorderly retreat towards the frontier of Prussia, with the Russians vigorously pursuing them. On the left bank of the Vistula and in Galicia the situation is unchanged.

Paris: Official reports state that on our left wing the battle is in full progress in the Arras region. Fighting between Arras and the Somme, and between the Somme and the Oise, is less violent. Progress has been made in the Soissons region, where the enemy's trenches have been taken.

October 5, 9 p.m.—"Official: There was considerable activity during September in East Africa, due to efforts on the part of the enemy to raid British territory and cut the Uganda railway. All attempts were repulsed.

"A Paris report states that the enemy has evacuated Suwalki and Lomza.

"The Allies have been forced to yield ground at certain points on the left wing, north of the River Oise, where a battle is proceeding violently. No decision has been reached."

IN FRANCE.

ALLIES' LEFT WING.

GROUND YIELDED.

PARIS, Oct. 5.

A communique states: On the left, north of the Oise, a violent battle continues, but there is no decisive result.

We have been forced to yield certain ground at certain points, but there is no change elsewhere.

ATTACKS REPULSED.

PARIS, Oct. 6.

An official communique issued at midnight last night states: The general situation is stationary.

On the left wing the action is still progressing.

We have repulsed day and night attacks in the Argonne, and on the heights of the Meuse.

HEAVY ARTILLERY.

A French artillery officer states that the German 17-inch Howitzers have disastrous effects at long ranges, but the mechanism is so complex and transport so difficult that ideal conditions for their use are rarely obtained.

The howitzers are harmless at close ranges. The handy French 75-millimetre gun is generally able to destroy Krupp's expert engineer and the gun-layers, and a bayonet charge follows. A number of howitzers have already been captured in this war.

A BRAVE ENDING.

French soldiers relate a thrilling story concerning David Kay, of the 5th Lancers. They state that he became separated from his regiment, and taking refuge in a railway carriage, he refused to surrendered. He shot six German officers before he was killed.

CAPTURE OF TRENCHES.

BRITISH ACHIEVEMENT.

It is stated that the capture of the trenches in one of the districts was due to the British, and particularly to two famous Highland regiments.

For some days scarcely more than 200 yards separated the trenches, and an almost continuous fire was maintained over that short range night and day, with infantry rushes from either side, culminating in a terrific and successful bayonet charge.

During the previous two days the Germans refused to allow the British Red Cross to pick up the wounded, and declined to permit their own ambulances to gather in the Germans.

ROBBING THE DEAD.

GERMANS SENTENCED.

Two German soldiers have been sentenced to death for robbing the dead and wounded. A third has been sentenced to penal servitude for life, and a fourth to imprisonment for 10 years.

RUSSIA.

HEAVY FIGHTING.

MANY PRISONERS TAKEN.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 6.

At least five German army corps were engaged in the fighting about Suwalki.

The German bombardment destroyed three-fifths of the town of Druskeniz, from which the majority of civilians had fled. Over 1000 9-inch shells were thrown into the town.

Both sides were thoroughly exhausted, and fighting was suspended by tacit consent on the night of September 26. On the following night the enemy moved further to the north. The Russian mortars and howitzers, which were cleverly concealed in the woods, hurled shells on the massed enemy, and whole companies melted away.

It is estimated that 11,000 prisoners were taken.

THE PURSUIT.

It is officially announced that the pursuit by the Russians continues successfully, and that the Germans are trying to make a stand between Verzbolovo and Lyck.

SOUTHERN POLAND.

The Germans are still masters of parts of the province of Kielce, in Southern Poland, and General Petrokoff is now developing his army in anticipation of a decisive engagement.

CZAR AT THE FRONT.

The Czar has arrived at the front.

TWO ARMIES.

MARCH TOWARDS PRUSSIA.

ROME, Oct. 6.

The Russian Embassy officially states that two Russian armies are proceeding towards Allenstein, East Prussia, from the east and south.

The German casualties in the Augustowo and Suwalki region are supposed to be 70,000.

INVASION OF HUNGARY.

ROME, Oct. 5.

The Russians have occupied Lossumezo. Cossacks crossed the Tisza River and cut the railway at Sziget.

The Russian objects are firstly to safeguard the left flank operating from the San River to Cracow, and secondly to open a new field of action for their cavalry on the Hungarian plains, similar to General Gurko's expedition in 1877, so as to disturb the drilling of Hungarian reservists and hinder the provisioning of the Austrian army.

BEREAVED MOTHER.

LETTER TO EMPRESS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.

American sentiment is greatly moved by a letter written by a bereaved Belgian mother to the German Empress, apropos of the Emperor having decorated Prince Joachim. The letter reads: "I do not envy you your pride, madam, face to face with a son fresh from the ravaged regions of Vise, Drinant, Aerschott, Louvain, and Termonde."

THE FAR EAST.

JAPANESE CAMPAIGN.

NIGHT ATTACK REPULSED.

TOKIO, Oct. 5.

A communique has been issued, stating that a German force made a night attack on the Japanese at Tsing-tao, but failed, 47 of the enemy being killed. Five Japanese were killed, and eight wounded.

The Japanese heavy guns hit the German gunboat Iltis, which retired.

GERMAN BATTERIES SILENCED.

TIENTSIN, Oct. 5.

According to reports from Tsi-nan, during the naval bombardment of Tsing-tao three German batteries at Fort Bismarck were put out of action, and the adjacent barracks set on fire.

The outer defences were occupied by the Allies.

JAPANESE IN CHINA.

PEKING, Oct. 6.

China has consented to the Japanese controlling the Tsi-nan to Wei-haien railway.

UGANDA.

GERMAN RAIDS CHECKED.

LONDON, Oct. 5.

The Press Bureau announces that during September several raids were made by Germans on British territory, and attempts were made to cut the Uganda railway.

With the exception of an unimportant frontier station, where it was not convenient to send troops, all the raiding parties were defeated and forced to retire to the garrison in East Africa.

Uganda has now been strengthened by a strong body of Indian troops and mounted volunteer forces raised locally.

STOLEN SUBMARINE.

TAKEN FROM ITALY.

ROME, Oct. 6.

Captain Belloni, of the naval reserve, made off with a submarine, which was built at Spezzia for Roumania. The submarine at the time was undergoing trials, with only a few workmen aboard. Belloni, in a letter to the shipbuilder, stated that the submarine must participate in the war.

The workmen were unaware of his project, and he was not acting in arrangement with any person in authority. It is believed that he conveyed the submarine to Corsica or France.

Italy has notified the belligerents that the submarine has disappeared from Spezzia, presumably to join the Russian fleet, notwithstanding a notification to the builders of the vessel that she must not be delivered owing to Italy's neutrality.

Belloni wrote to the authorities that he was not aware that his act was a breach of neutrality.

THE ADRIATIC.

FORTRESS DESTROYED.

PARIS, Oct. 5.

A telegram from Rome states that the French fleet destroyed Lustica, the outer fortress of Cattaro.

CAUSES OF WAR.

AUSTRIA DRAGGED IN.

PARIS, Oct. 6.

M. Gabriel Hanotaux, writing in the "Figaro," cites the remarks of the Austrian Ambassador to him on July 31, in which the Ambassador stated that it was Germany, and not Austria or Russia, that desired war.

The Ambassador stated that Austria had no territorial aspirations as regards Servia. She wished Russia to persuade Servia to take the step which would open the second phase of negotiations, and added that Austria feared being drawn after Germany. There was at the moment an appreciable divergence, if not complete opposition, between the Austrian and German attitudes.

BRITAIN'S NEW ARMY.

LONDON, Oct. 6.

Nearly 600,000 recruits have joined the new army, of whom London has supplied 85,000.

SYDNEY YACHTSMAN'S OFFER.

LONDON, Oct. 6.

Mr. Walter Marks, of the Royal Sydney Yacht Club, made an offer to the Admiralty to secure a hundred expert yachtsmen for the Royal Naval Reserve. The Admiralty, in an appreciative letter, said the opportunity did not arise at present to utilise their services.

CHAMPAGNE.

INVADERS SPARE VINEYARDS.

PARIS, Oct. 6.

There are prospects of a fine vintage in the champagne districts. The Germans have not damaged the vineyards.

COMMERCE.

GERMAN MANUFACTURES

SECURING RAW MATERIAL.

ZURICH, Oct. 5.

A non-profit-making company has been formed with a capital of £215,000, under the control of the German War Office, to take over all stocks of wool requisitioned by the German army in Belgium, France, and Russia.

These stocks will be distributed among the German manufacturers in proportion to the military contracts which they have received.

Large stocks have been seized already in Liege, Verviers, Roubaix, and Turcoing. Other supplies have been seized along the Russian frontier, where Russia unloaded many trains in order to use them for the transport of troops.

Germany hopes that the campaign in Russian Poland will result in the occupation of other textile centres, thus providing the manufacturers with further supplies of raw material.

SWISS MERCHANTS APPROACHED

BERNE, Oct. 5.

German merchants are seeking to induce Swiss merchants to transport German goods to belligerent countries, marking them "Made in Switzerland." The newspapers urge the resistance of this attempt, which might otherwise lead to a Swiss boycott.

CHICAGO WHEAT MARKET.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.

Wheat to-day was quoted as follows:—December, 108¼ cents to 109¾ cents; May, 114¾ cents to 116 cents.

COPPER SHIPMENTS.

BRITAIN'S ATTITUDE.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.

The British Ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, has announced that shipments of copper to neutral countries will not be molested when covered by an agreement between shippers and consignees that they are intended for domestic use only.

MERCHANT SHIPPING.

SUNK BY MINE.

OSTEND, Oct. 5.

The English steamer Ardtloydt, bound from Dover to Zeebrunge, struck a mine. The crew were saved.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LONDON, Oct. 6.

The Prince of Wales's Fund has reached a total of £3,000,000.

The Board of Trade returns reveal a steady revival of employment.

George Spencer, shipping representative, was committed for trial on a charge of endeavouring to induce a member of an English shipping firm to buy German vessels on which they held mortgages.

In connection with the prosecution of Karl Ernst, hairdresser, for espionage, it is alleged that the accused acted as a go-between for German secret agents living in Britain. The police had been examining the prisoner's correspondence since 1912, when they discovered that his shop was used as a place of call for letters addressed to spies in Chatham, Sheerness, and other naval centres.

LISBON, Oct. 5.

Thousands of people assembled in front of the French and Belgian legations, and passed resolutions of protest against Germany's cynical contempt for the rights of international conventions.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 6.

According to German newspapers, the Emperor's nephew, Franz Josef Hohenzollern, is aboard the cruiser Emden.

WAR NOTES.

THE BATTLE ON THE LEFT.

Once more the fog of war seems to have settled down over the operations in France. Only a few words are vouchsafed this morning as to how the Allies are faring, and these are summed up in the phrase, "the general situation is stationary." There does not appear, however, to be any slackening in the fighting on the left—on the contrary, it would seem to have become even more violent. This can be quite understood when we consider how critical the position of the German left must be with the continual creeping northward of the Allies' right flank. The Germans have got to either smash through that line or retreat. Their right is reported to have been strongly reinforced during the past few days, and as far as can be judged the pressure they are exerting on the Allies' line is tremendous—as a matter of fact, a late message received last night indicated that we have been forced to give ground "north of the Oise." For many days now there has been terrific fighting between the Oise and the Somme, in the vicinity of Roye, and it is probably here that our line has been pressed westward.

THE NORTHERN FORCE.

Although so far every effort to break the line throughout its length has failed, still the news that it is intact at Roye will be awaited with not a little concern. Should the Germans definitely smash the line here it would mean the isolation from the main armies of our forces to the north, and they would consequently be exposed to considerable risk. Those northern forces, however, must be of considerable strength by this time, for in throwing out a flank as the Allies have done it does not mean that they have simply extended and so thinned out the left section of their line. The extension has been effected by continually bringing up more and more troops behind the fighting screen, and adding them on to the forces already on the left. Thus, also, by extending the line up to Arras and Douai, the Allies have not necessarily weakened themselves between the Somme and the Oise. They are doubtless far stronger at Roye now than they were when the flanking movement was first developing, for as the movement succeeded, so did the risk grow of a determined attempt on the part of the enemy to crash through the line somewhere near where it swung round from the main line.

THE INDIAN CONTINGENT.

There is a good deal of speculation as to where the Indian troops are at the present moment, and the question has been asked whether it is likely that they are nearing the firing line. The probability is that they are. Although the news in regard to the safe arrival of the troopship at Marseilles only reached Australia at the end of last week, still there can be no doubt that the actual landing was effected some time before—perhaps a fortnight. The silence that was observed in regard to the landing of the British Expeditionary Force in Boulogne, would be enforced in this instance also. As a matter of fact, the silence would be more prolonged by reason of the fact that a fortnight at least would have to elapse before the contingent could leave the neighbourhood of Marseilles, owing to the necessity of resting the horses after the voyage. The Indian troops, being quite fresh, represent a much stronger reinforcement to the battle-weary fighting line of the Allies, than their numbers suggest, and in the circumstance it is obvious that news of their movements would be kept from the enemy till the last possible moment. When they are on the point of taking their place in the battle line it is just as obvious that there could be no harm in allowing their arrival in France to be made known—the enemy would then soon enough be made aware of their presence. They are considerations of this kind that lead us to the conclusion that we may now hear at any moment of the flower of India's soldiery in action.

THE FIGHTING ROUND VERDUN.

Some of the most terrific fighting in the war has taken place in the eastern section in France, but the fact that no British troops are engaged there has to some extent been responsible for the lack of detailed news from that quarter. We do know that the German Crown Prince's army, to which was allotted the path promising the most glory, was thrown across the border in the direction of the great fortress of Verdun in the early days of the war—and that, after a long series of successes and reverses, this German army is still to the north, and west of Verdun. When we consider the dramatic changes that have befallen in the west, which has seen the red tide of battle surge from Mons to the very gates of Paris, and then roll back nigh to the Belgian border, and when we think that throughout it all the armies in the east have struggled pitilessly over only a few miles of ground, we may get some faint idea of the fighting this part of the country has seen.

TWO POINTS OF VIEW.

But what a country to fight over! And what ghosts must eerily stalk through the trenches in the night! Verdun faces Metz on the east, and the international boundary on the north, and a recent visitor, who motored through the district, tells us that between them is a dull, empty, undulating country, with no villages or buildings of importance, save the long line of forts, which themselves however, look like "mere holes in the tops of the green swelling hills." But this is different from any other land, because of its memories, and the statues that commemorate them. To the tourist, he says, these latter become absolutely depressing, as for miles and miles they are never out of sight. The ploughs go round them, and there are little paths made to them by the feet of the generation that still keeps the men they honour in remembrance. The tourist finds them "depressing"—but what an inspiration they must be to the French soldiers now fighting the same foe over the identical ground on which their fathers fell!

THE RUSSIAN CAMPAIGN.

Following on the great battle between General Rennenkampf and the Germans who had pushed into Suwalki from Eastern Prussia, we may now soon expect to hear of an important engagement in Southern Poland and Galicia. We are told that the Germans still occupy part of Kielce, that province in southern Poland that lies directly across the border from Cracow, and that troops are now being disposed in anticipation of a big battle there. This fight will link up with one developing in western Galicia, between the Austro-German forces and the Russians, who are marching towards Cracow, and will probably decide the mastery over the country immediately west of Cracow—a matter of vital importance, in so far as if the Russians push beyond Cracow the right (southern) wing of the main German army becomes jeopardised. The Russians are evidently looking forward to the result of this battle with confidence as the second step in their general plan of advance. The third step is the throwing forward of the great central Russian army, which has not done any serious fighting yet, and to which is allotted the task of marching on Berlin in a due west line. That this army seems now on the very point of moving forward to battle is suggested by the presence of the Czar himself there among its troops.

ON THE HUNGARIAN PLAINS.

In the meantime a Russian force is sweeping down the southern slopes of the Carpathians, that great natural barrier that swings round in a rugged crescent to the north-east of Vienna and Budapest. The mere fact that the Russians crossed this range—and the force that has done it cannot well be a very formidable one—is very eloquent testimony to the vanishing effectiveness of Austrian resistance. Raiding Cossacks have pushed as far south as the Tisza River, and we hear of them cutting the railway at Sziget, a town among the foothills of the range due south of Lemberg. We may now expect to hear of some swift dealing on the part of the famous Russian cavalry on the Hungarian plains, one of the avowed objects of this southern movement being to harass eastern Hungary, and hinder the provisioning of the Austrian army. The operations are said to be modelled on those of General Gurko, whose division in the war of 1877 made a bold dash, and captured a series of Turkish strongholds south-west of Plevna, protecting the Sofia road along which reinforcements and stores had hitherto been taken into Plevna, cut off entirely all communications between that town and the outside. As the present movement develops it will not add to the peace of mind of Budapest.

CONTRACTS.

THE GOVERNMENT SUPPLIES.

A meeting of merchants having contracts to supply goods to the Federal and State Governments, Railway Commissioners, and other public bodies, was held yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce to consider the report of the sub-committee appointed at a previous meeting to interview Government officials, and obtain concessions in regard to the supply of goods and to vary the conditions of contracts during the continuance of the war. Mr. Winchcombe, president of the chamber, presided.

The sub-committee reported that it had waited upon the Stores Supply and Tender Board and the Chief Railway Commissioner, and it recommended that contractors should fulfil orders for normal quantities for two months as from August 4 at contract rates; and contract prices for the remainder of the contract should be increased by the extra cost incurred. In cases where contract acceptances had been unduly delayed, and the contractor had not been able to meet the first two months' supplies, due consideration should be given.

The Stores Supply and Tender Board promised to consider every contract on its merits. It was prepared to make reasonable concessions where it could be shown that the contractor was under unavoidable disabilities. The Chief Railway Commissioner stated that he would be prepared to deal with each individual contract on its merits, and contractors could be assured that they would be sympathetically treated. He also stated that he was conferring with the Commissioners in the other States in order to arrange uniform action.

Since the interview, however, a letter had been issued from the Chief Commissioner, forwarding a copy of the resolutions agreed to at a conference of the Railway Commissioners of New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, and Tasmania, and these were being acted upon in New South Wales. The resolutions were in effect that the Railway Commissioners' conference was of opinion that [illegible] the contracts which the railways [illegible] have a prior claim on goods in [illegible] parties who may desire [illegible] no contracts, and are [illegible] stocks held sufficient [illegible]

The sub-committee [illegible] that the attention of the Chief Commissioner be drawn [illegible] would do their best [illegible], but that in addition [illegible] they had also to consider [illegible] with other bodies.

The Commissioners also held [illegible] portion, not less than one-half, of the extra charges on freight and war risk insurance should be borne by the Commissioners, owing to the varying conditions of contracts a general rule to this effect could not be applied—each case should be considered on its merits, and in some cases, no doubt, it would be necessary to pay more than one-half of the extra charges.

The sub-committee recommended that the Chief Commissioner be informed that it was the opinion of contractors that it would only be fair that all extra costs incurred by contractors after a period of two months, dating from August 4, should be borne by the Government; also that advices had been received that the Public Works Department was not now buying against the contractor.

The sub-committee was of opinion that unless indent orders were very large the commission of 2½ per cent. would be quite inadequate.

The chairman stated that the Chief Railway Commissioner considered that the railways came first, and were bound to demand more material than they actually required in order to make sure of the future, but he did not think, under the circumstances, that the Commissioners should be in any different position to other Government departments.

Mr. W. T. Macpherson said the Chief Railway Commissioner had stated that he would not be prepared to make good any loss on the profit of the contractor. If there was an actual out-of-pocket loss he might be prepared to share such a loss.

The report of the sub-committee was adopted, and the committee was asked to wait upon the Railway Commissioners, and to watch the interests of the contractors.

COUNTRY HELP.

In common with other centres along the South Coast, Thirroul has not been behind in its contributions to the Patriotic Fund. Several concerts have been held, and a substantial sum collected, whilst the ladies of the district have been busy for some weeks past making garments for the soldiers. Several parcels of clothing have already been sent to Sydney, and a further lot is to be forwarded.

GUNNEDAH, Tuesday.

Gunnedah's first Eight-Hour Day was celebrated by a procession and athletic sports meeting. The procession was the grandest thing yet seen here. Business men and others assisted with displays, lorries and motors. Three bands took part. Messrs. Hawke and Treloar took the champion prize for display with a model of the flagship Australia, which will possibly be sent to Sydney for sale for the Patriotic Fund. The proceeds at the Sports Ground amounted to £86, and the receipts of the concert were £41. The whole of the proceeds will be devoted to the Patriotic Fund.

KATOOMBA, Monday.

The total cash receipts to the local funds from the several sources now amount to close on £450, and with other anticipated receipts the fund should, within the next few days, total £500. The sum of £300 has already been remitted to the Lord Mayor of Sydney.

MOLONG, Tuesday.

The Molong Patriotic Fund totals £229/19/2. An auction sale on Saturday of gifts to augment the fund realised £31/8/3. The Molong district rabbit-trappers gave £11/5/5 worth of rabbits to the Sydney Chamber of Commerce War Food Fund.

MUDGEE, Tuesday.

A sale of goods in aid of the Belgian Fund was held in Victoria Park on Saturday afternoon. The sum of £138 was realised from the sale, and £21 was taken at the gates. These amounts, together with donations of money and other proceeds, brought the total sum to £240.

NARROMINE, Monday.

Narromine has sent 1714 sheep to Sydney being the Pastoralists' Union (Narromine) residents' contribution to the Patriotic Fund. The Allies' flags decorated the trucks. Droving and trucking were free.

PORTLAND, Tuesday.

The local patriotic fund now amounts to over £220, and is being daily increased. The ladies of the Red Cross Society are still making clothing for the soldiers, and the Belgian clothing collection has been largely increased.

SPRINGWOOD, Tuesday.

The public school children played "Cinderella" to a crowded house on Friday night. This entertainment is held annually, and the proceeds are devoted to school prizes, but on this occasion the children decided to give the money (£13) to the Patriotic Fund.

ST. ALBANS, Tuesday.

At a meeting held at St. Albans, a village on the Macdonald River, for the purpose of starting a local patriotic fund, £30 was subscribed in a few minutes.

TUMUT, Tuesday.

A branch of the Red Cross Society has been organised, presided over by the Mayoress (Mrs. Wyburn), and, since its establishment, has done excellent work. The public responded to the call of a band of enthusiastic women liberally, the money collected up to date amounting to £98. Besides this, materials were presented to fill 41 kit-bags, which, with £40 of the above amount, have been forwarded to head office. A number of women are sewing and knitting for the Belgian Fund.

WEST WYALONG, Tuesday.

By means of a sports meeting at the Show Ground, and a social at night, half the proceeds of the Phillip-Lytton theatrical performance, and an auction sale on Eight-Hour Day, nearly £200 was netted for the patriotic fund. A turkey gobbler, auctioned for the Belgian Fund, realised by sale and re-sale £18 5s.

WETHERILL PARK, Tuesday.

Between £11 and £12 was raised at a concert here in aid of the Lord Mayor's Fund. The school children took part in a tableau: "When the Empire Calls." Little Venie Coggins in the "Absent-minded Beggar" was responsible for £2 being collected.

GREAT CONSPIRACY.

GERMANY'S PLOT.

(BY ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE.)

The London "Daily Chronicle" publishes the following from the pen of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle:—

It is instructive and interesting now, before fresh great events and a new situation obliterate the old impressions, to put it on record how things seemed to some of us before the blow fell. A mental position often seems incredible when looked back to from some new standpoint.

I am one of those who were obstinate in refusing to recognise Germany's intentions. I argued, I wrote, I joined the Anglo-German Friendship Society; I did everything I could for the faith that was in me. But early last year my views underwent a complete change, and I realised that I had been wrong, and that the thing which seemed too crazy and too wicked to be true actually was true. I recorded my conversion at the time in an article entitled: "Great Britain and the Next War" in the "Fortnightly" of March, and reading over that article I find a good deal which fits very closely to the present situation. Forecasts are dangerous, but there is not much there which I would wish to withdraw. What brought about my change of view was reading Bernhardi's book on Germany and the next war.

INCREDIBLE AMBITIONS.

Up to then I had imagined that all this sabre-cutting was a sort of boyish exuberance on the part of a robust young nation which had a fancy to clank about the world in jackboots. Some of it also came, as it seemed to me, from a perfectly natural jealousy, and some as the result of the preaching of these extraordinary professors whose idiotic diatribes have done so much to poison the minds of young Germany. This was clear enough. But I could not believe that there was a conspiracy hatching for a world-war, in which the command of the sea would be challenged as well as that of the land. No motive seemed to me to exist for so monstrous an upheaval, and no prize to await Germany, if she won, which could at all balance her enormous risks if she lost. Besides, one imagined that civilisation and Christianity did stand for something, and that it was inconceivable that a nation with pretensions to either the one or the other could at this date of the world's history lend itself to a cold-blooded, barbarous conspiracy by which it built up its strength for a number of years, with the intention of falling at a fitting moment upon its neighbours, without any cause of quarrel save a general desire for aggrandisement.

BERNHARDI'S WARNING.

All this, I say, I could not bring myself to believe. But I read Bernhardi's book, and then I could not help believing. I wrote an article in the hope that others who had been as blind as myself might also come to see the truth. For who was Bernhardi? He was not an irresponsible journalist or hot-headed Pan-German monomaniac. He was one of the most noted officers in the German army. He [illegible] written several of the standard works upon [illegible]tics. He moved in high circles, and might [illegible] expected to know [illegible]ly what were their [illegible]ntiments. And he [illegible] a book addressed to his own fellow-[illegible] in which these [illegible]ntiments were [illegible] [illegible] could not set such a documen[illegible] as of no account. As I [illegible] should be mad if we d[illegible] notice of the warning."

But the strange t[illegible] have been a warning [illegible] plicity in the German m[illegible] itself again and again in [illegible] But this is surely the supren[illegible] One would imagine that the idea [illegible] could be translated and read by [illegible] victims had never occurred to the [illegible] As a famous soldier, it is impossible [illegible]lieve that he was not in touch with the General Staff, and he outlines a policy which he [illegible] some reason, therefore, to be looked upon as an official one. It is as bright a performance as if someone on Lord Roberts's staff had written a description of the Paardeberg flank march and sent it to Cronje some weeks before it was carried out. And yet it was not an isolated example, for Von Edelsheim, who actually belongs to this amazing General Staff, published a shorter sketch, setting forth how his country would deal with the United States—an essay which is an extraordinary example of bombastic ignorance. Such indiscretions can only be explained as manifestations of an inflated national arrogance, which had blown itself up into a conviction that Germany was so sure of winning that it mattered little whether her opponents were upon their guard or not.

THE PROGRAMME OF WAR.

But Bernhardi's programme, as outlined in his book, is actually being carried through. The whole weight of the attack was to be thrown upon France. Russia was to be held back during her slow mobilisation, and then the victorious legions from Paris were to thunder across in their countless troop trains from the western to the eastern firing line. Britain was to be cajoled into keeping aloof until her fate was ripe. Then her fleet was to be whittled down by submarines, mines, and torpedo boats until the numbers were more equal, when the main German fleet, coming from under the forts of Wilhelmshaven, should strike for the conquest of the sea. Such were the plans, and dire the fate of the conquered. They were in accordance with the German semi-official paper, which cried on the day before the declaration of war: "We shall win—and when we do 'Vae victis.'" With France it was to be a final account. Our own fate would be little better. It needs a righteous anger to wage war to the full, and we can feel it when we think of the long-drawn plot against us, and of the fate which defeat would bring.

"DEATH, OR GLORY."

AN INDIAN POEM.

Dr. Herring, of West Maitland, writes:—"The enclosed lines written by a Mahommedan in Hyderabad (Nawab Jung Bahadur, Puisne Judge of Hyderabad), and distributed at a public meeting there on August 29, show the spirit in which some at least of the alien millions received the news of the challenge to England:—

O, England, in thine hour of need,
When Faith's reward and Valour's meed
Is death or glory;
When Fate indites, with biting brand,
Clasp'd in each warrior's stiffening hand
A nation's story.
Though weak our lands which fain would clasp
The warrior's sword with warrior's grasp,
On victory's field,
Yet turn, O, mighty mother, turn
Unto the million hearts that burn
To be thy shield.
Thine equal mercy, justice, grace,
Have made a distant alien race
A part of thee.
'Twas thine to bid their souls rejoice,
When first they heard the living voice
Of Liberty.
Unmindful of their ancient name,
And lost to honour, glory, fame,
And sunk in strife,
Thou found them whom thy touch hath made,
Men, and to whom thy breath conveyed
A nobler life.
They, whom thy love hath guarded long,
They, whom thy care hath rendered strong,
In love and faith;
Their heart-strings round thy heart entwine,
They are, they ever will be, thine
In life, in death.

100 M.'S.P. FOR THE FRONT

MR. ASQUITH'S NEPHEW SERVING.

More than 100 members of the House of Commons have gone to the front or have volunteered. Many relatives of members of the Government have also joined the colours.

The Prime Minister has a nephew on a battleship, Lord Crewe a son-in-law, Mr. Lloyd George's second son is in the Territorials, Mr. Churchill's brother has joined. Major Guest, one of the Whips, has joined his regiment; Mr. Masterman's brother, Captain Masterman, who was in the South African War, was wounded in the Balkan war, and has trained enthusiastic bands of Boy Scouts, has volunteered for the front. Mr. Masterman has a nephew in the service; Sir Edward Grey has also a nephew, and Mr. M'Kinnon Wood a son under the flag. A son of Dr. Macnamara, Financial Secretary to the Admiralty—himself a soldier's son—has applied to be enrolled.

These names do not by any means exhaust the list of relatives of the members of the Government who have joined the forces or volunteered. Colonel Seely, a former Minister, has joined the Expeditionary Force, and the only son of another ex-Minister (Lord Reading), the Hon. Gerald Isaacs, is with the Inns of Court Officers' Training Corps. Lord Reading's brother, Mr. Godfrey Isaacs, has two sons; the younger, who is 18, is with the Honourable Artillery Company, and has volunteered for the front. He is an expert swordsman, and had a successful encounter with a German student last year.

OUR TROOPS.

THE GRAND PARADE.

IMPOSING DISPLAY.

ENTHUSIASTIC CROWDS.

Every arm, every boot, every head, appeared to move at the saluting base as if it were controlled by some precise mechanism until the unison of motion became almost a monotony. No better tribute could, however, be paid to the demonstrated results of the training bestowed upon the Australian Imperial Expeditionary Force, which in its thousands marched through Sydney's principal streets yesterday. It was a magnificent spectacle, and, having a particular significance at this juncture of international affairs, the troops were cheered over and over again.

The people, judging by the way they lined the thoroughfares at such short notice, had evidently expected a great deal, and, if it had not been a really splendid spectacle, they would have been disappointed. But they had their enthusiasm raised to such a degree that many of them appeared to vie with each other in their frequent outbursts of patriotic emotion. They were not satisfied with cheering and waving miniature Union Jacks and handkerchiefs, but they joined with the music of the bands in the singing of the popular airs, such as "Sons of the Sea," "Soldiers of the King," and "Advance Australia Fair." The beautiful spring day was an added joy to the occasion.

The march began in earnest when the troops came into Flinders-street, from the direction of the camps. The bands struck up inspiriting music, and swung along into Oxford-street. As the great column neared the city the crowd grew more and more dense. St. Mary's steps gave to a throng a splendid view of the approach along College-street, and the vicinity of the Queen's Statue was one solid mass of cheering humanity. Along Macquarie-street, every balcony was occupied, and every window was requisitioned. Parliament House presented a scene long to be remembered, its steps and balcony representing a picture of finely-dressed women, who were thus privileged to view the pageant over the heads of the street crowd.

It was fully a quarter of an hour before the mounted troops turned into Macquarie-street, and caused the crowd to shrink back a bit. Excitement was considerably raised when the First Light Horse Regiment, headed by Lieut.-Colonel Meredith, made its appearance. The prancing horses, walking four abreast, seemed to revel in the popular enthusiasm. Many people had not for years viewed such a representative body of Australia's most distinctive fighting force. South African veterans declared that both horses and riders were equal to the best that went from Australia to the veldt. There are no greys among the horses, bays predominating.

The 1st Field Artillery, under Major Christian, marched excellently behind one of the bands, and came in for much favourable comment. The guns and ammunition waggons were not brought out, and their showing was thus robbed of some of its impressiveness. Heavier horses denoted the approach of the detail section of the Divisional Ammunition Column. Major Lucas has reason to be proud of the material under his command. The 1st Field Company of Engineers, under Major M'Call, moved with wonderful precision.

[illegible]thing, however, could have been better [illegible] was represented by Colonel MacLaurin's [illegible] Infantry Brigade. The first battalion [illegible]ched under Lieut.-Colonel Dobbin, the [illegible]nd under Lieut.-Colonel Braund, the third [illegible] Lieut.-Colonel Owen, and the fourth [illegible] Lieut.-Colonel Onslow Thompson. Colonel Braund, M.L.A., had a special cheer from the Parliamentarians, and so had Sergeant E. R. Larkin, the member for Willoughby. Someone called out, "Good boy, Larkin; you're going to Berlin."

The fine physique of the men and their soldierly bearing deserved all praise, more especially when it is remembered that but a few weeks ago many of them were performing their ordinary duties as citizens, and never, perhaps, even contemplated being soldiers. The movement was magnificent in its precise swing. Each man looked hard and wiry and capable of undergoing all the rough treatment that active service might demand. In the centre of this long line of infantry was carried the Union Jack, the flag presented by Mr. John Hunter. The unfurling of this was the signal for great applause. The bagpipes bandsmen, who headed one of the battalions, seemed strange not in kilts, but the "boys" blew their best, to the accompanying plaudits of the crowded streets. Then came more and more infantry, with their shining bayonets, relieving in some way the sombre brown wedge that was pressing on and on in the long march.

The 2nd Company of the Army Service Corps, under Captain Munro, and the 1st Field Ambulance, under Lieutenant-Colonel Newmarch, both made an excellent showing and proved a fitting finale to a procession which was a triumphant success. The route from Macquarie-street was by way of Bridge-street, George-street, and Park-street: thence back to the respective camps. The procession took 38 minutes to pass a given point.

The Governor-General, Sir Ronald Munro Ferguson, as Commander-in-Chief of the Commonwealth Forces, took the salute from a vantage point in Macquarie-street. The troops halted a few seconds opposite the Mitchell Library.

Before moving away from the saluting base the Governor-General said:—"It was a fine parade, and I am delighted with all I have seen."

Colonel Wallack, the State Commandant, had not, last night, received any official comment from his Excellency. "For my own part," he said, "I was very much struck with the stamina and marching of the men under full equipment. Considering the short time they have been in training their showing was very good indeed. I hope to give the public an opportunity of seeing a parade of other troops at no very distant date. I would like to thank the police for the way they arranged the traffic, and the tramway authorities for the way they facilitated the march."

RECRUITING CONTINUED.

Lieutenant-Colonel Antill, enrolling officer, had good material from the country before him yesterday, and he selected 247, who will be sent to the camp at Rosehill racecourse to-day. The military authorities are finding it difficult to secure, at once, a sufficiency of blankets and equipments for all the men who desire to enrol. Instructions are accordingly being sent to the police in the country to register the names of applicants, and not issue passes to Sydney until further notice. The employees of the Commonwealth Clothing Factory have responded well to the call made on them. They have been working overtime, as well as on Saturday afternoons.

Colonel Cox is very anxious that his command, the 5th Australian Light Horse, should be well mounted. He has promised that every trooper who brings his own horse into camp will be allowed to keep it. This promise has resulted in a number of splendid chargers being sent to Liverpool camp. Some station-owners have sent fine animals for troopers for their districts who have enlisted.

There is a large body of men either under canvas or in the pavilion at the Rosehill racecourse. Many of these will be included in Lieut.-Colonel Burnage's 13th battalion of 4th (A.I.E.) Infantry Brigade. The four battalions of this brigade will be selected, one each from New South Wales and Victoria and two from the other States combined. The 13th battalion is to be presented by the Society of Ulstermen, on the 22nd instant, with a silk flag. What is now wanted is a brass band. Infantry battalions in New South Wales of the first force have already been provided with bands, and the officer commanding this battalion, now in the making, would be very pleased to hear of a movement being started with a view to placing his men on a similar footing. He stated yesterday that a splendid spirit prevailed in the Rosehill camp. Whether in uniform or in private clothes, the men were shaping about their work in a thorough businesslike way.

The Legion of Frontiersmen spent three days under canvas at their permanent camp at Deewhy, near Manly. Practical work in all branches of light horse tactics was gone through, which included scouting, skirmishing, signalling, and marching. Altogether good and useful work was done under the command of Captain J. Suffern and Regimental Sergeant-Major J. Simons.

TASMANIA'S CONTINGENT

HOBART, Monday.

The Tasmanian troops marched through the streets of Hobart to-day, under gala conditions. Great crowds lined the streets, and the cheering was most enthusiastic. The men had a very soldierly appearance, and marched perfectly to the saluting point.

LATE WAR NEWS.

SOUTH AFRICA.

GERMAN FORCES.

CAPETOWN, Oct. 6.

The correspondent of the "Cape Times" states that the Germans in South-West Africa have 10,000 well-trained troops, 66 guns, a battery, and many machine guns. They have a large number of blockhouses, manned by artillerymen, with a couple of machine guns.

ENEMY'S WARSHIPS.

PLANS FOR COALING.

CAPETOWN, Oct. 6.

The German cruiser Eber left the Cape before the outbreak of war, and a letter to her commander, which was intercepted, contained instructions, dated June 14, revealing a complete system of coaling the German navy in the event of an outbreak of war. Through secret agents at Capetown, New York, and Chicago, it was arranged that colliers should leave Table Bay ostensibly for England, and meet German warships at an agreed rendezvous.

ARTILLERY TRAIN DESTROYED.

PARIS, Oct. 6.

British lancers and French troopers on Monday, on the extreme western wing, got between the German main body and the Imperial Guard, cutting off and destroying an artillery train and other supplies, temporarily rendering the Guards' artillery useless.

WAR TROPHY.

GERMAN FLAG FROM RABAUL

GIFT TO CITY COUNCIL.

The flag that was the symbol of German Imperial authority at Rabaul, in New Britain, is now in the possession of the Lord Mayor, on behalf of the citizens of Sydney. It was exhibited, and evoked a patriotic outburst, at last night's meeting of the City Council, when the following letter was read by the town clerk (Mr. Nesbitt):—

Government House,
Rabaul, New Britain,
Sept. 13, 1914.

My Dear Lord Mayor,—

By H.M.A. ship, which also takes this letter, I am forwarding the German Imperial flag, received on my arrival here, from the German Government administrative-buildings.

If the flag can be made use of in any way to stimulate the interest in recruiting in Sydney for the additional forces that are sure to be required to help the d[illegible] old Motherland, to which we owe so [illegible] I hope you will do so to the utter[illegible] [illegible] would at the same time have you [illegible] to attain the flag some [illegible] blood had to be [illegible] lives sacrificed. [illegible] Dr. Pockley and [illegible], who fell with [illegible] small price to [illegible] of others re[illegible] example in the bes[illegible] Empire upon which th[illegible]

Believe me, my dear L[illegible]

WILLIAM HO[illegible]

Colonel commanding Australian Na[illegible] and Military Expedition.

The Right Hon.
The Lord Mayor,
Sydney.

Alderman Meagher asked the council to make proper acknowledgment of this trophy of war. Twenty years acquaintanceship with Colonel Holmes convinced him that a better soldier and administrator could not have been entrusted with this important undertaking. He had, as far as his work in Sydney was concerned, proved himself without a peer as an administrator, and he had no doubt that if he desired to control the destinies of the newly-won island possession the Imperial Government would not oppose his claims. He moved,—"That the communication and trophy be received with the council's best thanks, and an assurance of keen interest in the developments now taking place in the South Seas, and with grateful appreciation of Colonel Holmes's action."

Alderman Griffin seconded the motion, which was supported by Alderman Barlow and Evan Jones, members of the Water and Sewerage Board, of which Colonel Holmes is the secretary, and carried unanimously.

NEW ZEALAND.

INQUIRY FOR FLOUR ABROAD

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

Replying to questions in the House of Representatives, Mr. Massey, the Prime Minister, said he had asked a large flour-dealing firm in America for a quotation for a minimum of a thousand tons of flour, and a maximum of 4000 tons, c.i.f. and f.o.b. The price quoted for c.i.f. was £15/6/3 a ton, which does not include duty. The f.o.b. price at Vancouver quoted was £13/7/6 a ton.

Because of the shortage in prospect in Australia he had endeavoured to encourage the farmers of the Dominion to sow as much wheat as possible. If they could not raise enough wheat, prices for wheat and flour would rise to a greater height than had been the case for 20 years.

Regarding the carriage of produce, he said, 13 ships would be available between now and December 31 for cheese. There would be provision for 228,000 crates for January and February. There were 14 ships now in sight. He believed there would be sufficient ships for their produce.

SALE OF CURIOS.

The sale of curios and relics in aid of Mrs. Keith Jopps ambulance fund commenced yesterday afternoon at the rooms of Messrs. Beard, Watson, York-street. General Finn, in opening the sale, recalled the necessity of the motor ambulance upon the battle-field, especially under modern conditions of war. The bidding was not good, and after about ten lots had been sold by Mr. Lawson the remainder were withdrawn, and will be held for private sale.

The necessity for more ambulances at the front has been reiterated by Sir Frederick Treves this week in England.

PRIZE COURT.

VESSELS INTERNED IN SYDNEY.

The first sitting of the Prize Court for the consideration of applications for the condemnation, detention or release of various German vessels seized and detained in the port of Sydney since the declaration of war between England and Germany, took place yesterday in the Banco Court, before the President, Sir William Cullen, Chief Justice. Mr. H. E. Manning, instructed by the Commonwealth Crown Solicitor, appeared for the Crown. The first case called was that of the ship Sumatra (Carl Wilhofer master). Mr. Rolin, K.C., and Mr. C. A. Weston, instructed by Messrs. Sly and Russell, appeared on behalf of the claimant, the master of the vessel.

Before the case was gone into, however, Mr. Manning said that a matter of importance had arisen in connection with the proceedings of the Court. Hitherto the Court had been acting under the prize rules promulgated on August 5 last, but the Commonwealth Crown Solicitor had informed him that new rules had been cabled out, and that they involved fairly substantial alterations of those at present in force. They were received only that morning, and none of the parties interested had had time to peruse them. He, therefore, suggested that an opportunity should be given to investigate them before the applications in each case were proceeded with.

The sitting was then adjourned till 2 p.m.

At the hour named Mr. Manning referred to the original rules, and pointed out how they had been altered or amended by the new rules just received. The application was one on behalf of the Crown, referring the case of the Sumatra to the Court for decision, and for that purpose the ship's papers had been put in, annexed to an affidavit, by the master of the ship, in which his appearance was verified. The motion was that the vessel be detained by the Marshal of the Court until further order of the Court, and that the cargo be handed over to the proper officer of the Crown, to be returned by him to the persons shown to be entitled thereto. The order so far was similar to that made in the case of the Athene a short time ago; but the motion also asked that the freight should be paid into court until further order; the question of costs to be reserved. The application was based upon the Hague Convention and all relevant proclamations that had been made thereunder. He further asked, under new rule 4 (order 20), that the ship be requisitioned temporarily by the Lords of the Admiralty on an understanding being given on behalf of the Crown for payment into court of the appraised value of the ship, and to pay damage (if any) to the ship during the period of such requisition. The Sumatra arrived in Port Jackson on August 2, and was seized on that day while discharging cargo. The notification of the outbreak of hostilities between Great Britain and Germany was notified by the British Government subsequently. The new rule in regard to a requisition for the delivery of a vessel temporarily to the Admiralty provided in substance that an undertaking should be given by the Crown to pay the appraised value of the ship.

John Reed M'Manus gave evidence of the circumstances under which the Sumatra was seized or detained.

Mr. Rolin said he had no evidence to offer. The present application was one for detention. There was no application for an order for the condemnation of the vessel, but his clients, the owners and the master of the vessel, desired to preserve their rights under the Hague Convention. There was no cargo on board the vessel.

Mr. Manning said that before any proceedings had been taken against her a certain cargo had been discharged.

His Honor said he supposed that was the result of a voluntary arrangement, and he did not see that there need be any difficulty about it.

The order was made as asked.

Mr. Manning appeared for the Crown, and Mr. Rolin, K.C., and Mr. Weston, for Alfred Hauth, master of the Melbourne. A similar order was made as in the preceding case.

The same counsel appeared, and Mr. Manning asked for a similar order as to detention, etc., in respect to the ship Germania (Carl Jepsen master). The only exception on the facts was that in the present case there were 400 tons of bunker coal supplied in the name of Sharpe, Ltd., and there were also some stores, but the Crown had [illegible] finite instructions in regard [illegible] Honor granted the [illegible] the question [illegible] giving [illegible]

[illegible] ...opuen, in- [illegible] ..., Allen, and Hems- [illegible] ...avis and Fehon, Ltd., [illegible] had a claim against the ship. [illegible] Crown did not ask for a requisi- [illegible] ...ne did not apply on their behalf. He, however, also appeared for the Submarine Signal Company, who were the owners of signalling apparatus on board the Tiberius. He was not in a position to state definitely whether the apparatus was part of the ship or a separate matter altogether. The applicants he represented were an American company, and he asked that the matter of the signalling apparatus should stand over for future application. The order asked for by Mr. Manning was granted, but his Honor said it was not to prejudice any claim the Submarine Signal Company might have.

The Court then adjourned till 10 a.m. to-day.

VESSELS AT CAPETOWN.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Melbourne Chamber of Commerce has received the following cable message from the Chamber of Commerce, Capetown, asking if, in the event of the Hamm and Apolda not being sent on, the cargo should be landed at Capetown, and then forwarded to Melbourne.

The secretary for the Department of External Affairs forwarded a message to Sir George Reid in regard to the matter. The Imperial authorities were previously reported to have been drafting a scheme to enable these vessels to be sent on.

Sir George Reid has replied that the scheme is not yet completed, but that he was authorised to state that the scheme would ensure the ships going to Australia by Admiralty requisition.

BRISBANE APPLICATION.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

An application was made to the Chief Justice (Sir Pope A. Cooper), as president of the Prize Court, this afternoon, for delivery to the Admiralty of the ship Cannstatt, one of the two German vessels detained at Brisbane.

Mr. M'Gregor appeared for the Commonwealth, and said that the application was for the temporary delivery of the ship without appraisement.

Mr. Feez said the ship was arrested at Brisbane, and, therefore, under the Hague Convention, was not liable to confiscation, and when the war was over the owners would be entitled to have it restored to them.

The Chief Justice: I do not agree with that at all.

His Honor ordered the ship to be delivered temporarily to the Lords of the Admiralty forthwith, and declined to make any order as to an undertaking by the Crown or as to the valuation of the ship.

A similar application was made in the case of the Prinz Sigismund, and a like order was made.

PFALZ AND HOBART.

VESSELS LEAVE FOR SYDNEY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The captured German liners Pfalz and Hobart left Hobson's Bay this evening, each with a prize crew on board, for Sydney.

FOOD PRICES.

ACTION STAYED IN VICTORIA

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Victorian Price of Foods Board to-day decided that, as there had been no increases in retail rates beyond what may be considered reasonable, and in view of the dry season, it does not contemplate at present, at any rate, making any recommendation to fix prices. Meanwhile wholesale and retail traders have been requested to notify the board as to any intention to increase prices, and to furnish reasons for any increase that may be proposed.

Lord Southwark, president of the London Chamber of Commerce, writes:—"I can assure you that the London Chamber of Commerce and the people of London, who have been made aware through the press of the munificent gift which your chamber is sending, are deeply sensible of the patriotic and kindly motives which have prompted your action, which affords yet another proof of the goodwill of the oversea communities towards the mother country. Arrangements will be made by the chamber to receive, store, and distribute the consignments in co-operation with the Lord Mayor, and your chamber may rely upon the work being done in such a manner as will give the best possible effect of the generous intentions of your chamber."

There was keen competition among the country freezing works for the honour of receiving the greatest number of rabbits, when the trappers killed 24,000, worth £800, on behalf of the Sydney Chamber of Commerce War Fund last Wednesday. The results are not yet available, but it is believed that the difference between two of the works was so small as to be covered with a pelt, so to speak. "Let's have it over again," said one of the managers, when the other told him that he was certain he had beaten him. It is quite possible that the trappers will have another field day before long. Although the lists have not yet been made up, it is known that the Mudgee district was responsible for the biggest contribution to the tally.

BERLIN AT THE OUTBREAK.

The "Berliner Tageblatt," of August 5, in an article, says:—The official German communique announcing the English declaration of war shows clearly that the Belgian question is only a pretext for the English intervention. We have maintained for the last six months, in spite of all official disclaimers from England, that reports from influential sources were accurate, which affirmed that negotiations were proceeding for an entente between the English and Russian fleets, and if this entente were not absolutely arranged, it was none the less certain that Sir Edward Grey looked upon it with a favourable eye.

Sir Edward Grey, this typical Englishman, who has never in his life known much of the outside world, on his return from his recent visit to Paris with King George, immediately disclosed most pronounced tendencies towards a closer understanding with Russia—in spite of the sad experience from his previous attempt at an understanding with this Power in Persia. The conjecture therefore seems well founded that, ever [illegible] Germany were prepared to respect he[illegible] ...ns of neutrality towards Belgium [illegible] ready to forsake her disintere[illegible] ...ury to the help of Germa[illegible] ...first sign of German act[illegible] was so evidently the [illegible] Government [illegible] been forc[illegible] ...quest, which w[illegible] ...e whole strat[illegible] ...man army, ar[illegible] ...ation of this [illegible]

[illegible] ...y the World War [illegible] prove such a one as [illegible] been seen. But the [illegible] the more calmly must it [illegible] the greater must be our self- [illegible] for this reason such scandalous [illegible] were witnessed yesterday in front [illegible] English Embassy, and prior to the de[illegible] ...ure of Mons. Cambon, and elsewhere, are doubly regrettable. We will not allow this great war to be stained by senseless attacks or unworthy indignities shown to strangers, who, in time of peace, have been our guests, and we are going to conduct this war as a cultured people (Kulturvolk), and pursue it in that correct manner which the Kaiser's address from the throne and the Chancellor's speech foreshadowed.

That England should have declared war upon us is but adding one more grave and serious circumstance to the others which we have to face, but we had to be prepared for it, and, perhaps—for as yet one cannot forecast developments—it is for the best that it has come. We have the fullest confidence in the German land and sea forces, and the mighty welcome with which all parties in the Reichstag yesterday received the news—even the Social Democrats—is of good augury, and, in spite of all declarations of war from our opponents, has strengthened our confidence.

SETTLERS' RESIDENCE.

SERVICE TIME TO COUNT.

Mr. Thrower, M.L.A., acting on representations made by constituents, interviewed the Acting Minister for Lands, Mr. Ashford, regarding the position of holders of homestead selections, homestead farms, and conditional purchases who are going to the front.

These settlers desired to know whether they would forfeit their holdings through non-compliance with the residence conditions while they are away. The Acting Minister decided that the time the men are at the war shall be counted as residence on their land.

UNLOADING GERMAN STEAMER.

OBJECTIONS OF LUMPERS.

FREMANTLE, Tuesday.

Major Oakley, Collector of Customs, announced recently that the Fremantle cargo of the S.S. Thuringen, which arrived in Fremantle a short time ago, was to be discharged at the Quay. Yesterday morning for this purpose the authorities deemed it necessary to bring over an engineer and three of the crew to get steam up to work the winches. The services of the second officer were requisitioned as a person who knew where the cargo was stowed. At the usual early hour for the discharge of cargo a gang of lumpers belonging to a stevedoring firm came down to the steamer to take off the hatches, but finding Germans there they refused to work the cargo. After consultation amongst the authorities, the Germans were sent away, and the lumpers started work.

ENGINEERS' GIFTS.

At a meeting of the Sydney district of the Australasian Institute of Marine Engineers last night the result of a ballot was announced. The ballot decided that £400 should be given to the Chamber of Commerce Food Fund, and £100 to the Belgian Fund.

Work in connection with the railway is going on now at five points, and about 400 men are at work.

ISSUE OF THE WAR.

H. G. WELLS ON "KRUPPISM."

The following appeal has been addressed to the American people by Mr. H. G. Wells:—

This appeal comes to you from England at war, and it is addressed to you because upon your nation rests the issue of this conflict. The influence of your States upon its nature and duration must needs be enormous, and at its ending you may play a part such as no nation has ever played since the world began.

For it rests with you to establish and secure or to refuse to establish and secure the permanent peace of the world; the final ending of war.

This appeal comes to you from England, but it is no appeal to ancient associations or racial affinities. Your common language is indeed English, but your nation has long since outgrown these early links, the blood of every people in Europe mingles in the unity of your States, and it is to the greatness of your future rather than the accidents of your first beginnings, to the humanity in you, and not to the English and Irish and Scotch and Welsh in you that this appeal is made. Half the world is at war, or on the very verge of war; it is impossible that you should disregard or turn away from this conflict. Unavoidably you have to judge us. Unavoidable is your participation in the ultimate settlement which will make or mar the welfare of mankind for centuries to come. We appeal to you to judge us, to listen patiently to our case, to exert the huge decisive power you hold in the balance not hastily, not heedlessly. For we do not disguise from ourselves that you can shatter all our hopes in this conflict. You are a people more than twice as numerous as we are, and still you are only the beginning of what you are to be, with a clear prospect of expansion that mocks the limits of these little islands, with illimitable and still scarcely tapped sources of wealth and power. You have already come to a stage when a certain magnanimity becomes you in your relation to European affairs.

Now, while you, because of your fortunate position, and because of the sane and brotherly relations that have become a fixed tradition along your northern boundary—we English had a share in securing that—while you live free of the sight and burthen of military preparations, free as it seems for ever, all Europe has for more than half a century bent more and more wearily under a perpetually increasing burthen of armament. For many years Europe has been an armed camp, with millions of men continually under arms, with the fear of war universally poisoning its life, with its education impoverished, its social development retarded, with everything pinched but its equipment for war. It would be foolish to fix the blame for this state of affairs upon any particular nation; it has grown up, as most great evils grow, quietly, unheeded. One may cast back in history to the Thirty Years' War, to such names as Frederick the Great, Napoleon the First, Napoleon the Third, Bismarck; what does it matter now who began the thing, and which was most to blame? Here it is, and we have to deal with it.

But we English do assert that it is the Government of the German Emperor which has for the last 40 years taken the lead and forced the pace in these matters, which has driven us English to add warship to warship in a pitiless competition to retain that predominance at sea upon which our existence as a free people depends, and which has strained the strength of France almost beyond the pitch of human endurance, so that the education and the welfare of her people have suffered greatly, so that Paris to-day is visibly an impoverished and overtaxed city. And this perpetual fear of the armed strength of Germany has forced upon France alliances and entanglements she would otherwise have avoided.

Let us not attempt to deny the greatness of Germany and of Germany's contributions to science and art and literature, and all that is good in human life. But evil influences may overshadow the finest peoples, and it is our case that since the victories of 1871 Germany has been obsessed by the worship of material power and glory, and scornful of righteousness; that she has been threatening and overbearing to all the world. There has been a propaganda of cynicism and national roughness, a declared contempt for treaties and pledges, so that all Europe has been uneasy and in fear. And since none of us are saints, and certainly no nations are saintly, we have been resentful; there is not a country in Europe that has not shown itself resentful under this perpetual menace of Germany. And now at last and suddenly the threatened thing has come to pass, and Germany is at war.

Because of a murder committed by one of her own subjects, Austria made war upon Servia. Russia armed to protect a kindred country, and then with the swiftness of years of premeditation Germany declared war upon Russia and struck at France, striking through the peaceful land of Belgium, a little country we English had pledged ourselves to protect, a little country that had never given Germany the faintest pretext for hostility, and in the hope of finding France unready. Of course, we went to war. If we had not done so, could we English have ever looked the world in the face again?

And it is with scarcely a dissentient voice that England is at war. Never were the British people so unanimous; all Ireland is with us, and the conscience of all the world. And, now this war has begun, we are resolved to put an end to militarism in the world for evermore. We are not fighting to destroy Germany; it is the firm resolve of England to permit no fresh "conquered provinces" to darken the future of Europe. Whatever betide, all German Germany will come out of this war undivided and German still. Her own "conquests" she may have to relinquish, her Poles and other subject peoples, but that is the utmost we shall exact of her. With the accession of Austria, Germany may even come out of this war a larger Germany than at the beginning. We have no hatred of things German and German people. But we are fighting to break this huge fighting machine for ever—this fighting machine which has been such an oppression as no native-born American can dream of, to every other nation in Europe. We are fighting to end Kaiserism and Kruppism for ever and ever. There, shortly and plainly, is our case and our object. Now let us come to the immediate substance of this appeal.

We do not ask you for military help. Keep the peace which it is your unparalleled good fortune to enjoy so securely. But keep it fairly. Remember that we fight now for national existence, and that in the night, even as this is written, within a hundred miles or so of this place, the dark ships feel their way among the floating mines with which the Germans have strewn the North Sea, and our sons and the sons of Belgium and France go side by side, not by the hundred nor by the thousand, but by the hundred thousand, rank and file, line beyond line—to death. Even as this is written the harvest of death is being reaped. Remember our tragic case. Europe is full of a joyless determination to end this evil for ever; she plunges grimly and sadly into the cruel monstrosities of war, and assuredly there will be little shouting for the victors whichever side may win. At the end we do most firmly believe there will be established a new Europe, a Europe riddened of rankling oppressions, with a free Poland, a free Finland, a free Germany, the Balkans settled, the little nations safe, and peace secure. And it is of supreme importance that we should ask you now—What are you going to do throughout the struggle, and what will you do at the end?

You know that the Tsar has restored the freedom of Finland, and promised to reunite the torn fragments of Poland into a free kingdom, but probably you do not know that he and England have engaged themselves to respect and protect from each other and all the world the autonomy of Norway and Sweden, and of Sweden's vast and tempting stores of mineral wealth close to the Russian boundary. We ask you not to be too cynical about the Tsar's promises, and to be prepared to help us and France and him to see that they become real. And this with regard to Scandinavia is not only Russia's promise, but ours. This is more than a war of armies; it is a great moral upheaval, and you must not judge of the spirit of Europe to-day by the history of her diplomacies. When this war is ended, all Europe will cry for disarmament. Are you going to help then, or are you going to thwart this cry? In Europe we shall attempt to extinguish that huge private trade in war material, that "Kruppism" which lies so near the roots of all this monstrous calamity. We cannot do that unless you do it too. Are you prepared to do that? Are you prepared to come into a conference at the end of this war to ensure the peace of the world, or are you going to stand out, make difficulties for us out of our world perplexities, snatch advantages, carp from your infinite security at our allies, and perhaps in the crisis of our struggle pick a quarrel with us upon some secondary score? Are you indeed going to play the part of a merely numerous little people, a cute trading, excitable people, or are you going to play the part of a great nation in this life and death struggle of the old world civilisations? Are you prepared now to take that lead among the nations to which your greatness and freedom point you? It is not for ourselves we make this appeal to you; it is for the whole future of mankind. And we make it with the more assurance because already your Government has stood for peace and the observation of treaties against base advantages.

Already the wounds of our dead cry out to you.

WAR FOR FREEDOM.

GERMANS WORSE THAN SAVAGES.

SIR ROBERTSON NICOLL'S APPEAL.

Sir William Robertson Nicoll, editor of the "British Weekly," issues the following appeal:—

"I call on all Nonconformists who can fight to set down their names in this hour of crisis and to enlist without delay. That Nonconformists are neither cowardly nor incapable when called to a righteous war, the glorious name of Oliver Cromwell sufficiently attests.

"That this is a most righteous and necessary war is a proposition which cannot be contested, for it is a war that was none of our seeking. We strove for peace to the last minute, if not to the last second of the last hour, and we strove in vain. The contention was forced upon us. We went into this war because it involved the keeping of our most solemn and sacred obligations. We were bound by a treaty, and we went forth in the cause of the smaller nations, and especially in the cause of Belgium, which has kept its troth with us so bravely.

"We entered the war because, as it increasingly appears, it was a war against barbarism and of the most evil and remorseless kind—a war for freedom, civilisation, and Christianity. Christian law has been treated by our opponents as of less than no account, and their code of conduct is infinitely baser than that of savages.

"We are now fighting for our very lives as a nation. If we are subjugated by Germany, we have no higher future before us than the life of a tributary province, harassed and humiliated at every point, a life so intolerable that death is preferred.

"In particular, this is a war for the people. They have seen it, and they perceive that the very existence of democracy, as it has flourished in this country, is threatened with a death wound. If we could imagine the war lords blessed with so stupendous a triumph as a prostrate Europe at their feet, no one would fail to see that the elements of an honourable, happy, and self-respecting life would be at an end. We are fighting for our children as our fathers fought for us.

"When the war is over and peace arrives, the world will enter on a day bright with promise for those who are to follow us. The result of this world-war may depend on a very slight preponderance of force on either side, and every man who can fight is wanted, and wanted at once. Hitherto there has been no attempt to drive people, because it is felt they can be led, and that when issues are set clearly before them they will abhor as infinitely worse than death the stain of cowardice. For the 'Order of the white feather' there will soon be no room in our land."

WHAT THE "VORWAERTS" SAID.

THE SUPPRESSED SOCIALIST PAPER.

In view of the suppression a few days ago of the German Socialist paper, "Vorwaerts," it is interesting to read that in a leading article headed "Our Enemies," on August 25, that paper protested against the "inhuman treatment advocated by certain military journals in Germany against the civil population in Belgium and France, who are attacking the invading army."

It would seem that the German press was circulating numerous harrowing stories of alleged atrocities committed on German troops by civilians in the two countries named, and that this supplied certain newspapers with a pretext for clamouring for retaliation. The "Vorwaerts" first pointed out how little the stories could be relied on, since they all came second or third hand, or were written under excitement. Then it says: "Nor must we forget that in every peasant man and woman who is shooting at our troops from behind there lies the sentiment that he is defending his home and chattels. We refer to the law of April 21, 1813, obviously still in force in connection with the Prussian Landsturm. According to it, if the Landsturm is called out it has to wage a struggle for the national defence in which all means are allowed. The missions of the Landsturm, says the law, are to bar invasion and the withdrawal of the enemy; to keep him always on the run; to capture ammunition, food, and troops; to destroy his hospitals; to carry out nightly attacks upon him. And the law expressly prescribes that the Landsturm should wear no uniform, as this would render it more easily discernible."

The Socialist paper warned the German people against "putting our struggle in a wrong light in the eyes of all the world," and called upon the members of the working class fighting at the front to remember "their brethren on the other side, and to behave toward them in a chivalrous manner."

A SWISS JOKE.

SHARPSHOOTER'S REPLY TO GERMAN EMPEROR.

A picture postcard has arrived in Paris from Switzerland which is said to be all the rage in the land of William Tell, and which shows the spirit at present animating the land-locked Republic. The postcard bears the legend:—"The Kaiser in the country of the best rifle-shots." It shows a conventional caricature of the terrible Emperor, helmeted, spurred, and high-booted, with a hand on the hilt of his big sword. He is looking with stupefaction at a simple Swiss soldier, in his plain Federal uniform, carrying a rifle. In the background is a musketry target, showing a hit full in the centre of the bull's-eye.

"And so, my son," says the terrible William, "there are 100,000 shots like you in Switzerland. But suppose I come with 200,000 Prussians?"

"In that case, your Majesty," replies the Swiss, "we shall each of us fire two shots."

THE AUSTRIAN ARMY.

About two years ago an article was published in the "Army Review" on the Austro-Hungarian army, in which it was said that the army was well equipped, thoroughly trained, efficient, and of good morale. It concluded by saying:—"The morale is good. Among neither officers nor men of the triune forces, proud as they are to regard themselves as the highest corporate expression of imperial unity, and of the common devotion of Austria-Hungary's many people to their joint sovereign, does the strife of nationalities find an echo. . . . In peace, the army constitutes the highest national expression of the imperial unity of the many peoples of Austria-Hungary, of their common heritage of past traditions, and of the ideals and destinies, common to all, which yet await fulfilment in the future." That glowing account (says a writer in the "Times of India") is of special interest now, and it would be of even greater interest to know what the author of the article thinks of his achievement. Considering the friction that has often arisen between the two halves of the monarchy over the army estimates and the language question, it is absurd to pretend that the army is the embodiment of Austro-Hungarian unity, and it is already reported that there has been a mutiny at Vienna among two Czech regiments. The splendid efficiency of the army and its officers is not reflected in the fighting with the Russians and Servians, but perhaps some reason for this will be produced by apologists in Vienna. But after all there was no great historical reason for expecting much from the Austrian troops. Their military history is very largely one of defeat. The campaign against Turkey in 1788 ended in miserable failure; Austrian defeats in the Revolutionary wars were only the prelude to worse catastrophes at the hands of Napoleon in 1805 (Ulm and Austerlitz) and in 1809, though in the latter year the Austrians were able at Aspern to show that Napoleon was by no means invincible. The Leipzig campaign gave the Austrians a chance of proving themselves better soldiers. The Austrian exploits in Italy in 1848 were followed by the defeats in Hungary which led to the establishment of the Dual Monarchy, and in 1866 the rout of the Austrians at Koniggratz was not counterbalanced by their success at Custozza. From this it will be seen that history hardly prepared one for expecting the Austrian army in this war to prove itself an instrument of the first class, especially after the long peace it has enjoyed.

FIRE IN CLARENCE-STREET.

Shortly after 1 o'clock this morning a fire was discovered on the first floor of the premises of James Stedman, Ltd., wholesale confectioners, in Clarence and Kent streets. The fire brigade by hard work confined the outbreak to the printing and packing departments. The former was severely damaged by fire and water, and the showroom, on the ground floor, was damaged by water. The damage is fully covered by insurance.

PILLIGA SCRUB.

A NEW WHEAT AREA.

POSSIBILITIES OUTLINED.

"In view of the discussion that is taking place on the extension of the wheat-growing area, I would like to develop the suggestion I threw out in the House last week," remarked Mr. Wade, M.L.A., yesterday.

Mr. Wade pointed out that there was an immense area of land fit for closer settlement in the Pilliga Scrub. The railway already tapped one side, and other railways through the scrub had been authorised. It contained, roughly, several million acres of wheat-producing country, and there was a large quantity of commercially valuable timber. Hitherto, the cost of clearing and the consequent delays had discouraged the individual settler. In 1910 he had advocated the opening up of the Pilliga scrub and the Wyalong-Hillston district with railways, in order to make available about two and a-half million acres of wheatbearing country. Nothing practical had yet been done in these localities, and now was an opportunity to take a step forward that would meet the requirements of the hour, and be attended with permanent and profitable results. The Government should divide up portion of the area into holdings of about 1200 acres. Men should then be set to work without delay to clear an area on each holding to allow a substantial crop of wheat being sown next year. The same men should be engaged to fence these holdings, and provide a water supply, which was easily obtainable by the sinking of wells. In addition, the main roads and subdivision roads should be cleared and formed, and sufficient done to give intending settlers a start in the autumn of next year. Timber, however, although a valuable asset, was usually burnt by the settler when he was too far from a market. Countless sums had gone up in smoke in the great timber areas like the Dorrigo in years gone by. An opportunity was now afforded to preserve this timber for commercial use. As it was felled it could be transported in logs, or cut up by local sawmills, and disposed of by the Government, and the purchase money could be used as a set-off against the cost of improving these holdings.

CLEARING THE LAND.

"Railway communication is essential," continued Mr. Wade. "A line has been already sanctioned from Coonabarabran to Burren Junction, on the northern side of the scrub area. A commencement of this line should be made from Burren Junction southwards without delay. A branch line westward from Wee Waa to Pilliga would eventually enclose a triangle of some of the best of the Pilliga scrub. Railway extension from Wee Waa or Pilliga would provide work for a couple of thousand men. Land could be made ready for the plough for the coming autumn. The timber would be a valuable asset to the State, and the increased wheat production would be a benefit to the settler, and result in a large accretion of the railway revenue. The settler could have his land ready for productive use forthwith. The cost of clearing and improvements should be added to the capital cost of the land, and settlers' payments based upon the total sum.

"During the last campaign I advocated the policy of the Government preparing agricultural land, adding the cost to the capital value, and allowing settlers easy terms on these new holdings. The same procedure could be adopted with regard to the Wyalong district, with this exception, that there is little timber of any commercial value in that locality. What there is can be easily removed. In the Wyalong district holdings can be prepared in much shorter time even than in the Pilliga scrub. Railway extension from Wyalong toward Cudgellico at least is absolutely essential. This enterprise of the State would provide employment for a large number of men, at present on half time, or perhaps faced with idleness. I am sanguine enough to believe that the necessary money could be raised without difficulty. If it is practicable, by all means secure the loan in the old country. We are told that money is accumulating, and there is every prospect of loans being obtainable in the near future. Failing that, we have the Commonwealth to fall back on, and as a last resort I feel confident that, in view of the immense benefits to the State financially, and the relief of the unemployed trouble, that is threatening, a loan, say, of a million, could be raised without difficulty by an appeal to the patriotic feelings of the community. Mr. Waddell seems to fear that the withdrawal of the people's savings may embarrass the Government, and that higher interest may react on the borrowing public, but in view of the special circumstances I do not think that this loan would be used as an excuse to raise interest charges generally to the community.

POSITION OF PRODUCERS.

"We are coming nearer every day to the time when something must be done both of a practical nature and comprehensive character. I realise that the fixing of an arbitrary price for the sale of wheat may discourage settlement, and render the work of the Government disappointing. The Government may therefore well reconsider the maximum price for wheat. When the Necessary Commodities Bill was before Parliament the understanding was that the prices generally that were quoted prior to the war were to be regarded as normal prices. A special clause was put in the bill to make it competent for the commission of inquiry in fixing prices to make allowance for special circumstances arising subsequently, such as inflation of prices caused by the outbreak of the war, or arising through shortage of crops in the State. Both these features seem to have been allowed for in the Victorian Commission, but not to have been considered in New South Wales. The result is that the prices ruling to-day by law are those which were current two months ago, and are as if these new features had not made themselves felt. The Government is not bound to accept the recommendations of the Commission, and without passing any reflection either upon the Ministry or members of the Commission, I venture to think that this question might, in the light of later information, be again considered. Investors have a way of choosing the most profitable form of investment, and if intending wheat-growers see a prospect of reaping only a portion of the possible profits from wheat, they may turn their attention to those channels that pay better. I quite recognise that the war should not be made a pretext for robbing the public. The Act passed recognises that principle. At the same time, producers must get a fair price under the ordinary conditions of the market."

THE WEATHER.

FINE GENERALLY.

High pressure conditions still predominate over the greater part of the continent, with fine weather and mild to warm temperatures in southern and north-eastern parts. In the northern parts of Western Australia, however, a foretaste of the summer is being experienced, and the readings in the De Grey division exceed 100 degrees, the highest so far reported being 104 degrees at Marble Bar. A similar registration was also recorded at Broome on Sunday.

In New South Wales the highest temperatures are advised from the western and south-western districts, headed by 87 degrees at Cudgellico (in the Riverina).

The night and early morning were comparatively cool, on the highlands the thirties and forties being rather evenly distributed, and elsewhere the forties and fifties (degrees).

The lowest readings in the State yesterday morning were:—Kiandra 25 degrees, Kosciusko and Orange each 32 degrees, Rockley 34 degrees, and Bombala and Adelong each 35 degrees.

Further light and scattered rainfall has been recorded on the central and northern coasts, and at Tenterfield, Tabulam, and Moree. A heavy fall of 104 points also occurred at Murwillumbah. Elsewhere the chief amounts were:—Clarence Heads 60 points, Bellinger Heads 57, Mullumbimby and Tabulam each 50, Tweed Heads 38, Lismore and Grafton each 30, Kempsey and Woolgoolga each 27, Camden Haven 23, and Ballina and Tenterfield each 20.

Orange and Molong reported frost yesterday morning.

Present indications favour fine and warmer weather, with northerly winds, later becoming squally.

NEVER IN A TRAIN.

It is the proud boast of Mr. Joshua Swan, of Ivy Cottages, Langdon Hill, Essex, that he has been married 63 years, lived in the same place for 80 years, and worked on the same farm for 68 years. Both he and his wife are active for their ages—84 and 82 respectively. Mr. Swan does odd jobs gardening, while his wife helps in the housework of residences in the neighbourhood. They have 10 grandsons and 12 great-grandchildren. Mr. Swan worked on the Lee Chapel Farm for 68 years, and his wife has been in the constant employment of one lady for nearly 50 years. Neither of them have been in a train or motor car, or seen an aeroplane. Mrs. Swan has been to London only twice—once on the carrier's cart to see Queen Victoria.

THE MARTYRS OF WAR.

REFUGEES IN PARIS.

PITIFUL SCENES.

Mr. G. H. Perris, one of the "Daily Chronicle's" war correspondents, tells the following story relating to refugees in Paris:—

As I went home along the boulevards early this morning a procession of large touring motor cars passed crowded with country people, most of them bare-headed women, who in these strange circumstances were getting their first view of what in the long ago days of peace was called "Gay Paree."

They were refugees from the northern frontier, which is only 120 miles away—the first drops of a pitiful stream that has mounted steadily throughout the day.

Beside the thousand or more of those fugitives who have already arrived, there are Belgians flying from their ruined homes in the firing line. These have been mercifully taken in charge by the French authorities. For the most part they are old men and women, young women with babies in their arms, or children clinging to the skirts of their mothers.

Through their broken and tearful sentences you may see something of the havoc and horror of a land ruthlessly invaded and ravaged. You see the headlong escape from burning villages in the night—a terror of the unknown which is even worse than in the daytime. You see horizons broken by flashes of murderous fire. You see the barefooted children crying because they cannot run fast enough, and the old folk who have lost home and cattle, their little all.

In the despair of this random exodus, all ordinary distinctions are lost, for all are paupers now, and the petty decorations of our normal life are useless. There is no more "gentleman" and "workman," "Protestant" and "Catholic," "Fleming" and "Walloon." There are only the martyrs of war filled with a dumb fear which will presently harden into a terrible hatred of those who are responsible for this chapter of outrage.

Fifteen thousand other Frenchmen have entered Paris since last night (Aug. 26). The whole Channel coast, from Dunkirk to Treport, has suddenly given up its last holiday makers. Everyone now knows that the war will be long, and that very few will survive it without having received grave injuries.

"PRAY FOR ENGLAND."

APPEAL IN A MOSLEM PAPER.

The "Raid el Osmani," a weekly Moslem paper of Tantah, edited by Sheikh Mohamed Tewfik el Azhari (says the "Egyptian Gazette" of August 22), publishes a leading leader under the following heading: "Pray for England, and ask God to help Her." We translate the following brief extracts from the article, which shows the Egyptian attitude towards Britain:—

"In the present circumstances, while Great Britain is engaged in a cruel war, started by the ambitious Germans, the Egyptians feel a deep sympathy for the former Government. Indeed, England, that wise colonising power, has always been kind to us, and during the long years of her occupation of our country we have never heard of her trespassing on our rights or traditions and habits. . . . Egypt can never accept any other occupation except that of the British.

"Some foolish people amongst us express themselves as friends of Germany, because Germany, so they say, is a friend of Turkey, and they sympathise with them for this reason. But we fail to see that Turkey has drawn any benefit from the German friendship, which is based on political ambitions and ends, as far as Germany is concerned. We hope the Ottomans will realise this fact and not be so rash as to throw themselves into fateful danger by risking any attempt to support Germany in this war.

"We sincerely hope that Great Britain will win in the end, and be crowned with victory, for we will never forget her good treatment and the keen interest she always takes to safeguard our interests. Nobody can deny this fact, except those who have never cared in the least if the country prospers or is ruined. We must absolve ourselves of responsibility for the attitude of such unwise persons so that history may not record that we are an ungrateful nation.

"Pray for England, and ask God to help her."

CHESS.

VINER IN ENGLAND.

DRAWS WITH GUNSBERG.

Writing from London on August 26, Mr. W. S. Viner, champion of Australia, thus refers to the British chess championship:—"I was glad to have had the pleasure of competing, as the tourney was nearly off on account of the war. It was experience, if nothing more, and well worth undergoing."

The tourney resulted in a tie between Mr. F. D. Yates, the present champion, and England's grand old man, Mr. J. H. Blackburne. Each scored 9½ points. Mr. Gunsberg, once a world's master, was third with 7½ points. A short match is to be played between the two top scorers to decide the championship.

The ladies' championship of Great Britain was won by Mrs. T. H. Houlding, formerly a resident of Narrandera, N.S.W.

Mr. Viner adds that he had great hopes of arranging a match with Mr. Yates. Preliminaries had been discussed, and it was agreed, if the match came off, it was to be played in London.

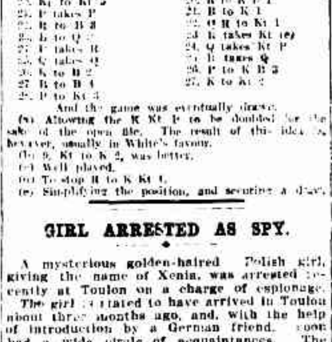

The Viner-Gunsberg follows. The Australian kept his end up well against his formidable opponent, and secured a draw.

GIRL ARRESTED AS SPY.

A mysterious golden-haired Polish girl, giving the name of Xenia, was arrested recently at Toulon on a charge of espionage.

The girl is stated to have arrived in Toulon about three months ago, and, with the help of introduction by a German friend, soon had a wide circle of acquaintances. The reckless way in which she spent her money aroused the suspicions of the police, who had her shadowed. It was found that she paid frequent visits to the post-office, where there were usually large numbers of letters awaiting her, most of which are said to have come from Germany. The girl was eventually arrested, but emphatically declared her innocence when brought before the authorities. She refused, however, to explain the origin of the large sums of money which had been sent to her. It is alleged that compromising letters were found by the police at her lodgings. The arrested woman is very well educated, speaks several languages, and has a number of university diplomas.

POLAND AND ITS PEOPLE.

SORROWS OF A GREAT NATION.

Only eight months ago (says a writer in the "Times of India") I was talking to a Polish peasant in the neighbourhood of Kielecka, in Russian Poland. We discussed the mobilisation of the Austro-Russian armies in the spring of 1913, and incidentally I asked him if he thought that a general European war would offer to his country any loophole of escape from her galling conditions, any chance of a real change in the administration of the law, or in the welfare of the people. With indescribable bitterness the old tenant farmer replied: "Change, yes, a change for the worse. Those who took our liberty will then take our cattle and our bread. Those who destroyed our nationality will then destroy our crops. As they trod roughshod over our laws, our religion, and our throne, they will tread roughshod over our fields, our homes, and our honour. Change!" And he cursed vehemently "Pacharef!" (Blood of dogs). After a while I asked him who he expected to do all these things. The enemy, he answered. "If I am in Prussian Poland, then the enemy is the Russian. If I am in Russian Poland, then the enemy is the Prussian. If I look in my own heart, everyone is my enemy. Why care for the Poles?" Indeed, who? It is hard to imagine that a European country, professing the Roman Catholic religion, imbued with the precepts of the Latin culture, whose flag once flew from Danzig to Odessa, whose population is twenty millions, who, in the course of history has given the world such illustrious sons as Copernicus, the astronomer, Casimir (the tolerant mediaeval monarch who harboured the Jews), Sobieski, who drove the Turks from Vienna, Kosciusko, the model patriot, to say nothing of such poets as Slowacki, Mickiewicz, Krasinsky, such artists as Matejko and Malczewsky, such musicians as Chopin and Paderewsky, that such a country should be a subject.

A CULTURED PEOPLE.

If this is hard for an average being to believe, how much more difficult it is for one who has lived amongst the Poles to realise it. In the salons of the high aristocracy in Poland remain to this day, in all the splendour of their old world perfection, the manners and graces that gave rise to the romantic glories of Versailles. Those Polish gentlemen who were attached to the court of the haughty Marie Leszczynska, Queen of Louis XV of France, brought back to Warsaw the lesson they had learnt at Paris, handing it down faithfully to their descendants, traditions which have given to the governing class of Poland Gallic rather than Slavonic civilisation. In the fields of science and literature the Poles are second to none even to this day. The author of "Quo Vadis" was a Pole, and it is said that the most brilliant doctors and surgeons in Central Europe are also of this nation. I never received such a pleasant surprise as when I first came into contact with Polish men and Turkish women. Their unexpected erudition is something extraordinary. I found in Poland that the perfect knowledge of five European languages was not considered a great achievement. Polish, French (the language of society), German, Russian, and English are spoken by 75 per cent. of the aristocracy in their home lives, English being particularly favoured by the ladies. This is owing to the large number of English governesses who are employed in Poland. The interest in foreign literature is wide, especially Eastern literature. The Mahabharata, the Gulistan, and Hamlet, are as familiar to a graduate of Cracow as the beautiful plays of Krasinsky, and the subtle works of Mieszkiewicz. In Byron they profess a vast admiration. To them he is the Kosciusko to Hellas—the spirit of liberty. I venture to assert that Byron is better known and more widely read on the banks of the Vistula than on the banks of the Ouse, at his own Alma Mater. For English civilisation they have great respect and particularly eulogise British method of governing her subject races. Against Britain, however, they have one grievance, of which Tennyson never tired to tell, viz., that the British delegate at the partitioning of Poland callously remarked "La question Polonaise n'a pas la valeur d'un schilling chez nous!" ("The Polish question is not worth a shilling to us.") This the Poles never tire of quoting.

In this war the Poles will suffer terribly, for not only will those of Austrian and Prussian Poland be called upon to shoot their brethren of Russia, but the actual scene of operations in the eastern theatre of war will be placed in their country. The two Russian advances, to Konigsberg and to Cracow via Lemberg are through Polish territory. One cannot help loving this gallant nation. It is quite a lesson to watch the peasants on a market day in the great cities. How the men, clicking the heels of their clumsy top-boots together, gallantly raise the fingers of their womenfolk to their lips with all the dignity of a courtier. And when market is over they do not rush off to get drunk. They enter the churches to pray. I have been far and wide over Europe from Cape Finisterre to Constantinople, and being interested in the old world peasantry of many nations, have observed them with greater care than most, but I am afraid I cannot say what I have just said of the Poles on market day for any other nation.

It would be impossible to write on Poland without making some mention of her wonderful architecture. The Gothic school was introduced into Poland, by the German merchant colonies in the twelfth century, and still are to be seen in odd streets and alley ways windows, doors, arches, and colonnades that would have warmed the heart of Ruskin. A great deal of these works of art has been destroyed since, and by the partition. The wonderful Florentine Palace at Cracow was used by Austria as barracks for fifty years. Recently it was handed over to a society for the preservation of Polish national monuments, and is being restored. Standing on an eminence on the banks of the Vistula, only nine miles away from the Russian frontier, it will fall while yet only half restored, a victim to the Russian guns.

FINANCIAL.

KATOOMBA AND LEURA GAS COMPANY.

The report of the Katoomba and Leura Gas Company for the year ended August 31 states that there is a net profit of £1015, which, with £1463 brought forward, made £2478 available after paying an interim dividend of £325 on March 24. There remained £1552, which will be carried forward. The Gas Act recently passed requires the statement of accounts of all gas companies to be made up to December 31 in each year. A further statement of accounts will therefore be submitted to shareholders early next year, when the directors will recommend the payment of a dividend. The following comparison may be made:—

BUILDERS' TENDERS.

"Enquirer" writes:—

Sir,—(1) Has a builder, who tenders for a certain work and happens to be the lowest, the right to amend his price after his price has been duly accepted? (2) If so, is it the custom of the trade only, or has the builder any legal right to alter his price?

A builder has strictly no legal right to do so, but it is the practice to allow it.

BAD PATENT LAWS.

"Another Inventor" writes:—

Sir,—I have read with interest "Inventor's" letter in your issue of September 28, and then, for the first time, saw "Patent Attorney's" letter, and I note the egotistical strain thereof. I will, therefore, quote from personal experience, which I hope will demonstrate even Mr. Hawkins's "hearsay" is more reliable than "Patent Attorney's" flat contradiction. I took out State patents in New South Wales and other Australian States in 1898 for what was undoubtedly a master patent. While these patents were still running the Commonwealth Patents Office granted not only one, but numerous infringing patents. I protested to the Commissioner personally, and was told "If your patents are infringed you can take the matter to the law courts." The patents I refer to are for a metallurgical process, and in the claim (which was granted) I refer specially to the novel feature of the process. I can at the present moment call to mind five different individuals who have been granted Commonwealth patents infringing my State patents, and I know there are many more. Gold has been extracted by this process to the extent of scores of millions of pounds sterling. Now I will assume that after finding someone to back me (which I never succeeded in doing) and expending in litigation many thousands of pounds, and at least two years' litigation, I probably would have knocked out one of these many infringing patents; but to fight the whole of them would occupy a time greater than the term of the patents themselves. "Attorney" might reply, "Oh, yes, you imagine you had a novel invention." To dispose of any cobwebs of this sort, I may tell him I have the independent reports of two leading professional men. One emphatically states his conviction the process was at that time novel, and the other states the appliance described was a practical machine; in fact, my specification described sufficient information for the basis of innumerable patents if its claims were not respected. However, I am not writing with the object of airing my troubles, but with the view of getting this wretched state of affairs altered. The existing Patents Act, and its administration, permitting of innumerable infringements, may suit certain patent attorneys, and may suit lawyers, but it certainly does not suit bona-fide inventors.

FRANCE WANTS MEAT

MARKET THROWN OPEN.

The French Government has lifted all restrictions on the importation of frozen and chilled meat. The war is, of course, directly responsible for this act. The people of France must be fed, and in calamitous times like the present the Frenchman will, indeed, be fortunate who can lay hands on a piece of Australian or Argentine meat.

It must be remembered, however, that the export of frozen meat from the Commonwealth to any port outside the British Empire has been prohibited by the Federal Government.

In commenting upon the position of the London meat market, the "Financial Times" states that there is no reason to suppose that a famine level of meat quotations will be reached; in fact, the Government would intervene long before such a position was achieved, and there is consequently no cause for serious anxiety. Moreover, there is the additional point that the supplies of frozen meat in London are larger than usual, and, not only so, but will be augmented in the near future now that the risk of capture in the Atlantic has been counteracted by the Government insurance scheme. Furthermore, numerous consignments which, under ordinary circumstances, would have gone to Germany and Austria, will now be despatched to Great Britain and France. This closing of some of the largest Continental markets to imported foodstuffs is a factor in the present situation which will tell heavily in favour of the United Kingdom, and must militate against any attempt to raise prices unduly.

WAR PROBLEMS.

THE MORATORIUM.

Summing up the purpose and method of the moratorium, the "Economist" puts the case in a nutshell thus:—The Government, in reality, is lending its own credit in the case of those firms whose obligations cannot be met because of the inability of foreign customers to remit, just as the Bank of England lent its credit to Baring's in 1890. The ultimate result must depend upon the amount of final loss sustained over foreign transactions. The position is admittedly without parallel, because international transactions have never before in modern times been brought even to a temporary standstill. Relief will come when the seas are clear of German cruisers, and the situation should be improved by the Government's arrangements for bearing 80 per cent. of the war risk insurance on hulls and cargoes, as ships will no longer be deterred from sailing through mere impossibility of securing insurance cover.

TRADING WITH THE ENEMY.

The following official announcement has been issued by the British Government on the subject of trading with the enemy:—

"Some doubts having arisen as to the meaning and application of the proclamation against trading with the enemy, the Government authorise the following explanation to be published:—

"1. For the purpose of deciding what transactions with foreign traders are permitted, the important thing is to consider where the foreign trader resides and carries on business, and not the nationality of the foreign trader.

"2. Consequently there is, as a rule, no objection to British firms trading with German or Austrian firms established in neutral or British territory. What is prohibited is trade with any firms established in hostile territory.

"3. If a firm with headquarters in hostile territory has a branch in neutral or British territory, trade with the branch is (apart from prohibitions in special cases) permissible, as long as the trade is bona-fide with the branch, and no transaction with the head office is involved.

"4. Commercial contracts entered into before war broke out with firms established in hostile territory cannot be performed during the war, and payments under them ought not to be made to such firms during the war. Where, however, nothing remains to be done save to pay for goods already delivered or for services already rendered, there is no objection to making the payment. Whether contracts entered into before war are suspended or terminated is a question of law which may depend on circumstances, and in cases of doubt British firms must consult their own legal advisers.

"This explanation is issued in order to promote confidence and certainty in British commercial transactions, but it must be understood that, in case of need, the Government will still be free to impose stricter regulations or special prohibitions in the national interest."

DETAINED GERMAN BOATS.

"Sydney Manufacturer" writes:—

Sir,—We cannot compliment the Commonwealth authorities, or whoever may be responsible for the neglect in expediting the movements of the detained German boats containing cargoes consisting mainly of Australian-owned goods. These boats, in some instances, have been in Australian ports since the outbreak of the war two months ago, and the delay is causing trouble to those manufacturing firms who were relying upon receiving these shipments within a reasonable time. We consider that time is now long past, and in our own instance it has had the effect of greatly reducing the output of one of our departments owing to lack of raw material.

Soon after the war broke out a cable was despatched to London advising what shipments in German boats were detained in Australian ports, and in arranging for further supplies of raw material an allowance was made for these cargoes, which it was then thought would be shortly available for transfer to their original ports of destination. We are, however, very little further forward now than we were two months ago. Unless these shipments are received within the next week the orders cabled for upon the outbreak of the war from Great Britain will have arrived before the goods detained in Melbourne.

An extract from our London letter received to-day under date August 26 makes interesting reading, showing the promptness with which similar matters have evidently been handled in Great Britain:—

"Your cable advises 'No Continental shipments arrived.' This seems strange and looks as though the Government or somebody out there is lacking in grip. Here everything has been done to keep trade going. The Government, banks, and everybody here have done wonderful things; surely you can get your goods in any Australian port. They should seize the vessel, place her under Prize Court conditions, and let her go on and discharge all cargo that is consigned to British firms and is not contraband. If you do not get your materials it will be awkward. Some must be delayed but surely not those in Australian ports."

This advice was written in August. We are now in October, and as far as Australia is concerned things are not any more forward. It looks as though matters that count in a time of crisis such as this are not being handled here as capably as they are in other parts of the British Empire; as in addition to the above we also read in cables recently that German boats held up in Indian ports on the outbreak of the war have been put into use for transport purposes. If Great Britain and India can do this, why cannot Australia? For the present Australians are suffering from lack of employment through lack of promptitude of our officials here.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

The markets had hardly recovered from the holiday on Monday. Grocery lines were quiet. Rocksalt had a little business at 70/ for red, and 80/ for white. Fish were steady at late rates, but the consumption continued to decrease, and it was only the increasing scarcity which maintained prices. Pickles and sauces of imported brands had also a diminishing business, and the local brands should now make good their position in the market. A better demand existed for tinned fruits, which were selling at unchanged rates. Dried fruits were going out well. Dates were firm at /3 per lb, with some houses asking /3½ for choice lots. Eastern produce was quiet. Canary seed was quite off the market. It was only obtainable in mixed birdseed.

Teas by the Moldavia were available, and blenders anxiously competed for the lines offering. Some large sales were put through, including a few lines of Ceylons, aggregating 600 packages, prices ranging up to 1/0¼. The quality of the tea was good.

In metal lines buyers were desirous of obtaining all descriptions of wire, both black and galvanised. For No. 10 black the inquiry was better than it had been, and some houses advanced the quotation to £9/7/6. It could still, however, be purchased at last week's quotation of £9/5/ per ton. No. 8 black was steadily reaching vanishing point. No fresh stocks had been received since the discharging of the Elsass, now over two months ago. Usually wire would have been delivered from half a dozen boats in that period. No word was received when the Pfalz would be allowed to land her shipments. The ways of the Prize Court were declared slow. Consequently the price advanced to £9, and in other cases to £9/2/6, almost equal to that asked for No. 10. No. 6 galvanised had sales at 16 guineas. For No. 8 £10/5/ was quoted, and for No. 10 £11/15/. No. 12 was off the market. Everything available had been purchased from £12 to £13 during the previous two weeks. Tie wire was extremely scarce, as much as 30/ per cwt. being paid. A further advance was made in sheet zinc. New Zealand had succeeded Western Australia as an active competitor with the local market, and had bought as much as possible at £46. Holders advanced their asking price to £48 per ton. Perforated zinc sheets were also dearer, 3/6 per sheet being paid, an advance of /3 on the week. A letter from London, received by yesterday's mail, stated that zinc could not be obtained. Further sales of Knight Bevan cement were made out of the Moldavia, including a line of 300 casks at 15/6.

The oil market was steady at an unchanged level of prices. City business was at a standstill, but orders from the country were of fair proportions.

The jute market was quiet. Word was received that the steamers Obra and Oolobaria had left Calcutta. The question now arises, what shipments have they aboard August or September? Will a buyer who purchased August be satisfied if he is presented with an August bill of lading from a boat which left Calcutta on October 4? There have been some cancellations. Buyers generally want to cancel at cost, but as Calcutta will let importers off only by paying 4d to 5d a dozen, importers here are not content to settle with their buyers except on a basis of 6/6 net. Woolpacks were steady at 5/3 each net. Branbags continued in slow demand, and country lots were obtainable at 5/5 net.

DISCOVERY OF PAINT PIGMENTS.

Mr. J. M. Toomey writes:—

My attention has been drawn to certain evidence tendered before the Interstate Commission during the early stage of its proceedings in Sydney. In a paragraph under the heading of "Duty on Paints" the representatives of the leading paint manufacturing companies are reported to have strongly advocated the admission—duty free—of special foreign pigments for paint manufacturing purposes. Among the special foreign pigments named as being necessary to admit free of duty were Spanish bright red oxide, which it was urged was not obtainable in Australia.

By rather a strange coincidence about the very time this evidence was being tendered before the commission the prospectors representing a mining syndicate at Newcastle discovered an immense deposit of rich hematite and limonite oxide ores, within close proximity to a railway station on the north-western line, and subsequently a similar deposit of bright red oxide of iron, within 100 miles of Newcastle, also within close proximity of the main northern line. Apart from the large dimensions of these three classes of oxide deposits, analysis of the ore bodies recently made by the highest geological authorities in this State proves very conclusively the mineral to be quite equal in richness and colour to any oxide so far discovered in any part of the world.

Therefore, if, as stated by a prominent paint manufacturer in his evidence upon the occasion referred to, that the difficulty then confronting manufacturers could be overcome by the discovery of this particular class of oxide mineral in this country, I have no hesitation in saying that this problem is solved; and it only needs an impartial investigation being made by those most concerned, and especially by the Minister for Customs, to prove that the enacting of legislation in respect to the free admission of foreign oxide minerals would result in a severe blow being dealt to a new and what has every appearance of proving one of the most valuable contributions to the many essential industries of New South Wales; and considering the output of this commodity has realised over one million pounds sterling in New South Wales alone during the two years 1912 and 1913, it is a subject deserving of the very special consideration of the Federal Government.

BREADSTUFFS.

NO NEW WHEAT SOLD.

The wheat market was quiet yesterday. No purchases were made. Holders were content to allow the Government to seize their wheat at 4/2, rather than they themselves sell it at that price. If the millers want more wheat—and some of them are still hungry—the question arises, will the Government seize it at 4/2 in the country. Stocks at Darling Island are practically exhausted. The farmers are not selling new wheat. Why should they? The weather continues dry, and the Sydney parity of London is still above the proclaimed price. Contracts made for delivery in September and October continue to cause trouble. The sellers have adopted a defiant attitude. They declare that the price of wheat is 4/2, and invite the buyers to buy against them at this price. Where the buyers are shippers or millers who have use for the wheat no settlements have been effected.

Flour was dull at the official price of £9/10/. A few sales were made. Bran and pollard were active, with a strong export inquiry from other States at £6.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the live stock market yesterday and to-day 45,000 fat sheep were yarded, the bulk being shorn sheep, with a preponderance of ewes. Monday's sales opened at irregular prices, in some instances being slightly better than late quotations; but the demand gradually eased, and at the close values showed a decline from the previous week's quotations. To-day's opening sales were dull, at a decline of fully 1/ per head from late figures for good to prime sorts. Though in the early part of the afternoon a more pronounced decline was apparent, the market gradually recovered, and prices at the close were about on a par with the opening sales. Indifferent sorts showed a more pronounced drop, and woolly sheep (unless very prime) were neglected by the trade graziers operating freely in both these classes.

Quotations:—Shorn sheep: Prime crossbred wethers, 15/ to 18/, extra ditto to 20/, good ditto 12/ to 14/, second ditto 9/6 to 11/, inferior ditto to 8/6; crossbred wethers in the wool, 17/6 to 21/, extra ditto to 23/6; prime crossbred ewes, 14/ to 16/, extra to 18/, good ditto 11/ to 13/, inferior to 9/6; crossbred ewes in the wool, from 16/ to 21/, extra ditto to 25/6; prime merino wethers, 12/6 to 15/6, a few higher, good ditto 9/ to 11/6, interior to 8/; merino wethers in the wool, from 14/ to 19/6, extra to 22/; prime merino ewes, 10/6 to 13/9, good from 7/6 to 9/6, old and inferior from 4/, merino ewes in the wool from 8/ to 16/, and low-conditioned sorts from 4/.

Fat Lambs.—41,000 penned for the two days. The greater portion were of secondary and inferior descriptions, with a slight increase in the number of prime. The progress of the two days' sale was a repetition of the sheep sales, and values may be quoted fully 1/ lower than late figures, graziers easing the market of a considerable number of inferior sorts. Quotations:—Prime 12/6 to 14/6; extra to 15/8, good 10/ to 11/6, seconds 6/6 to 9/, small and inferior from 1/.

DAIRY.

WEAKNESS IN EGGS.

The egg market opened exceedingly weak, and, although many agents were willing to cut prices, great difficulty was experienced in effecting sales. New-laid suburban consignments were offered at /10 a dozen "straight out," and railway and river lots at /9 a dozen. There was no talk of /10½ for new-laid or /9½ for case eggs. Duck eggs were weaker, in sympathy with hen eggs.

Butter exhibited a somewhat firmer tendency owing to an advance in quotations in the adjoining States. In Melbourne choice Western district brands were worth 112/ per cwt, while in Brisbane the best brands commanded to 108/.

There was no movement in cheese, but the market was undoubtedly weak. Prime loaf from the South Coast was available at /7 per lb.

Bacon moved out steadily at unchanged rates.

Quotations were:—

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

ADVANCE IN POTATOES AND ONIONS.

Only 3900 bags of potatoes arrived from Tasmania this week, as compared with 5500 bags last week, and, as a result, prices were fully 5/ a ton firmer. Redskins, Brownells, and Plunketts were quoted at £7, and Up-to-dates at from £5 to £5/5/ a ton.

The market for onions was also stronger. The Victorian shipment totalled only 237 bags, and sellers had no trouble in securing to £14 for the best brown Spanish. Large quantities of Japanese onions were available, but it was asserted that, in many instances, the quality of these bulbs was not satisfactory. They were offered at from £11 to £12 a ton.

High prices were again realised for Tasmanian oaten chaff. The best samples sold readily at from £6 to £6/10/ a ton. A shipment of 1900 bags was to hand from the Island State.

There was no movement in maize. Yellow grain was to be had at 3/10, and white at 4/ a bushel. Arrivals included 700 bags in the Pulganbar, 500 bags in the Hastings, and 300 bags in the Yulgilbar.

A well-filled yard was offered to buyers, and competition for prime lots was active.

Wheaten commanded 3/9 to 6/10; the latter being paid for a parcel from McGregor, of Kelso; whilst oaten brought 4/1 to 5/10 per cwt.

COOGEE SURF CLUB.

A deputation, comprised of members of the Coogee Surf Club and the Randwick Municipal Council, waited upon Mr. Ashford, acting in Mr. Trefle's absence as Minister for Lands, yesterday, to ask for a modification of the Minister's decision with reference to the lease of the Coogee Surf Club's premises. Mr. D. Storey, M.L.A., introduced the deputation.

It was pointed out that Mr. Trefle had recently decided not to renew the club's lease, which expires on December 31, 1914, unless a limit were fixed upon the number of associate members admitted by the club. The council desired to be allowed to grant a further five years' lease to the club on the same terms as before.

The Acting Minister for Lands said Mr. Trefle's idea in desiring to curtail the number of associate members was to make the life-saving membership stronger. It appeared to him that the views put forward had a claim to consideration. He had, however, agreed to receive a deputation on the other side, and any decision on the matter would be withheld until after that took place.

MINING.

QUIET BUT STEADY MARKET.

Extreme quietness pervaded the market yesterday morning. This, doubtless, was due to the disturbing effect of the previous day's public holiday, also the march through the city of the troops enlisted for the war. The Stock Exchange was so deserted at the first call that the committee decided to forgo the noon one, so as to give members an opportunity to view the march of the troops.

Under these circumstances it was not surprising that the proceedings were unusually quiet. But if business was slack, the values realised were very sound. This applied more particularly to Barriers, and to a lesser extent to copper propositions, but both the tin and gold divisions were very dull.

When operators met in the afternoon, after the military route march, they seemed less inclined than ever to engage in business, and the result was an even worse record than that of the morning. With the exception of easier sale rates recorded in B.H. Souths (con.), B.H. Junction North, and Hampdens, values were of a solid character, despite the disturbing influences of the day.

MINING NOTES.

The manager of the Buckland River Gold Dredging Company reports that in a run of 254 hours the plant recovered 109oz.

The manager of the Vegetable Creek tin mine is getting it into an excellent position to be able to enter upon blocking out tin, when the state of the war permits of the London tin market resuming its normal condition. The Skinner shaft will shortly be ready for haulage. The Strathbogie shaft has reached 167ft, and is in hard basalt. The engine shed has been completed, and the steam connections are being made. Both the Allen and Chandler shafts are being kept unwatered.

Taking advantage of the plants being shut down in consequence of the war, the manager of the Elsmore Tin-sluicing Company is arranging to sink prospecting shafts on several parts of the property. These shafts should determine the run of several rich old leads.

The manager of the Tyrconnell gold mines (Q.) telegraphed yesterday that the clean-up for the fortnight ended October 5 resulted in 228oz from 95 tons. This is exclusive of concentrates and tailings.

The manager of the Hampden-Cloncurry copper mines wired yesterday:—"Duchess mine, main shaft, sunk to 733ft; 700ft level, north drive, 145ft north, 107ft west, to 146ft, width sampled 43in, value 29½ per cent. On both walls rise 240ft north, 102ft west, to 26ft, width sampled 26in, value 8 per cent. on both walls."

DEEBOOK DREDGING.

IMPROVING OUTPUT.

A cable received in Melbourne from the general manager at Renong of the Deebook Dredging Co. states that the dredge ran 543 hours during last month for an output of 38 tons of tin oxide, as against 12 tons in August. The yield just recorded shows the ground was worth 2.12lb per cubic yard, a very payable record, even with metallic tin at £135 per ton.

EDNA MAY GOLD MINE.

SPLENDID DEVELOPMENTS.

PERTH, Tuesday.

The main reef at No. 3 level of the Edna May mine was struck at 118ft from the shaft. Ten feet of solid quartz are showing at the end of the crosscut, and there is no sign of the footwall of the reef. The average value of the 10ft of stone exposed is 2oz per ton. Whatever results may be disclosed by driving on the reef, after its full width has been determined, it undoubtedly looks exceptionally well at present. The reef located some weeks ago by No. 3 level crosscut, close to the main shaft, is an important development. The reef is 4ft wide, and, as it is of highly payable grade, it is likely to provide a considerable quantity of ore for treatment. A remarkable feature in connection with mining operations is the manner in which developmental work at No. 1 level continues to locate fresh ore reserves. Notwithstanding the heavy drain for mill requirements, it is likely that the ore reserve at this level will show an increase as compared with the figures of six months ago.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The following telegram received to-day from the manager:—"225 feet crosscut, 12ft ore exposed, footwall not yet reached, average value 40dwt."

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The high pressure since Monday has contracted considerably, and has also diminished in barometric pressure. The centre at the present time is situated between Newcastle and Lord Howe Island. The Antarctic disturbance, which was very energetic over the southern Tasman Sea on Monday, has moved further northward, and has lost a great deal of energy. The new Antarctic disturbance, which was off the Leeuwin on Monday, has worked a little to the north, while a monsoonal disturbance is in evidence over the Murchison goldfields. Monsoonal tendencies are also denoted over Queensland. For the present fine and warmer weather may be expected, with northerly winds.

While climbing a steep hill he lost command of the machine, and was knocked over by a motor-car, which, in an endeavour to avoid an accident, was driven into a fence and damaged. Stewart sustained injuries to the base of the skull, and was conveyed to a private hospital.

HABITS OF BIRDS.

Dr. E. A. D'Ombrain, lecturing before the members of the Naturalists' Society of New South Wales last night, gave an interesting explanation of why the blue crane uses the Morse code. When the crane gets on to swampy ground it touches the earth gently with its beak, this acting as a kind of call to the worm, which immediately upon its appearance above the surface is pecked up by the knowing bird. Whether the heron has hypnotic power over the worm, or whether the tapping is intended to simulate raindrops is not known. Dr. D'Ombrain gave an interesting account of a swan which, during the progress of a fire in a country town, was seen to circle down over the conflagration, and disappear again. He had no theory to offer as to whether the swan came purely out of curiosity, or whether it was attracted by the fire in the same way that horses are. During a visit to an ibis rookery, the lecturer said he had seen a number of young birds, some quite newly hatched, taken from the nests to a platform, of beaten-down bushes, and left in the charge of several birds, while the older ones went to look for food. A curious paradox dealt with by the lecturer was the case of the little "peaceful" dove, which was known to be a tremendous fighter.

It has been found that out of a total enrolment of 231,861 pupils attending the Public schools, 18,923, or 8.1 per cent., were affected by one or other of the infectious diseases that make absence from school compulsory. These diseases include whooping cough, measles, chickenpox, diphtheria, and similar complaints. Whooping cough heads the list with 8454 patients, chickenpox comes next with 2927, measles with 2461, and diphtheria with 1942. There were 258 typhoid patients, and 633 suffered from scarlet fever. The country districts were responsible for nearly all the cases of ophthalmia, 934 cases being reported. Measles were more prevalent in the country districts than in the cities. Diphtheria was prevalent at Broken Hill, but there were comparatively few cases of other diseases.

A STATE PURCHASE.

HOBART, Tuesday.

Yesterday a contract was signed under which the Government purchases the hydro-electric works of the Hydro-Electric Company, and the State's officers take possession to-day.

Most of the machinery is lying waiting in England for shipment, and it is estimated that the first installation of 9000-h.p. will be ready in nine or ten months. The company retains the land north-west of the bay, on which it intends to erect carbide and other works, and it receives from the first installation 3500-h.p. at five per cent. over the working cost. The Government intends to use the power, of which they can develop 100,000-h.p. for the progress of the State, and not for profit.

A MYSTERIOUS LIGHT.

ZEEHAN, Tuesday.

Last night Messrs. J. Dunn, J. Ware, and others saw a peculiar light in the sky. Observations were taken, and the light appeared to be travelling from Macquarie Harbour towards Mount Dundas, where it finally disappeared. At times the light was invisible when the rays were thrown to the earth. A similar report has also been received from Strahan and Queenstown.

DEATH SENTENCE COMMUTED.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

The death sentence passed on Daniel Hammon for the murder of his wife at Whangarei on July 21 has been commuted to one of imprisonment for life.

STATE LOANS.

COMPETITION NOT WANTED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

To-day the representatives of the State Governments of New South Wales and Victoria waited on the Prime Minister to discuss the question of the Commonwealth helping the States to keep their public works going. They inquired whether the Commonwealth would assist the States by securing their loans in the London market, with the object of preventing competition.

Mr. Fisher is understood to have admitted that the idea was a good one, but he would not promise to do anything.

There is now a probability that the States will act on the suggestion of the Premier of South Australia (Mr. Peake), and combine, with a view to approaching London as one body.

FOUND IN THE YARRA.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Mr. Charles L. Andrews, a barrister, who up till a year ago was chairman of the Licenses' Reduction Board, disappeared from his home in South Yarra a week ago, and today his body was found in the Yarra. He had for some time past suffered from nervous prostration. He was 53 years of age.

FEDERAL CAPITAL.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

To the statement that there was every indication the world-wide competition for the new Federal Parliament House at Canberra, officially postponed, had in reality been abandoned, the Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Archibald) was not prepared to make any definite allusion to-day beyond intimating that he had not yet made any arrangement. He admitted, however, that he had declined, for the time being, to bind himself to a proposal by Mr. W. B. Griffin, that some specific date should be named for resuming the competition on the original terms.

WAR AND FINANCE.

Some years ago the late August Bebel estimated that any future Franco-German war would cost £150,000,000 a month, while if Great Britain, Austria, Italy, and Russia joined in, the cost would mount up to £450,000,000 a month. Neither Germany nor France, it is thought, could stand the economic strain of such a war for more than three months. Both, however would not break down at the same moment, and—so far as cash and credit decide these things—the State which can pay its bills even a month longer than its rival will win. War was not such a costly undertaking 40 years ago (comments a London journal). The Franco-German war, which lasted 190 days, cost Germany £90,000,000 for an average fighting force of 1,250,000. The Boer war, in which our army averaged 200,000, and which lasted 30 months, cost us £211,000,000. The war in the Far East cost Japan £130,000,000 and Russia £144,600,000, not counting lost ships.

EACH DAY'S NEWS FROM
IS AS NEW AS THE NEW DAY.

Why is it that people who "do the rounds" nearly always return to Snow's, to do their actual buying? It isn't the size of the Store, for if you find the style and the quality you like at the price that suits you best it makes no difference to you whether it is part of a £1000 stock or a £1,000,000 stock.
Isn't it because Snow's Specialty Store provides the articles of Apparel and Drapery that sensible people want at prices that sensible people know are the lowest prices that it is safe to pay?

CHARMING ROBES AND COSTUMES AT SNOW'S.

A POMPADOUR CREPE ROBE is suggested as a suitable picnic or holiday frock. It has Magyar top. 7/6. Others at 7/9.
WHITE VOILE ROBES and EMBROIDERED MUSLINS at 13/6. Some show coloured French spots, others have Floral Collars and Cuffs, and still others are in Striped Effect. Only 13/6.
Other WHITE VOILE ROBES are described as "a ripping line." They are trimmed with Lace Edging and Crochet Buttons, 17/6.
FLORAL POMPADOUR VOILE ROBES, with Light and Dark Grounds, are cheap at 18/6. They have Raglan tops and flared skirts.
"You can make a big noise about CREPE DE CHINE ROBES," the head of the Showroom tells us. But a big noise is hardly necessary when there are so many good values clamouring for notice. Here is a CREPE DE CHINE ROBE, with double flared skirt tucked on to a Raglan top. It also has Chiffon Organdie Vest and Sleeve Pleatings. The front embellished with a Parisienne bow. Price, 42/11.
Another CREPE DE CHINE ROBE has the new deep yoke bodice, with double hem skirt, with buckle and knots in centre, and folded sash at waist. Price, 49/11.

A BRACE OF COSTUMES.
One little lot of FROSTED CREPE COSTUMES, with Raglan tops and basque Coatees, at 21/9. They have Collars and Sashes of contrasting colour. There are White, Navy, Black, Lime, Tan, Sky, Saxe, Pink, and other shades.
CREPE DE CHINE COSTUMES, with new Basque Coatees and Collars and Cuffs of Roman Striped Silk Skirts flared. Snow's Price, 52/6.
Also scores of others, showing the newest touches of Fashion, 55/ upwards.
